OPA BILL RECEIVES SETBACK IN SENATE

Byrnes' Plan For Germany Causes Clash

State Secretary Wants Deputies To Study Defeated Country

17 NATIONS INVITED TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Molotov Objects To Proposed 25-Year Disarmament Program

By JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, July 9 (AP) — Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes clashed today over America's proposed 25-year German disarmament treaty, informants reported, and Byrnes proposed that special deputies be appointed to study all German problems.

Byrnes asked that the special deputies be named now to consider all phases of the German problem for a report to the next series of meetings by the four-power foreign ministers, presumably next autumn. French and American informants said there was no immediate response from the other ministers. Byrnes circulated his proposal at the end of today's meeting of the ministers.

Invitations Issued

Meanwhile, the French government issued formal invitations to 17 other Allied nations for the general European peace conference here July 29, and the ministers asked the United Nations to postpone its general assembly session in New York until Sept. 23 to allow time for diplomats to attend the Paris conference.

The General Assembly had been scheduled for Sept. 3. Trygve Lie, U. N. general secretary, had asked the ministers for advice so there would be no conflict with the Paris Peace conference of 21 nations.

Diplomats eagerly awaited the "important declaration" on Germany promised last week by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, which, according to speculation here, could be anything from a forthright acceptance of federalization on the American model to a denunciation of what some Russians have called "secret negotiations" by Britian and the United States.

The United States already is practicing federalization in its own occupation zone of Germany, and acceptance of this procedure by the other powers would be a step, in the American and British view, toward removing the trade barriers between the zones.

Potsdam Agreement Cited

In Frankfurt today, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, underscored the problem when he announced that the United States was prepared to seek special economic agreements for Western Germany unless the foreign ministers achieved agreement.

Atom Bomb UN Group To Report

Dr. Evatt Summarizing Findings On Atomic Energy Control

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP) — Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australia, drew up today a report summarizing the work of the United Nations atomic sub-committee No. 1 which has completed its task of hearing varying views on how to best control atomic energy.

The Aunstralian also prepared himself for the meeting of the United Nations Security Council tomorrow at 3 p. m. (EDT). At that time he will present, as chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, the provisional rules adopted by the commission last Wednesday. The security council must approve these rules.

Expects To Report July 11

Dr. Evatt, chairman of the subcommittee No. 1, was expected to have the subcommittee's report ready for final consideration by that six-nation group at its meeting Thursday at 11 a. m. The report, once approved by the sub-committee, will be handed to the working committee of the Atomic Energy commission, probably next Friday.

The sub-committee has had a thorough exchange of views on the whole proposition of outlawing atomic weapons of war and on controlling atomic energy for peacetime use.

It is expected that the full working committee of the Atomic energy commission will determine the course of future deliberations after receiving this report.

The security council also will have before it a technical definition of conditions under which the international court of justice, sitting at the Hague, will be open to non-member states.

July 15 Application Deadline

The security council soon must name a committe to consider applications for membership to the United Nations. The council has set July 15 as the deadline for normal applications to go before the general assembly at its September meeting. Any application after that will be handled as an extraordinary case if it is put before the coming assembly.

Applications have been submitted by the Kingdom of Trans-Jordan, Albania, Siam, the Mongolian People's Republic (outer Mongolia) and Afghanistan.

Marriage Climaxes Warborn Romance Of Quads' Parents

PITTSBURGH, July 9 (AP) — Marriage today climaxed the warborn international romance of former Staff Sergeant William (Red) Thompson, Jr., and the tall, slim English girl who bore him quadruplets out of wedlock.

Thompson and his sweetheart, Norah Carpenter, 25, were wed in a brief, secret civil ceremony in a towntown Pittsburgh hotel suite, with half a dozen friends attending. The three surviving quads remained at the home of Red's mother.

Attorney Samuel R. Keller, counsel for Red and Norah, said the wedding ceremony was conducted without stir or fuss by Alderman Frank T. Halloran. Keller was best man for the ex-soldier and Mrs. Edward Weill, of Monessen, a friend of the bridegroom, attended Miss Carpenter.

The bride wore a white hat, blue veil, a green print dress and white shoes. A shoulder corsage of red roses completed her bridal costume. The Thompsons plan to live in two rooms set aside for them in the modest, two-story brick home of Red's mother, Mrs. Alice Houlihan, on Friendship avenue.

Earlier, arrangements for the wedding were speeded when Orphans Court Judge Thomas P. Trimble waived the three-day waiting period required by Pennsylvania law before a marriage license can be issued.

Patterson Admits Trying To Help Illinois Company

War Secretary Says He Intervened To Obtain Manpower

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson acknowledged today that he had given his personal attention to the wartime complaints of Illinois munitions makers at the request of Rep. May (D-Ky), but firmly denied that he had done them "favors."

In sworn testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee, Patterson produced these developments in the inquiry into the industrial combine's complicated operations and profits:

Went To May's Office

1. A statement that he went to May's office at the congressman's summons a few days after government payments to the Erie Basin Metal Products Company had been "frozen" to insure recapture of excessive profits. At the congressman's office, he conferred with two men whom he said he could not identify.

2. An acknowledgement that May had complained to him over a War Production Board order halting work on a contract held by Batavia Metal Products Company, another of the associated firms, and that he had a subordinate look into it.

3. A declaration that he had intervened with the War Manpower Commission to obtain additional labor for Batavia. He emphasized this was done only to get shells for a mounting offensive in Europe.

4. A flat denial that May had asked him for, or that he had ordered, award of a big shell contract to Batavia. He termed this "idle gossip and utterly untrue."

5. A statement that he had approved an army-navy "E" award for Batavia about which May had inquired. He insisted that he did so only after subordinates informed him that Batavia had exceeded production schedules.

"I am not in the business of doing favors for anyone," Patterson told the committee sharply at one point.

Order Gets Attention

Committee members focused their chief attention upon an order freezing payments to Erie Basin issued over Patterson's signature on Sept. 6, 1945.

In response to questions, Patterson said that he did not like his name "to be used in an effort to obtain favors." But he insisted that "that kind of talk"—the conversation between Garsson and Hirsch—"doesn't impress Hirsch. He can take care of himself."

George H. Knutson, a member of the War Department Price Adjustment Board, and associates related that contract renegotiators trimmed the war profits of the companies from 26.4 to 9.3 percent by refusing to allow claims for big Washington entertainment bills, boosted rent fees and claims for "abdoned" machinery.

One item in question was an Erie charge of $19,213 for "liquor and miscellaneous gifts." The gifts were said to have included two $138 cigarette lighters and six $120 pen-and-pencil sets, but it was not ascertained who received them.

Patterson himself brought up the matter of the Batavia eight-inch shell contract which was referred to in an inked-out passage in a war department memorandum introduced last week of a conversation between two war department officials. In that memorandum was a claim that Batavia received the contract as a result of May's re-

Airfield Clerk Ends Testimony

BOSTON, July 9. (AP)—With testimony of unnatural acts between Helen Stavrou, 18-year-old typist, and Lt. Thomas Farrell, Somerville, the state completed its evidence today in the 10-day-old trial of the medalled army flier charged with branding and slashing the girl and sex offenses.

The dark-haired former army airfield clerk spent nearly six full trial days on the witness stand, during which she bared her breasts to an all-man superior court jury to show scars she says Farrell seared into her with cigarettes.

Farrell's counsel, Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, declined to say whether the 24-year-old flier, veteran of 35 Pacific bombing missions, would take the stand.

Callahan withheld the nature of the defense opening tomorrow in the spectator-barred courtroom where yesterday a state pathologist testified that Miss Stavrou's scars "will last as long as she lives."

Boston Police Sergt. Margaret McHugh said today that on April 13 Miss Stavrou told her of unnatural acts with Farrell on March 16 night when the girl asserts the flier kept her for 17 hours in a hotel room.

Miss McHugh's hesitancy in answering questions on the alleged unnatural acts at one time brought a court recess order from Judge Edward J. Voke.

A hotal chambermaid, Elizabeth Lowry, testified that she saw Miss Stavrou, wrapped in a bedsheet, running along a hotel corridor.

Miss Lowry said the young typist told her:

"See what my boy friend did to me."

Plan To Pay GI Terminal Leave Reaches Senate

"Anti-Inflationary" Act Would Give Vets 5-Year Bonds

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—A so-called "anti-inflationary" plan for staggered payment of about $3,000,000,000 to some 15,000,000 veterans reached the senate today with blessing from its military committee and President Truman.

"This will be ready for senate action before the OPA bill is finished," Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) told reporters after the military committee gave approval.

The payments—part in cash and the bulk in treasury bonds payable five years after the veteran's discharge and bearing 2½ per cent interest—are a substitute for an immediate cash outlay for terminal-leave pay already approved by the House by a 379 to 0 roll call.

Officers Receive Cash

All commissioned officers who served during the recent war received cash terminal leave payments on release at the rate of 2½ days for each month of service, less time actually spent on leaves.

The substitute is intended to grant all enlisted men and women these same payments, except that cash would be paid only on claims of less than $50, with some exceptions, while the five-year bonds would be issued for payments above $50.

Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers told White House reporters that the bond payment substitute "was the president's own idea."

The budget bureau previously reported that cash payments were opposed by the president. The compromise was worked out by representatives of that agency and the Treasury, War and Navy departments.

The bond payments would be made to all enlisted men and women already discharged and to those still in service who are discharged before July 1, 1947.

Payment by bonds also would be made to officers discharged between the time the law is enacted and July 1, 1947, replacing the cash payments they now receive.

23 Reported Killed When Plane Crashes

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 10 (Wednesday) (AP) — Lt. Michael Smith of the Holyoke police early today said two officers at the scene of a B-17 plane crash near the summit of Mt. Tom reported that 23 bodies had been found.

O'Neil sent his message to Police Lt. Michael Smith "to get the medical examiner up here." O'Neil was in a police cruiser several hundred yards below the scene of the crash.

Wreckage and debris was scattered over a wide area. The leg of one victim was found in a tree. He had been wearing black stockings and black shoes, which suggested to police the wearer was a navy man.

Holyoke police patrolman Joseph O'Neil reported earlier by radio from the scene of the crash that the converted bomber had crashed 200 yards below the summit of Mt. Tom. The mountain's top is 1,200 feet above sea level.

The plane was a wartime bomber converted to passenger transport service. It was flying from Gander bay, Newfoundland, to nearby Westover army air field at Chicopee, Mass. Aboard, police said, were army, navy and coast guard personnel.

The Westover provost marshal said that the plane had been circling Holyoke for two hours before it crashed at 10:20 p. m. (EDT) last night. There was no explanation of its difficulty, though it lost altitude steadily while circling the city.

He said an explosion followed the crash, and another came about ten minutes later.

He said that the B-17, a converted bomber, had crashed 200 yards below the summit of Mt. Tom. The mountain is 1,200 feet above sea level.

O'Neil said a jacket found near the scattered debris and wreckage was marked "air sea rescue." Police also found several parachutes.

In New York, the Navy Air Rescue Service said the bomber had been en route from Gander, Newfoundland, to Westover Field, Mass., when it crashed and burned.

O'Neil reported the plane was "still burning fiercely" when the first policemen arrived at the scene and they were unable to get close for some time.

Truman Names John L. Stuart To Chinese Post

UNRRA Shipments Stopped By LaGuardia Because Of Delivery

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — President Truman named John Leighton Stuart, a 70-year-old Presbyterian missionary and educator, to be ambassador to China today, but even before the Senate received the nomination tough new problems were piling up on the China scene.

UNRRA Director Fiorello La Guardia announced suspension of all shipments of supplies except emergency foods to China after receiving a protest from more than half the UNRRA staff members in China that goods were not reaching the right people, that ports were jammed with materials and that political" use of relief supplies was being charged.

Shipment Is Halted

LaGuardia's drastic action halted the shipment to China of a vast quantity of materials worth hundreds of millions of dollars and ranging from textiles and clothing to fertilizers, farm machinery, fishing boats, trucks, locomotives and steel rails.

A statement by UNRRA headquarters said LaGuardia had warned Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek three days ago that he would take such action if the ports were not cleared of relief supplies already delivered.

While La Guardia made no mention of political charges, the whole situation was regarded by officials here as reflecting China's increased difficulty in undertaking even basic rehabilitation without unity between the Nationalist faction by Chiang and the Communists in the north.

This in turn seemed to set the stage for the appointment of Stuart, a diplomatic dark horse, whose nomination came as a surprise to those authorities here who had expected for weeks that the post would go instead to Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer. The latter served during the

Republicans Lay Campaign Plans

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Republican candidates and party spokesmen from all over Maryland met here today to set in motion their campaign machinery for the fall elections.

Their sights are set on winning both a United States Senate seat and the governorship — something they've never before done at the same time.

Today's meeting was an invitation affair in which 40 party leaders met as an informal committee to talk about plans and hash over prospective platform declarations to be considered at the party's nominating convention at the Lord Baltimore hotel here July 22.

The leaders were called in by Enos S. Stockbridge, who is to be chairman of the convention.

Main tasks before the convention are adoption of the party's campaign platform and the naming of a chairman for the Republican state committee.

It also will formalize the nomniations of Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, Baltimore, as candidate for governor, D. John Markey, Frederick, for the Senate, and the other party standard bearers who got the nod from the voters in the June 24 primaries.

Bloom Asks House Pass British Bill

Says $3,750,000,000 Loan Has Nothing To Do With Jew Problem

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House Foreign Affairs committee appealed to the house today to approve the $3,750,000,000 British loan, declaring "this is not a Jewish question. It has nothing to do with the Jewish question in Palestine."

"I'm voting as an American and not as a Jew," he declared. "I intend to vote for the British loan."

Has Statement Read

In a move designed to offset possible loss of house votes for the loan, because of British handling of the Jewish problem, Bloom had the house clerk read a statement by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, a leader of the Zionist movement. Wise said:

"Whatever be the wrong doing of the British government in Palestine cannot alter my conviction that the British loan is imperatively needed.

"I shall not permit my abundantly justified indignation against the Palestine government and its lawless practices to change the fact of my support, as an American, of the British loan. The issue should be decided solely on its own merits."

Bloom described actions of the British on the Jewish question as "stupid," stressing particularly refusal by the British of a visa for Wise to enter Palestine.

Leaders Predict Passage

Both Democratic and Republican house leaders predicted privately that the loan will be approved, although probably by a narrow margin.

Supporters of the credit greeted with satisfaction the defeat of Senator Henrik Shipstead, foe of the loan, by Gov. Edward J. Thye in the Minnesota Republican primary. Rep. Buffett (R-Neb), a leader of the loan opposition, told reporters, however, that he doubted the Minnesota result would change any house votes.

Eugene Meyer, president of the International Bank, issued a statement meanwhile declaring that the loan "is a vital part of a greater plan in which the monetary fund, the bank and other organizations also were to play their parts. The loan is necessary if Great Britain is promptly to be restored to function as an economic base for expanding world trade and economic stability."

The second day of house debate brought assertion that the loan might sow the seeds of another war, and that Britain and America must hang together or hang separately.

Shipstead Loses To Governor Thye In Senate Race

SALT LAKE CITY, July 9 (AP) —Apparently headed for renomination, Rep. Walter Granger (D) polled 756 votes to 152 for Edward McPolin in unofficial returns from 45 of Utah's 876 precincts tonight. The contest is the hottest in the Utah primary.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Political Reporter

Washington and Utah picked nominees for the United States Senate and House yesterday (Tuesday) in climaxing comparatively dull campaigns.

Meanwhile, Harold E. Stassen claimed a "decisive victory for progressive republican policies" in Gov. Edward J. Thye's thumping defeat of the veteran senator Henrik Shipstead in Minnesota.

Reaction among Shipstead's senatorial colleagues varied. Senator Ball (R-Minn) said the results showed Minnesotans favor "international co-operation for peace and a sound liberal program at home," and predicted Thye would win in November.

Poultry, Egg, Meat Ceiling Is Outlawed

Senate Votes 40 To 26 To Eliminate Products' Price Control

TRUMAN EXPECTED TO VETO ACTION

Barkley Presses For Test Vote; O'Daniel Threatens Filibuster

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—The administration suffered a stunning reverse in the OPA battle tonight when the Senate voted, 49 to 26, to outlaw any future price ceilings on meat, poultry, eggs and foods made from them.

This action tore big holes in the pending compromise bill to revive OPA in modifed form for one year. Many senators predicted that if the action sticks, President Truman will veto the OPA revival bill, just as he did an extension measure passed before OPA expired June 30.

The prohibitions against the ceilings on meats and the other foods was offered by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) and was backed by a majority of the Republicans and some Democrats.

Previously the Senate had voted down, 51 to 25, another amendment by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla) to exempt livestock and poultry and their raw byproducts from future price controls.

O'Daniel Threatens Filibuster

Thomas had offered this as a substitute for the Wherry amendment, later adopted.

The administration leaders' woes were just beginning. Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex), inveterate foe of OPA, made a move to bury the agency permanently by offering the controversial fair employment practices legislation as an amendment to the pending price control revival measure.

Every effort heretofore to pass an FEPC bill has brought a filibuster from southern senators and O'Daniel openly was bidding for another one.

"I'm against FEPC," the Texan told the Senate, "but like OPA it's a bad bill. I don't see why we don't have both of them in the same bag." He added that both are "stinking things."

The parlimentary situation was such that O'Daniel could not ask for an immediate vote upon the FEPC amendment. He promised to call it up later and told the Senate that he planned to talk "as long as God gives me breath to delay a final vote on this bill."

O'Daniel, asking help of other senators in his delaying tactics, said they had material enough to "talk this to death" even if it took a year.

He recalled that similar tactics had prevented a vote on a permanent FEPC and said that is why he now offered it.

With O'Daniel's filibuster threat a problem to be met later, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) pressed for an initial test vote on price controls for meat and poultry. The debate was enlivened by charges that the OPA has aimed illegal pro-

Mayor McKeldin Criticizes Police Handling Of Century Club Holdup

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—A daring daylight robbery, carried out in gangland style by four gunmen, was described today in an eye-witness account of the July 4 "stick-up" of the Century Athletic Club, just a block away from police headquarters.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin tonight issued a statement criticizing the police department for its handling of the case.

Citing stories that circulated on the streets right after the robbery, McKeldin said he was "shocked' that the police knew nothing about it for several hours and did not confirm it until 72 hours later, when "the governor of the state began giving some directions to the police officials."

Police commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson said that "there has been nothing wrong with police handling of this case," when asked to comment on the mayor's statement.

He said the police department would "welcome the assistance of the FBI" and that he had conferred with Fred Hallford, special agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI office, about the case on Monday.

The eye-witness account was that of Lou Fisher, fight promoter and president of the club, patronized by the sporting fraternity and located above an Italian restaurant on East Baltimore street.

Fisher's story was contained in a report made to Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson by Inspector William J. Forrest. It was the first official version made public of the hold-up, which had set many wild rumors in circulation.

Can Identify Men

Forrest said Fisher had described "and can identify" the four-hold-up men, for whom a 21-state police alarm was broadcast Sunday. The men were said to have escaped in a

Plant Employe Saves Life By Accurate Can Pitching

MALDEN, Mass., July 9 (AP) — George Ross, 46-year-old engineer, was a winning pitcher tonight.

Trapped thigh-deep by the grinding rollers of a conveyor belt, Ross, alone in a factory, early today fought off pain for a time he doesn't remember to make 30 throws for his life.

The thirtieth throw—a tin can aimed like the others at a push-button electric wall switch six feet away—scored a bullseye, shutting off the power and stopping the rollers.

Malden hospital authorities reported Ross as "comfortable' tonight and said he had a good chance of recovery without amputation.

Ross' wife, Laura, said she talked to George "just for a minute" at the hospital.

"He said he thought he got caught about 3 o'clock but he fainted and doesn't remember."

Police Sergt. William Butler said his detail found Ross, with the conveyor stopped and yelling for help, about 5:25 a. m. (EDT) on the third floor of the Potter Drug Chemical Company.

Dumped around him, Butler said, were the cans spilled from the conveyor belt which Ross had cut through with a jacknife in trying to free his mangled legs.

Butler said the engineer had twisted to support himself with one hand on the floor while with the other he hurled tin cans in his miss and try-again-for-life pitching.

It was not determined how Ross was dragged into the machine, recently installed to move objects from floor to floor of the plant.

Butler said police were called by a neighbor who heard Ross' shouts but was unable to get into the factory.

Rescuers worked for a half hour to free Ross, Butler said, and the engineer smoked a cigaret and directed the work.

Special Session To Enact State Rent Legislation Asked By Doub

BALTIMORE, July 9. (AP)—George Cochran Doub, Republican candidate for attorney general, urged Governor O'Conor today to call a special session of the general assembly to enact state rent-control legislation "without further delay."

In a letter to the governor, he said the establishment of advisory fair-rent committees without enforcement powers would not "meet the emergency."

He said that "as the Republican candidate for attorney general, I wish to point out that it is of paramount importance that a rent-control law be adopted promptly in the state of Maryland.

"The housing situation in Baltimore and other cities of the state is so critical that an emergency system of state rent control to prevent unfair increases in rent and the distress which will occur in the case of wholesale evictions is essential."

Saying he did not believe there would be "any serious question as to the constitutionality" of such emergency legislation, Doub added:

"As long ago as February, 1946, when the possibility that congress might not extend the OPA became the subject of discussion, the Citizens' Planning and Housing committee urged you to have ready in case of emergency a system of state rent control. Now that the OPA no longer exists, there is no justification for the failure of the state government to act."

O'Conor said yesterday that he had been advised a state rent-control act, either by legislation or constitutional amendment, was legally possible.

He indicated he would call a special session of the legislature if, in his opinion, it became necessary, but expressed hope that federal control soon would be restored.

The security council soon must name a committe to consider applications for membership to the United Nations. The council has set July 15 as the deadline for normal applications to go before the general assembly at its September meeting. Any application after that will be handled as an extraordinary case if it is put before the coming assembly.

Applications have been submitted by the Kingdom of Trans-Jordan, Albania, Siam, the Mongolian People's Republic (outer Mongolia) and Afghanistan.

Marriage Climaxes Warborn Romance Of Quads' Parents

PITTSBURGH, July 9 (AP) — Marriage today climaxed the warborn international romance of former Staff Sergeant William (Red) Thompson, Jr., and the tall, slim English girl who bore him quadruplets out of wedlock.

Thompson and his sweetheart, Norah Carpenter, 25, were wed in a brief, secret civil ceremony in a towntown Pittsburgh hotel suite, with half a dozen friends attending. The three surviving quads remained at the home of Red's mother.

Attorney Samuel R. Keller, counsel for Red and Norah, said the wedding ceremony was conducted without stir or fuss by Alderman Frank T. Halloran. Keller was best man for the ex-soldier and Mrs. Edward Weill, of Monessen, a friend of the bridegroom, attended Miss Carpenter.

The bride wore a white hat, blue veil, a green print dress and white shoes. A shoulder corsage of red roses completed her bridal costume. The Thompsons plan to live in two rooms set aside for them in the modest, two-story brick home of Red's mother, Mrs. Alice Houlihan, on Friendship avenue.

Earlier, arrangements for the wedding were speeded when Orphans Court Judge Thomas P. Trimble waived the three-day waiting period required by Pennsylvania law before a marriage license can be issued.

Patterson Admits Trying To Help Illinois Company

War Secretary Says He Intervened To Obtain Manpower

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson acknowledged today that he had given his personal attention to the wartime complaints of Illinois munitions makers at the request of Rep. May (D-Ky), but firmly denied that he had done them "favors."

In sworn testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee, Patterson produced these developments in the inquiry into the industrial combine's complicated operations and profits:

Went To May's Office

1. A statement that he went to May's office at the congressman's summons a few days after government payments to the Erie Basin Metal Products Company had been "frozen" to insure recapture of excessive profits. At the congressman's office, he conferred with two men whom he said he could not identify.

2. An acknowledgement that May had complained to him over a War Production Board order halting work on a contract held by Batavia Metal Products Company, another of the associated firms, and that he had a subordinate look into it.

3. A declaration that he had intervened with the War Manpower Commission to obtain additional labor for Batavia. He emphasized this was done only to get shells for a mounting offensive in Europe.

4. A flat denial that May had asked him for, or that he had ordered, award of a big shell contract to Batavia. He termed this "idle gossip and utterly untrue."

5. A statement that he had approved an army-navy "E" award for Batavia about which May had inquired. He insisted that he did so only after subordinates informed him that Batavia had exceeded production schedules.

"I am not in the business of doing favors for anyone," Patterson told the committee sharply at one point.

Order Gets Attention

Committee members focused their chief attention upon an order freezing payments to Erie Basin issued over Patterson's signature on Sept. 6, 1945.

In response to questions, Patterson said that he did not like his name "to be used in an effort to obtain favors." But he insisted that "that kind of talk"—the conversation between Garsson and Hirsch—"doesn't impress Hirsch. He can take care of himself."

George H. Knutson, a member of the War Department Price Adjustment Board, and associates related that contract renegotiators trimmed the war profits of the companies from 26.4 to 9.3 percent by refusing to allow claims for big Washington entertainment bills, boosted rent fees and claims for "abdoned" machinery.

One item in question was an Erie charge of $19,213 for "liquor and miscellaneous gifts." The gifts were said to have included two $138 cigarette lighters and six $120 pen-and-pencil sets, but it was not ascertained who received them.

Patterson himself brought up the matter of the Batavia eight-inch shell contract which was referred to in an inked-out passage in a war department memorandum introduced last week of a conversation between two war department officials. In that memorandum was a claim that Batavia received the contract as a result of May's re-

Airfield Clerk Ends Testimony

BOSTON, July 9. (AP)—With testimony of unnatural acts between Helen Stavrou, 18-year-old typist, and Lt. Thomas Farrell Somerville, the state completed its evidence today in the 10-day-old trial of the medalled army flier charged with branding and slashing the girl and sex offenses.

The dark-haired former army airfield clerk spent nearly six full trial days on the witness stand, during which she bared her breasts to an all-man superior court jury to show scars she says Farrell seared into her with cigarettes.

Farrell's counsel, Atty. Herbert F. Callahan, declined to say whether the 24-year-old flier, veteran of 35 Pacific bombing missions, would take the stand.

Callahan withheld the nature of the defense opening tomorrow in the spectator-barred courtroom where yesterday a state pathologist testified that Miss Stavrou's scars "will last as long as she lives."

Boston Police Sergt. Margaret McHugh said today that on April 13 Miss Stavrou told her of unnatural acts with Farrell on March 16 night when the girl asserts the flier kept her for 17 hours in a hotel room.

Miss McHugh's hesitancy in answering questions on the alleged unnatural acts at one time brought a court recess order from Judge Edward J. Voke.

A hotal chambermaid, Elizabeth Lowry, testified that she saw Miss Stavrou, wrapped in a bedsheet, running along a hotel corridor.

Miss Lowry said the young typist told her:

"See what my boy friend did to me."

FULL AGAIN AND HEADED EAST

KANSAS CITY, Kas., July 9—Bare Eastern meat counters will receive a boost in supplies late this week, according to officials at Swift and Company, when these choice carcasses, freshly killed and cooling in giant refrigerators at the plant, arrive. Big packers who stayed out of the market for several days last week, are again buying.

Plan To Pay GI Terminal Leave Reaches Senate

"Anti-Inflationary" Act Would Give Vets 5-Year Bonds

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—A so-called "anti-inflationary" plan for staggered payment of about $3,000,000,000 to some 15,000,000 veterans reached the senate today with blessing from its military committee and President Truman.

"This will be ready for senate action before the OPA bill is finished," Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) told reporters after the military committee gave approval.

The payments—part in cash and the bulk in treasury bonds payable five years after the veteran's discharge and bearing 2½ per cent interest—are a substitute for an immediate cash outlay for terminal-leave pay already approved by the House by a 379 to 0 roll call.

Officers Receive Cash

All commissioned officers who served during the recent war received cash terminal leave payments on release at the rate of 2½ days for each month of service, less time actually spent on leaves.

The substitute is intended to grant all enlisted men and women these same payments, except that cash would be paid only on claims of less than $50, with some exceptions, while the five-year bonds would be issued for payments above $50.

Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers told White House reporters that the bond payment substitute "was the president's own idea."

The budget bureau previously reported that cash payments were opposed by the president. The compromise was worked out by representatives of that agency and the Treasury, War and Navy departments.

The bond payments would be made to all enlisted men and women already discharged and to those still in service who are discharged before July 1, 1947.

Payment by bonds also would be made to officers discharged between the time the law is enacted and July 1, 1947, replacing the cash payments they now receive.

23 Reported Killed When Plane Crashes

HOLYOKE, Mass., July 10 (Wednesday) (AP) — Lt. Michael Smith of the Holyoke police early today said two officers at the scene of a B-17 plane crash near the summit of Mt. Tom reported that 23 bodies had been found.

O'Neil sent his message to Police Lt. Michael Smith "to get the medical examiner up here." O'Neil was in a police cruiser several hundred yards below the scene of the crash.

Wreckage and debris was scattered over a wide area. The leg of one victim was found in a tree. He had been wearing black stockings and black shoes, which suggested to police the wearer was a navy man.

Holyoke police patrolman Joseph O'Neil reported earlier by radio from the scene of the crash that the converted bomber had crashed 200 yards below the summit of Mt. Tom. The mountain's top is 1,200 feet above sea level.

The plane was a wartime bomber converted to passenger transport service. It was flying from Gander bay, Newfoundland, to nearby Westover army air field at Chicopee, Mass. Aboard, police said, were army, navy and coast guard personnel.

The Westover provost marshal said that the plane had been circling Holyoke for two hours before it crashed at 10:20 p. m. (EDT) last night. There was no explanation of its difficulty, though it lost altitude steadily while circling the city.

He said an explosion followed the crash, and another came about ten minutes later.

He said that the B-17, a converted bomber, had crashed 200 yards below the summit of Mt. Tom. The mountain is 1,200 feet above sea level.

O'Neil said a jacket found near the scattered debris and wreckage was marked "air sea rescue." Police also found several parachutes.

In New York, the Navy Air Rescue Service said the bomber had been en route from Gander, Newfoundland, to Westover Field, Mass., when it crashed and burned.

O'Neil reported the plane was "still burning fiercely" when the first policemen arrived at the scene and they were unable to get close for some time.

Truman Names John L. Stuart To Chinese Post

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — President Truman named John Leighton Stuart, a 70-year-old Presbyterian missionary and educator, to be ambassador to China today, but even before the Senate received the nomination tough new problems were piling up on the China scene.

UNRRA Director Fiorello La Guardia announced suspension of all shipments of supplies except emergency foods to China after receiving a protest from more than half the UNRRA staff members in China that goods were not reaching the right people, that ports were jammed with materials and that political" use of relief supplies was being charged.

Shipment Is Halted

LaGuardia's drastic action halted the shipment to China of a vast quantity of materials worth hundreds of millions of dollars and ranging from textiles and clothing to fertilizers, farm machinery, fishing boats, trucks, locomotives and steel rails.

A statement by UNRRA headquarters said LaGuardia had warned Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek three days ago that he would take such action if the ports were not cleared of relief supplies already delivered.

While La Guardia made no mention of political charges, the whole situation was regarded by officials here as reflecting China's increased difficulty in undertaking even basic rehabilitation without unity between the Nationalist faction by Chiang and the Communists in the north.

This in turn seemed to set the stage for the appointment of Stuart, a diplomatic dark horse, whose nomination came as a surprise to those authorities here who had expected for weeks that the post would go instead to Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer. The latter served during the

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Republican candidates and party spokesmen from all over Maryland met here today to set in motion their campaign machinery for the fall elections.

Their sights are set on winning both a United States Senate seat and the governorship — something they've never before done at the same time.

Today's meeting was an invitation affair in which 40 party leaders met as an informal committee to talk about plans and hash over prospective platform declarations to be considered at the party's nominating convention at the Lord Baltimore hotel here July 22.

The leaders were called in by Enos S. Stockbridge, who is to be chairman of the convention.

Main tasks before the convention are adoption of the party's campaign platform and the naming of a chairman for the Republican state committee.

It also will formalize the nomniations of Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, Baltimore, as candidate for governor, D. John Markey, Frederick, for the Senate, and the other party standard bearers who got the nod from the voters in the June 24 primaries.

Bloom Asks House Pass British Bill

Says $3,750,000,000 Loan Has Nothing To Do With Jew Problem

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House Foreign Affairs committee appealed to the house today to approve the $3,750,000,000 British loan, declaring "this is not a Jewish question. It has nothing to do with the Jewish question in Palestine."

"I'm voting as an American and not as a Jew," he declared. "I intend to vote for the British loan."

Has Statement Read

In a move designed to offset possible loss of house votes for the loan, because of British handling of the Jewish problem, Bloom had the house clerk read a statement by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, a leader of the Zionist movement. Wise said:

"Whatever be the wrong doing of the British government in Palestine cannot alter my conviction that the British loan is imperatively needed.

"I shall not permit my abundantly justified indignation against the Palestine government and its lawless practices to change the fact of my support, as an American, of the British loan. The issue should be decided solely on its own merits."

Bloom described actions of the British on the Jewish question as "stupid," stressing particularly refusal by the British of a visa for Wise to enter Palestine.

Leaders Predict Passage

Both Democratic and Republican house leaders predicted privately that the loan will be approved, although probably by a narrow margin.

Supporters of the credit greeted with satisfaction the defeat of Senator Henrik Shipstead, foe of the loan, by Gov. Edward J. Thye in the Minnesota Republican primary. Rep. Buffett (R-Neb), a leader of the loan opposition, told reporters, however, that he doubted the Minnesota result would change any house votes.

Eugene Meyer, president of the International Bank, issued a statement meanwhile declaring that the loan "is a vital part of a greater plan in which the monetary fund, the bank and other organizations also were to play their parts. The loan is necessary if Great Britain is promptly to be restored to function as an economic base for expanding world trade and economic stability."

The second day of house debate brought assertion that the loan might sow the seeds of another war, and that Britain and America must hang together or hang separately.

Shipstead Loses To Governor Thye In Senate Race

SALT LAKE CITY, July 9 (AP) — Apparently headed for renomination, Rep. Walter Granger (D) polled 756 votes to 152 for Edward McPolin in unofficial returns from 45 of Utah's 876 precincts tonight. The contest is the hottest in the Utah primary.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Political Reporter

Washington and Utah picked nominees for the United States Senate and House yesterday (Tuesday) in climaxing comparatively dull campaigns.

Meanwhile, Harold E. Stassen claimed a "decisive victory for progressive republican policies" in Gov. Edward J. Thye's thumping defeat of the veteran senator Henrik Shipstead in Minnesota.

Reaction among Shipstead's senatorial colleagues varied. Senator Ball (R-Minn) said the results showed Minnesotans favor "international co-operation for peace and a sound liberal program at home," and predicted Thye would win in November.

Poultry, Egg, Meat Ceiling Is Outlawed

Senate Votes 40 To 26 To Eliminate Products' Price Control

TRUMAN EXPECTED TO VETO ACTION

Barkley Presses For Test Vote; O'Daniel Threatens Filibuster

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—The administration suffered a stunning reverse in the OPA battle tonight when the Senate voted, 49 to 26, to outlaw any future price ceilings on meat, poultry, eggs and foods made from them.

This action tore big holes in the pending compromise bill to revive OPA in modifed form for one year. Many senators predicted that if the action sticks, President Truman will veto the OPA revival bill, just as he did an extension measure passed before OPA expired June 30.

The prohibitions against the ceilings on meats and the other foods was offered by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) and was backed by a majority of the Republicans and some Democrats.

Previously the Senate had voted down, 51 to 25, another amendment by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla) to exempt livestock and poultry and their raw byproducts from future price controls.

O'Daniel Threatens Filibuster

Thomas had offered this as a substitute for the Wherry amendment, later adopted.

The administration leaders' woes were just beginning. Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex), inveterate foe of OPA, made a move to bury the agency permanently by offering the controversial fair employment practices legislation as an amendment to the pending price control revival measure.

Every effort heretofore to pass an FEPC bill has brought a filibuster from southern senators and O'Daniel openly was bidding for another one.

"I'm against FEPC," the Texan told the Senate, "but like OPA it's a bad bill. I don't see why we don't have both of them in the same bag." He added that both are "stinking things."

The parlimentary situation was such that O'Daniel could not ask for an immediate vote upon the FEPC amendment. He promised to call it up later and told the Senate that he planned to talk "as long as God gives me breath to delay a final vote on this bill."

O'Daniel, asking help of other senators in his delaying tactics, said they had material enough to "talk this to death" even if it took a year.

He recalled that similar tactics had prevented a vote on a permanent FEPC and said that is why he now offered it.

With O'Daniel's filibuster threat a problem to be met later, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) pressed for an initial test vote on price controls for meat and poultry. The debate was enlivened by charges that the OPA has aimed illegal pro-

Mayor McKeldin Criticizes Police Handling Of Century Club Holdup

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—A daring daylight robbery, carried out in gangland style by four gunmen, was described today in an eye-witness account of the July 4 "stick-up" of the Century Athletic Club, just a block away from police headquarters.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin tonight issued a statement criticizing the police department for its handling of the case.

Citing stories that circulated on the streets right after the robbery, McKeldin said he was "shocked" that the police knew nothing about it for several hours and did not confirm it until 72 hours later, when "the governor of the state began giving some directions to the police officials."

Police commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson said that "there has been nothing wrong with police handling of this case," when asked to comment on the mayor's statement.

He said the police department would "welcome the assistance of the FBI" and that he had conferred with Fred Hallford, special agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI office, about the case on Monday.

The eye-witness account was that of Lou Fisher, fight promoter and president of the club, patronized by the sporting fraternity and located above an Italian restaurant on East Baltimore street.

Fisher's story was contained in a report made to Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson by Inspector William J. Forrest. It was the first official version made public of the hold-up, which had set many wild rumors in circulation.

Can Identify Men

Forrest said Fisher had described "and can identify" the four-hold-up men, for whom a 21-state police alarm was broadcast Sunday. The men were said to have escaped in a

Plant Employe Saves Life By Accurate Can Pitching

MALDEN, Mass., July 9 (AP) — George Ross, 46-year-old engineer, was a winning pitcher tonight.

Trapped thigh-deep by the grinding rollers of a conveyor belt, Ross, alone in a factory, early today fought off pain for a time he doesn't remember to make 30 throws for his life.

The thirtieth throw—a tin can aimed like the others at a push-button electric wall switch six feet away—scored a bullseye, shutting off the power and stopping the rollers.

Malden hospital authorities reported Ross as "comfortable' tonight and said he had a good chance of recovery without amputation.

Ross' wife, Laura, said she talked to George "just for a minute" at the hospital.

"He said he thought he got caught about 3 o'clock but he fainted and doesn't remember."

Police Sergt. William Butler said his detail found Ross, with the conveyor stopped and yelling for help, about 5:25 a. m. (EDT) on the third floor of the Potter Drug Chemical Company.

Dumped around him, Butler said, were the cans spilled from the conveyor belt which Ross had cut through with a jacknife in trying to free his mangled legs.

Butler said the engineer had twisted to support himself with one hand on the floor while with the other he hurled tin cans in his miss and try-again-for-life pitching.

It was not determined how Ross was dragged into the machine, recently installed to move objects from floor to floor of the plant.

Butler said police were called by a neighbor who heard Ross' shouts but was unable to get into the factory.

Rescuers worked for a half hour to free Ross, Butler said, and the engineer smoked a cigaret and directed the work.

Special Session To Enact State Rent Legislation Asked By Doub

BALTIMORE, July 9. (AP)—George Cochran Doub, Republican candidate for attorney general, urged Governor O'Conor today to call a special session of the general assembly to enact state rent-control legislation "without further delay."

In a letter to the governor, he said the establishment of advisory fair-rent committees without enforcement powers would not "meet the emergency."

He said that "as the Republican candidate for attorney general, I wish to point out that it is of paramount importance that a rent-control law be adopted promptly in the state of Maryland.

"The housing situation in Baltimore and other cities of the state is so critical that an emergency system of state rent control to prevent unfair increases in rent and the distress which will occur in the case of wholesale evictions is essential."

Saying he did not believe there would be "any serious question as to the constitutionality" of such emergency legislation, Doub added:

"As long ago as February, 1946, when the possibility that congress might not extend the OPA became the subject of discussion, the Citizens' Planning and Housing committee urged you to have ready in case of emergency a system of state rent control. Now that the OPA no longer exists, there is no justification for the failure of the state government to act."

O'Conor said yesterday that he had been advised a state rent-control act, either by legislation of constitutional amendment, was legally possible.

He indicated he would call a special session of the legislature if, in his opinion, it became necessary, but expressed hope that federal control soon would be restored.

THE COMMON MOMENT AS THE ONLY PEACE

What an uproar we are making about peace!

Every broadcast, every news column, tells of the beauty and necessity of peace. Books by the thousand give exact directions on how to find peace. Letters by the million bewail their writers' lack of it. Pulpits pour forth a continuous thunder on the subject. Amidst all this racket we scurry back and forth like bewildered bugs searching and struggling furiously to find this crowning miracle which alone can give meaning and contentment to our lives. And failing, always.

These are the maddest years in human history. One frantic plea swells every throat, regardless of color, position, race or creed . . . "Peace! Give us peace or we die!" Back of all our fear and violence, our strikes and threats, our domestic turmoil and international conferences there runs that one desire—"Give us peace!"

Yes, I'll admit that as a columnist I'm one of the worst offenders myself. Heaven only knows how many miles of copy I've written on the subject or what mountains of advice I've poured forth. Yet I myself am not at peace. I search and struggle just as madly as the rest. My life is one long effort to find this supreme treasure. But still I live in disorder and discontent even though I have known the rules of peace since my childhood — even though I have felt Peace touching me as closely and as tenderly as my mother's hand.

Strange, how our actual memories of peace differ from our inflated expectations. We have developed such dizzy visions of a serene and harmonious existence that we expect it to arrive with all the fanfare of a three ring circus. Yet, as I look back on the few rare times when I really was at peace, there was no great commotion, no spectacular display to mark it as different from the rest of life.

I remember riding with my father along a dusty country road. On one side of us lay the fathomless blue of the bay, set in its fringe of autumn tinted leaves, whispering, murmuring, throbbing with the power of its surging tides. And on the other side spread the hills, ruddy as beaten gold, splotched with the dark, twisted masses of live oaks.

A quiet country road . . . murmuring water and golden sod. A father and little girl plodding silently along without words. Nearly 60 years ago, and yet that memory lives — still feeds and warms me and gives me vigor to go on. I do not know how long it lasted—maybe a minute, maybe 30. But for that instant everything was right. Everything had meaning and design. I was in the place where I belonged. I was at peace.

There are other memories too, all as simple as that. I remember digging in his play yard with my little son, and the sound of his laughter comes down through all the years like little bells. Just that—the sound of a baby's laugh — but by some magic all the doubt and fear and ugliness were wiped away and he and I were caught up in one pealing chime of peace.

Other memories. Common things. Shopping in the market. Feeling the crisp, crackling crunch of fresh cabbage. . . . breathing the spiced fragrance of the early apples, the newly sliced bacon and bread. . .a moment on the beach before the sun rose when the flooding light turned all the spindrift into shattered gold . . . a night and one great star and a wolf's snarl from off a cattle trail.

Such little things. One hardly noticed them at the time. One hardly realized that for a second everything had changed. . .everything was perfect and at peace.

And now the world seems utterly insane. Each moment shows us some new plan for capturing that long lost peace. But I no longer try to capture peace. I know I'll never find it—not that way. Never will it arrive with program precision or pomp and pageantry. You can't plan peace. You can't enforce it or discover it. You can only find it in one way—by living it. Living it in the common, quiet moments when you put all questioning away and hear, for an instant, the music of a baby's laugh. . . feel the homely texture of good fruit and bread. . . the warmth of love that needs no words or vows. Just by living in the common moment, in the simple chore—that is the only peace

THE COMMON MOMENT AS THE ONLY PEACE

What an uproar we are making about peace!

Every broadcast, every news column, tells of the beauty and necessity of peace. Books by the thousand give exact directions on how to find peace. Letters by the million bewail their writers' lack of it. Pulpits pour forth a continuous thunder on the subject. Amidst all this racket we scurry back and forth like bewildered bugs searching and struggling furiously to find this crowning miracle which alone can give meaning and contentment to our lives. And failing, always.

These are the maddest years in human history. One frantic plea swells every throat, regardless of color, position, race or creed . . . "Peace! Give us peace or we die!" Back of all our fear and violence, our strikes and threats, our domestic turmoil and international conferences there runs that one desire—"Give us peace!"

Yes, I'll admit that as a columnist I'm one of the worst offenders myself. Heaven only knows how many miles of copy I've written on the subject or what mountains of advice I've poured forth. Yet I myself am not at peace. I search and struggle just as madly as the rest. My life is one long effort to find this supreme treasure. But still I live in disorder and discontent even though I have known the rules of peace since my childhood — even though I have felt Peace touching me as closely and as tenderly as my mother's hand.

Strange, how our actual memories of peace differ from our inflated expectations. We have developed such dizzy visions of a serene and harmonious existence that we expect it to arrive with all the fanfare of a three ring circus. Yet, as I look back on the few rare times when I really was at peace, there was no great commotion, no spectacular display to mark it as different from the rest of life.

I remember riding with my father along a dusty country road. On one side of us lay the fathomless blue of the bay, set in its fringe of autumn tinted leaves, whispering, murmuring, throbbing with the power of its surging tides. And on the other side spread the hills, ruddy as beaten gold, splotched with the dark, twisted masses of live oaks.

A quiet country road . . . murmuring water and golden sod. A father and little girl plodding silently along without words. Nearly 60 years ago, and yet that memory lives — still feeds and warms me and gives me vigor to go on. I do not know how long it lasted—maybe a minute, maybe 30. But for that instant everything was right. Everything had meaning and design. I was in the place where I belonged. I was at peace.

There are other memories too, all as simple as that. I remember digging in his play yard with my little son, and the sound of his laughter comes down through all the years like little bells. Just that—the sound of a baby's laugh — but by some magic all the doubt and fear and ugliness were wiped away and he and I were caught up in one pealing chime of peace.

Other memories. Common things. Shopping in the market. Feeling the crisp, crackling crunch of fresh cabbage. . . breathing the spiced fragrance of the early apples, the newly sliced bacon and bread. . .a moment on the beach before the sun rose when the flooding light turned all the spindrift into shattered gold . . . a night and one great star and a wolf's snarl from off a cattle trail.

Such little things. One hardly noticed them at the time. One hardly realized that for a second everything had changed. . .everything was perfect and at peace.

And now the world seems utterly insane. Each moment shows us some new plan for capturing that long lost peace. But I no longer try to capture peace. I know I'll never find it—not that way. Never will it arrive with program precision or pomp and pageantry. You can't plan peace. You can't enforce it or discover it. You can only find it in one way—by living it. Living it in the common, quiet moments when you put all questioning away and hear, for an instant, the music of a baby's laugh. . . feel the homely texture of good fruit and bread. . . the warmth of love that needs no words or vows. Just by living in the common moment, in the simple chore—that is the only peace

AVC Members Will Stage Demonstration Against Landlords

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Landlords will be the first targets of a series of demonstrations planned by Baltimore members of the American Veterans Committee in protest against inflationary tendencies.

Officials of Baltimore Chapter No. 1, AVC, announced after a meeting last night they had mapped a campaign to organize public indignation against "the first phase of runaway inflation."

Spokesmen for the group of World War II veterans said they had been keeping a record of rent-gouging and food-profiteering cases reported here since the lapse of OPA.

The first demonstration, set for Saturday afternoon, would be aimed at landlords, they said, because of the number of rent increases reported in the city.

Herbert L. Fedder, AVC chairman, said a picket line would form at the home of a tenant who claimed he had received unfair treatment from his landlord.

Similar demonstrations, he said, would be staged against stores, markets and other establishments.

David Anderson, 10, wanted to be big and strong "like Joe Louis." So he took what he thought were four vitamin pills. But soon he began to feel less like Louis and more like the fellows Louis fights. He was rushed to a Chicago hospital to recover from the kayo effects of sleeping tablets.

American Policy In Japan Stand Up

There is one part of the world where American foreign policy, supported by occupation forces, is standing up in a manner to reflect greatest credit on the nation. That is in Japan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has won out once more in an undercover dispute with the Far Eastern Commission, an eleven-man body set up at the instance of Russia to act as overseer of this nation's administration of Japan.

The argument this time was over the matter of shipping foodstuffs to the Japs from this country to avert famine. The commission, sparked by the Russian members, took the position that the amount of food it was proposed to send the Japs was in excess of their requirements, especially by comparison with the needs of some Allied and liberated peoples.

Every American will be in sympathy with the feeling that certainly the Japs are entitled to no preferential treatment over other hungry populations, but the significant thing was that, in its final action, the commission decided to leave determination of the Jap need in MacArthur's hands.

A few weeks ago the American administrator had a tiff with the commission because it was demanded by the Russians that he advise the commission two weeks in advance of any administrative step he intended taking. The general advised the commission curtly that he would advise its members forty-eight hours in advance, which was another way of saying such advices would be furnished after it was too late for anybody to offer effective objection.

Americans are naturally more jealous of their country's place of dominance in Jap affairs than anywhere else on the globe, for the reason that they feel American forces won the Pacific War single-handed. The principal participation of Russia in the Far Eastern conflict, for instance, was in seizing all the Jap heavy machinery and industrial installations in Manchuria, after the war was over, as "reparations."

Zealousness that MacArthur shall be given a free hand is not based alone on the feeling that the occupation of Japan is America's show. Americans believe that the general is carrying on one of the most important and significant experiments in the demilitarizing and civilizing of a large population that has ever been undertaken in history. America has no axe to grind, no special ideology to sell, but this country does not intend to let the reds take over control either now or later.

It is for this reason that every time MacArthur makes it clear to the Far Eastern Commission that he is running the program in Japan, Americans feel like releasing a mighty cheer.

Bridal couples who dread dodging merry missiles after the ceremony should wed in the Naval Academy chapel at Annapolis. The admirals won't allow any one to throw rice but say it's okay to toss old shoes. That reduces the pitching to zero. Imagine any one throwing away a shoe.

City Should Wage War On Ragweed

Cumberland could well take a lesson from Cincinnati which is showing the rest of the country the only practical way to rid a large town and its environs of hay-fever by waging an open war on ragweed, principal cause of this obnoxious Summer and Fall malady.

An active anti-weed committee is backing up Cincinnati's weed ordinance which requires that all weeds be kept to within a height of ten inches. The entire Ohio city is being told what ragweed looks like, how it causes hay-fever, its most dangerous period, and the best method of destroying it. Ragweed is an annual and can be destroyed by cutting before pollination or seeding, thus preventing the weed from coming up again the following season. The city not only demands that controls be exercised by homeowners with lawns and gardens within the city, but it is also going out after the weed in its parks and other amusement areas where there is vegetation.

While there are no records to show how many of Cumberland's citizens are affected each year by hay-fever it is believed several thousand are victims to some degree of the malady. Much relief could be brought about by a campaign to destroy the source of the ailment through the use of newly developed weed-killing chemicals before the ragweed pollen reaches its infectious stage, because one large ragweed plant produces eight billion grains of pollen every five hours which is carried to its victims through the air.

Vacant lots, over-grown by weeds of every type, are seasonable sight in Cumberland, especially if lots are owned by persons who live apart from them. Either they should be required through notices from the city health department to keep the weeds cut down or the city could spray them away at the expense of the property owner.

It almost looks as though the Russian envoy is beginning to substitute his political fence for a hedge.

Labor-Capital Tifts Hastening New Day

Dr. W. B. Burnett, director of the University of Wichita's Foundation for Industrial Research, declares that labor and management troubles are hastening scientific and chemical developments. Producers are bending every effort to turn out goods, machines and wares with a minimum of muscular labor. Reluctance of labor to accept current wage scale and conditions, the most favorable in the history of the world, is forcing the issue.

Chemists figure largely in the evolution of industry. They, too, are developing new processes and short cuts in old ones. Everywhere emphasis is being placed on larger volume and higher-test production. The day will never come when a self-feeder will run iron ore into one end of a factory to emerge at the other a finished automobile solely through mechanical and chemical treatments, but fewer and fewer hands will touch the machinery on the parts being fabricated, in continuation of a well recognized trend.

Russia's arguments over atomic control are easy to understand. She couldn't split the atom so now Gromyko splits hairs.

Dinosaur And Automobile Tracks

Of all the New England dealers in antiques, Carlton Nash of North Hadley, Mass., trades in the oldest specimens. He sells dinosaur tracks, fossil footprints made by great reptiles supposed to have lived ages ago. His curious occupation must be the envy of businessmen bedeviled by government regulation, but it has its faults. As he himself says, stock is out of production. There just aren't any dinosaurs making tracks these days.

Mr. Nash, who studied geology at Amherst College, and discovered the rich deposit of fossils in the foothills of the Mt. Holyoke Range, near his home, has uncovered more than 2,000 prints since 1939, most of which he has sold to collectors and householders. They are used for ashtrays, doorstops, paperweights and in rock gardens and flagstone walks. Prices listed range from $5.75 for a nine-inch track to $1,250 for a long panel of seven huge footprints.

One footprint he found is 23 inches long. He believes the deposit was once a dinosaur waterhole and that the tracks petrified in iron-bearing clay, sinking under newer soil layers, to come to the top again through volcanic action and erosion.

The story of Mr. Nash is interesting not only because of his own demonstration of initiative and enterprise, but because of the speculation it inspires with regard to the dim future, thousands and thousands of years after the atomic war. It is said that the Arctic dwellers are the only people in the world thoroughly adapted to their environment. In a post-atomic war age, it is probable that those peoples not so adapted would perish.

By the time the Arctic dwellers had spread over the globe and had reached the point in civilization comparable to that prevailing in Europe a few centuries ago, there might be a rebirth of interest in geology and archaeology. Perhaps some enterprising Eskimo of that time will be selling auto tracks of the 20th century, found under rock deposits in Pennsylvania.

Honeysuckle One Of Major Sensory Delights

You needn't be a bumblebee to appreciate honeysuckle — but it might help. Then you can taste it as well as see and smell it. You can taste it, of course, if you still have small-boy instincts and know how to get at the nectar sac; but most of us are content to revel in its fragrance.

For honeysuckle is one of the major sensory delights among the less ostentatious of summer's roadside flowers. All it asks is a hospitable rootbed and its share of rain and sun. Give it a fence to climb on and it waves its creamy blossoms at every passer-by. Give it a fence-row of bushes and it leaps right over their heads with its own sweet display. On a bank it sprawls eagerly in all directions. Of course, it is the honeysuckle vine, not the bush, that we are speaking of, the humble twiner full of fragrant blossoms that perfume the countryside from mid-June till mid-July.

Look closely at the flowers and you find that they are eccentric trumpets with bi-petaled lips. One petal is little more than a narrow strap; but the other is broad and four-lobed. In fact, the larger petal might serve as pattern for a small white glove for one of Disney's four-fingered gnomes. And the long, slender stamens are like a tuft of white gnomish hair.

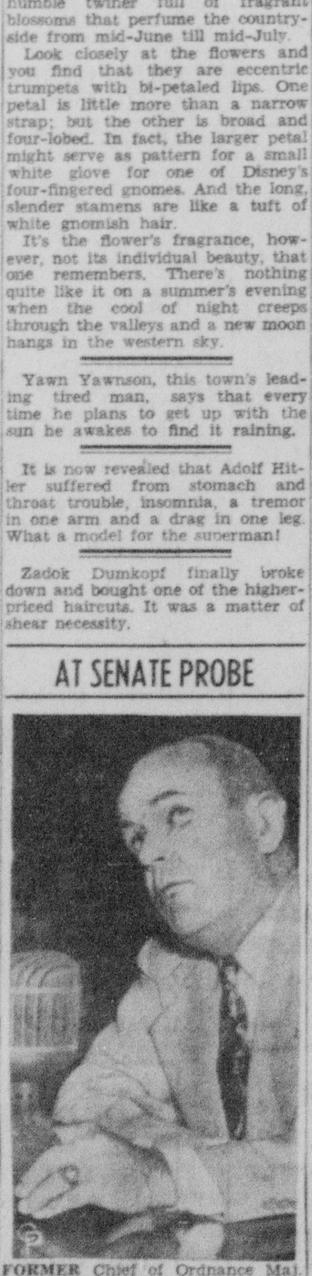

It's the flower's fragrance, however, not its individual beauty, that one remembers. There's nothing quite like it on a summer's evening when the cool of night creeps through the valleys and a new moon hangs in the western sky.

Yawn Yawnson, this town's leading tired man, says that every time he plans to get up with the sun he awakes to find it raining.

It is now revealed that Adolf Hitler suffered from stomach and throat trouble, insomnia, a tremor in one arm and a drag in one leg. What a model for the superman!

Zadok Dumkopf finally broke down and bought one of the higher-priced haircuts. It was a matter of shear necessity.

AT SENATE PROBE

FORMER Chief of Ordnance Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell is pictured as he testified in Washington before the Senate War Investigating Committee which is probing munitions profits. He said he "got hot under the collar" because Rep. Andrew J. May (D.-Ky.) was using his position in an "insistent" way in regard to contracts with a group of Illinois companies.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 10—Admiral Nimitz is trying to hush it up, but a hot row has broken out in the Navy's chaplain division over alleged discrimination against chaplains with combat records, some of whom have been denied admission into the regular Navy and others transferred to minor posts.

Four well-known chaplains already have resigned as a result of the dispute. They are:

Captain William A. McGuire, Catholic chaplain of the 11th naval district at San Diego—a 29-year naval veteran who served as fleet chaplain at Pearl Harbor at the outbreak of the war.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, a Presbyterian, former All-America football star at Washington-Jefferson College and one of the most popular chaplains in the navy.

Capt. William W. Edel, a Methodist, who also chalked up a fine record as a combat chaplain.

Capt. Raymond Drinan, a Catholic, former chaplain of the battle-scarred airplane carrier Enterprise.

In addition to the claim of combat chaplains that they are being relegated to minor roles while their non-combat colleagues get the top commands, many are also sore over the Navy's failure to crack down on prostitution in Japan. A number of Protestant and Catholic chaplains who served in the Pacific contend that the Navy is abetting the growth of prostitution in Tokyo by an indifferent policy in regard to the Yoshiwaras.

These chaplains further charge that those who have fought prostitution in Tokyo have been disciplined for their efforts — among them, Comdr. O. B. Cook, who was transferred from Tokyo to Guam after speaking out about the Geisha houses.

Commander Cook soon will resign and his resignation probably will be followed by that of another well-known combat chaplain, Capt. Maurice Sheehy of Washington, D. C., a naval reservist with five Battle stars, who served on the Saratoga.

Inside reason why Speaker Sam Rayburn took the unusual step of warning members against inserting articles offensive to colleagues in the Congressional Record was Jim Farley. The former Democratic chairman, who doesn't want Senator Jim Mead to be governor of New York, has his friends working overtime for him.

Farley has been sending newspaper articles to congressional friends for insertion in the Congressional Record, some in praise of himself. Once in the Record they could be reprinted and mailed in franked envelopes to New York voters.

Last month, Farley's material for the Record became stronger. Insertions critical of and even insulting to Senator Mead were made by Representatives Doughton and Weaver of North Carolina, and Frank Boykin of Alabama. Boykin, now seeking the nomination for Governor Foxx of that state, would doubtless resent outside interference in Alabama politics, but he didn't seem to mind interfering in New York.

The Boykin piece, written by reactionary George Sokolsky of the New York Sun, declares that "Jim Mead is just a pliant politician who wants more — that and nothing more."

It's a nasty campaign Farley is carrying on—and, although they don't know it, the nation's taxpayers are helping to pay for it.

Note—There will be no mailing of the article put in the Record by lame-duck Representative Zebulon Weaver of North Carolina. Weaver has told friends he did not want to make the insertion, and did so only after two letters from Farley. He said also that he would have refused even then had he read the article carefully. He says he definitely will not permit the making of reprints.

Alex Efthim, 29-year-old St. Louis war veteran, a representative of the fight inflation committee of St. Louis, recently called on Representative Ploeser of Missouri. Ploeser couldn't very well duck the meeting, because Efthim, still on terminal leave, showed up in his air corps captain's attire, replete with battle stars for the Luzon and Leyte campaigns.

"Since you are my congressman representing the St. Louis district where I live, I feel I have a right to talk to you," said the Army captain.

"Well, those reporters can't come in," responded Ploeser, pointing to some newsmen who had followed Efthim. "They'll smear me."

The war vet presented petitions signed by 40,000 St. Louisans, supporting OPA continuance.

"You're a dupe for a bunch of Reds and Fascistic elements in the CIO," howled Ploeser, as he looked at the petitions.

"Mr. Ploeser," said the war vet, "you have talked a great deal about guaranteeing the business man a fair profit. Just what have you done to guarantee the consumer a fair price?"

Ploeser began pacing the floor, sputtering at great length about government controls, "free enterprise" and "the Communistic New Deal." Finally, the man who voted down the line for the crippling OPA amendments declared:

"Son, you don't know what's going on in the country."

"On the contrary, congressman," replied Efthim, "you're the one who doesn't know what's going on—you and others who have been carrying the battle against the American consumer. You can get away with it for a while, but in the end the voters will catch up with you."

It hasn't been announced, but President Truman has decided to place the following American forces at the disposal of the new world police force:

One thousand latest-type American bombers and pursuit planes; two infantry divisions; one airborne division; one service of supply division; two battleships; two aircraft carriers; six cruisers; 18 destroyers; and six submarines.

These ship, airplanes and men will be available to go anywhere at any time at the direction of the United Nations, to put down war wherever it rears its head.

Here are some of the details of how Senator O'Daniel's son, Mike, tried to oust Wesley Brient, just returned from the Pacific, from his apartment.

Learning that Mike O'Daniel had raised the rent of another apartment in the building by $5 a month, Brient went to O'Daniel and in a friendly way told him that the $5 increase was "quite reasonable."

"Oh, that doesn't apply to you," O'Daniel replied coldly. "Your rent will be $100 instead of $67.50."

An argument ensued, during which the war vet told the son of the Texas senator:

"I hope the people wake up and chase your father out of Washington, and out of the state of Texas. I will personally contribute to the next campaign against him."

"There isn't much you can do," shot back young O'Daniel. "We're in the driver's seat now. Don't you think we know what we were doing when we bought this place?"

"I'm sure you did," retorted Brient. "In fact, you probably had some advance information."

The next day, Brient received his eviction order by registered mail.

Note—Brient's family was the oldest tenant in O'Daniel's building. Brient himself was back from the Pacific just 12 days when he received his "get out" notice.

Hiders

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I wonder if we are not all of us given to hiding—hiding our emotions, our love, our impulses, and our inward joys?

I have thousands of books, and a very interesting collection of works of art that I have been gathering for over half my lifetime. Too many of each have been hidden away where they could not spread their beauty and their worth. Recently I have overhauled my library. Books have been brought to the light that have known darkness for years. Now they all look out at me from their shelves, with invisible smiles that are an inspiring sight.

Hundreds of these books I have presented to great educational institutions where they will become an asset to scholars and to those who have loved the things that I have loved. And I feel happier, healthier, and better in every way.

Everyone of us owes someone else something. And the sooner we pay up this obligation, to the best of our ability, the better for us, others, and even the world at large! We must not hide our lights under a bushel. We are blessed that we, in turn, may bless.

You have read what Emerson has said, that if we neglect to utter a truth, or enact a deed, we are sure to note someone else carrying off the honors—or words to the same effect. But there is immortal truth packed into this thought.

Every time we repress a noble thought, or fail to put it to work, we shrink. Not only that—we rob ourselves of inward joy. Why should we fear to exhibit our finest sentiments through frank and honest expression? We were born into this world to unfold, to radiate influence, and to be felt by all with whom we come in contact.

That woman, in the Bible story, who hid her only talent, was later rebuked, losing even the talent that she was given, simply because she did nothing with it—hiding it from activity and growth. We may perhaps be commended for hiding our sorrows, our disappointments, and our human hurts, but let us not allow our joys to know anything about the fact!

RED RIDING HOOD ISN'T EXACTLY HELPLESS

British Loan Of Direct Concern To American Factories And Plants

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Several weeks ago when the Senate passed the bill whereby the United States is to grant a credit of $3,750,000,000 to Great Britain, there was a comfortable majority in the House of Representatives for adoption of the measure.

Today the situation is doubtful. Delaying tactics which always tend to weaken a majority, have been used. But there is every reason to believe that Foreign Minister Bevin's ill-advised remarks in a recent speech at the British Labor Party gathering have been utilized effectively to drum up opposition.

There is always an antipathy in some quarters in Congress toward anything that favors Great Britain. The members with constituencies of Irish origin have not eliminated their anti-British feeling and when, in such heavily populated areas as New York City, this is combined with the Palestine issue, the congressmen who would like to vote against the loan anyway find plenty of excuse.

Mistaken Theory

Another source of opposition comes from the conservative groups who, mistaken though the theory is, are convinced that by passing the British loan they are aiding a socialistic government to kill off private enterprise in the major industries of England.

Then there is the appeal on "economy" grounds, which always gathers some strength—the argument being that America with her large public debt cannot afford to grant huge credits.

The small margin between success or failure of the British loan bill in the House has made the administration nervous about the outcome. This accounts for the letter from President Truman and the message from Secretary of State Byrnes at Paris urging the House to pass the bill.

Unfortunately, the administration suffers by the absence of Mr. Byrnes, who no doubt could persuade many House members in person how important it is to American policy abroad to have the British loan ratified.

For the truth is that the British loan is not a matter that can be disposed of by prejudice or bias. Nor should the larger policies of world cooperation and economic stability be permanently injured by the thoughtless remark of a British foreign minister or the wabbling of the present British cabinet on its pledges in connection with the Anglo-American committee report on Palestine.

Of Direct Concern To Americans

Actually the British loan is of direct concern to American factories and plants which soon will face widespread unemployment unless the markets of the world can absorb the surplus production of American industry. Inevitably the present shortages will be eliminated and supply will catch up with demand. American producers will not be able to continue to pay high wages, or rather to continue high employment levels, unless a substantial amount of production can move into world trade.

If the British loan fails, an entirely different and doubtless anti-U. S. system of distribution of the world's goods will develop instead of that which is contemplated under the British-American agreement. At present a vast area of the earth's surface is inaccessible to American goods because the British in that area—known as the "sterling area"—control foreign exchange. Under the new agreement, if passed by congress, a large number of countries will be opened to dollar exchange.

Has Reciprocal Advantages

In a sense, therefore, the loan agreement has advantages of a reciprocal nature. Great Britain has agreed to remove exchange restrictions in the areas she controls, and the United States has agreed to advance $3,750,000,000, largely as a dollar credit to enable Britain to carry out her part of the agreement.

The theory that America is lending money to Britain merely to finance socialistic enterprises inside Britain is fallacious. The loan has nothing to do with Britain's internal economy and is concerned wholly with external operations in currency exchange. The agreement really should have been labelled as "a plan to promote world trade, to maintain high employment levels in the United States and to help ward off a depression when supply balances demand in the domestic market."

"IT SAYS HERE" By Bob Hope

I've got my trusty candid camera with me and I'm making a photographic history of my tour . . . it gives me great satisfaction to be able to take a few shots in retaliation. I'm having no trouble at all getting the local girls to pose for me. You'd be surprised at the wonderful action shots you can get when you yell, "Nylons here!" The citizens are really cooperative. When I tell them to look at me and smile . . . they burst out laughing. I'm having my troubles, though. I had to do my developing in the broom closet of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, and when I got excited over a particularly good picture and yelled, "What a development!" . . . the house detective broke down the door and ruined my negative. But I did manage to get a wonderful shot of the San Francisco police force in action. It turned out very well considering I was running at the time. My album will be worth plenty some day and already people are bidding for it. Yessir, I've got the only camera lens in the country that can fit in a keyhole. Years from now I'll be able to look back and recall with fond memory all the towns I visited . . . right now, I haven't time to look back.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Washington, July 9. (CP)—Diplomatic observers are following closely the United States battle to get around, over or through the so-called "iron curtain" Russia is accused of drawing around her border countries. The first successful step was taken recently in regard to Hungary when it was agreed that $32,000,000 in Hungarian gold, looted by the Germans and recaptured by General Patton, be made available to the Hungarian government.

Whether United States aid to Hungary will help to persuade Romania, Bulgaria and Poland to incline more to the western democracies remains to be seen.

—o—

Top government officials knew several days before the scheduled strike deadline that the recently-threatened maritime walkout of more than 200,000 CIO workers would not come off.

One of them held a secret powwow with Joseph Curran, burley, red-faced boss of the powerful CIO National Maritime Union, and received assurances that if the "economic" demands of the NMU members were taken care of there would be "no political strike."

That made it easy. The government, owner of most of the nation's merchant ships, promptly put forward its own wage and hour offer which Curran accepted and the ship owners had to go along with.

Curran, government negotiators and CIO President Philip Murray then went to work putting the pressure on Harry Bridges, whose longshoremen were itching for a strike.

Bridges was bitter at the end of the maritime negotiations. His longshoremen were forced to take the recommendations of a federal fact-finding board made several weeks ago and got nothing out of the maritime negotiations in Washington.

The much-heralded settlement of the dispute which led to the strike threat may be short lived.

One fact overlooked by the agreement is that Bridges' longshoremen have a contract which continues until Sept. 30, when their pact expires.

Another fact is that Bridges may touch off the fuse for another tie-up. Much depends, however, on how much power he can command in the CIO.

—o—

Meanwhile, Allied merchant marine authorities are showing an unwillingness to abandon all global shipping controls despite the fact the shipping bottleneck admittedly is a thing of the past.

The international governing body which maintained a tight grip over the worldwide shipping pool during the war, assigning ships and cargo space to some 18 member nations, was scrapped several months ago.

But a so-called "consultative council," including bigwigs of the United States Maritime commission, stepped into its shoes as an ad interim agency because leaders feared that a sudden end to all regulations would bring chaos.

Britishers Air Plight Under Present Regime

By SAMUEL PETTENGILL

With do or die courage, two groups of Britishers still fight the onrush of Socialism. Would that more Americans would emulate them! We should, for we have a "better 'ole" to lose.

Here are some bits of their salty humor:

When we're sitting around fireless grates, let us remember that we own the mines!

When we're parked with relatives and the kids are hungry, it helps a bit to know that we own the Bank of England!

And we're going to own transport, and cables, and wireless, and iron and steel. We've got so much to be thankful for!

The cotton market at Liverpool—hub of the world's trade—closed by official orders. But it was private enterprise. It simply had to go.

The Socialist Lord Mayor of Liverpool reports that her unemployed have increased 100— since closing the market. But "soaking the rich" is such tremendous fun!

"Wot—no coal?" There are over a million more civil servants than coal miners. How about their changing jobs?

Did any of our Labour Statesmen ever run a business?

Short shirts and long queues. The Government has been so busy with nationalization that it forgot about the shirts. Excuse, please!

Yes, I know the Kingsley organ. It has 60 stops. But before buying, tell me, will the "controls" limit the number I use?

We are going to make democracy safe for bureaucracy!

Within a year of complete victory we elect a government whose policy is identical with that of its defeated enemies. Shades of our great forefathers!

Every Socialist proposal can be stated in three words—Print More Money!

State Doctor, "Now just sit up in bed and sign here and here and here. And fill out this form. And get three neighbors to vouch for it. And remember the pains and penalties of perjury! Then I'll look at your tongue."

By skillful use of the British Broadcasting Company (a government monopoly) the amendment of Poland to the proposal from the Ukraine that Indonesia be made a mandate of Manchukuo keeps us from brooding upon our tiny ration of powdered egg.

Each of us proud Britons is the legal owner of 30,000 tons of unmined coal. Think of that! No private interests stand between us and our own. Parliament is in command of every nut of it. I repeat, sir, every nut!

Every brick of the house we haven't got has been zoned, rationed, allocated, prioritied, Laskied, Attleed, and planned. So perfect is the official scheme that every hod of mortar is certified under seal to be free from private profit and wholly devoted to the national interest. How happy this makes us as we double up with our cheerful relatives!

In this nightmare land of planned security none are ever employed. All are busy filling out forms!

Our quids go down the drain. Another deficit added to the debt, an our government obligations (bonds) by less and less of more and more of what we haven't got.

American Policy In Japan Stand Up

There is one part of the world where American foreign policy, supported by occupation forces, is standing up in a manner to reflect greatest credit on the nation. That is in Japan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has won out once more in an undercover dispute with the Far Eastern Commission, an eleven-man body set up at the instance of Russia to act as overseer of this nation's administration of Japan.

The argument this time was over the matter of shipping foodstuffs to the Japs from this country to avert famine. The commission, sparked by the Russian members, took the position that the amount of food it was proposed to send the Japs was in excess of their requirements, especially by comparison with the needs of some Allied and liberated peoples.

Every American will be in sympathy with the feeling that certainly the Japs are entitled to no preferential treatment over other hungry populations, but the significant thing was that, in its final action, the commission decided to leave determination of the Jap need in MacArthur's hands.

A few weeks ago the American administrator had a tiff with the commission because it was demanded by the Russians that he advise the commission two weeks in advance of any administrative step he intended taking. The general advised the commission curtly that he would advise its members forty-eight hours in advance, which was another way of saying such advices would be furnished after it was too late for anybody to offer effective objection.

Americans are naturally more jealous of their country's place of dominance in Jap affairs than anywhere else on the globe, for the reason that they feel American forces won the Pacific War single-handed. The principal participation of Russia in the Far Eastern conflict, for instance, was in seizing all the Jap heavy machinery and industrial installations in Manchuria, after the war was over, as "reparations."

Zealousness that MacArthur shall be given a free hand is not based alone on the feeling that the occupation of Japan is America's show. Americans believe that the general is carrying on one of the most important and significant experiments in the demilitarizing and civilizing of a large population that has ever been undertaken in history. America has no axe to grind, no special ideology to sell, but this country does not intend to let the reds take over control either now or later.

It is for this reason that every time MacArthur makes it clear to the Far Eastern Commission that he is running the program in Japan, Americans feel like releasing a mighty cheer.

Bridal couples who dread dodging merry missles after the ceremony should wed in the Naval Academy chapel at Annapolis. The admirals won't allow any one to throw rice but say it's okay to toss old shoes. That reduces the pitching to zero. Imagine any one throwing away a shoe.

City Should Wage War On Ragweed

Cumberland could well take a lesson from Cincinnati which is showing the rest of the country the only practical way to rid a large town and its environs of hay-fever by waging an open war on ragweed, principal cause of this obnoxious Summer and Fall malady.

An active anti-weed committee is backing up Cincinnati's weed ordinance which requires that all weeds be kept to within a height of ten inches. The entire Ohio city is being told what ragweed looks like, how it causes hay-fever, its most dangerous period, and the best method of destroying it. Ragweed is an annual and can be destroyed by cutting before pollination or seeding, thus preventing the weed from coming up again the following season. The city not only demands that controls be exercised by homeowners with lawns and gardens within the city, but it is also going out after the weed in its parks and other amusement areas where there is vegetation.

While there are no records to show how many of Cumberland's citizens are affected each year by hay-fever it is believed several thousand are victims to some degree of the malady. Much relief could be brought about by a campaign to destroy the source of the ailment through the use of newly developed weed-killing chemicals before the ragweed pollen reaches its infectious stage, because one large ragweed plant produces eight billion grains of pollen every five hours which is carried to its victims through the air.

Vacant lots, over-grown by weeds of every type, are seasonable sight in Cumberland, especially if lots are owned by persons who live apart from them. Either they should be required through notices from the city health department to keep the weeds cut down or the city could spray them away at the expense of the property owner.

It almost looks as though the Russian envoy is beginning to substitute his political fence for a hedge.

Labor-Capital Tiffs Hastening New Day

Dr. W. B. Burnett, director of the University of Wichita's Foundation for Industrial Research, declares that labor and management troubles are hastening scientific and chemical developments. Producers are bending every effort to turn out goods, machines and wares with a minimum of muscular labor. Reluctance of labor to accept current wage scale and conditions, the most favorable in the history of the world, is forcing the issue.

Chemists figure largely in the evolution of industry. They, too, are developing new processes and short cuts in old ones. Everywhere emphasis is being placed on larger volume and higher-test production. The day will never come when a self-feeder will run iron ore into one end of a factory to emerge at the other a finished automobile solely through mechanical and chemical treatments, but fewer and fewer hands will touch the machinery on the parts being fabricated, in continuation of a well recognized trend.

Russia's arguments over atomic control are easy to understand. She couldn't split the atom so now Gromyko splits hairs.

Dinosaur And Automobile Tracks

Of all the New England dealers in antiques, Carlton Nash of North Hadley, Mass., trades in the oldest specimens. He sells dinosaur tracks, fossil footprints made by great reptiles supposed to have lived ages ago. His curious occupation must be the envy of businessmen bedeviled by government regulation, but it has its faults. As he himself says, stock is out of production. There just aren't any dinosaurs making tracks these days.

Mr. Nash, who studied geology at Amherst College, and discovered the rich deposit of fossils in the foothills of the Mt. Holyoke Range, near his home, has uncovered more than 2,000 prints since 1939, most of which he has sold to collectors and householders. They are used for ashtrays, doorstops, paperweights and in rock gardens and flagstone walks. Prices listed range from $5.75 for a nine-inch track to $1,250 for a long panel of seven huge footprints.

One footprint he found is 23 inches long. He believes the deposit was once a dinosaur waterhole and that the tracks petrified in iron-bearing clay, sinking under newer soil layers, to come to the top again through volcanic action and erosion.

The story of Mr. Nash is interesting not only because of his own demonstration of initiative and enterprise, but because of the speculation it inspires with regard to the dim future, thousands and thousands of years after the atomic war. It is said that the Arctic dwellers are the only people in the world thoroughly adapted to their environment. In a post-atomic war age, it is probable that those peoples not so adapted would perish.

By the time the Arctic dwellers had spread over the globe and had reached the point in civilization comparable to that prevailing in Europe a few centuries ago, there might be a rebirth of interest in geology and archaeology. Perhaps some enterprising Eskimo of that time will be selling auto tracks of the 20th century, found under rock deposits in Pennsylvania.

Honeysuckle One Of Major Sensory Delights

You needn't be a bumblebee to appreciate honeysuckle — but it might help. Then you can taste it as well as see and smell it. You can taste it, of course, if you still have small-boy instincts and know how to get at the nectar sac; but most of us are content to revel in its fragrance.

For honeysuckle is one of the major sensory delights among the less ostentatious of summer's roadside flowers. All it asks is a hospitable rootbed and its share of rain and sun. Give it a fence to climb on and it waves its creamy blossoms at every passer-by. Give it a fence-row of bushes and it leaps right over their heads with its own sweet display. On a bank it sprawls eagerly in all directions. Of course, it is the honeysuckle vine, not the bush, that we are speaking of, the humble twiner full of fragrant blossoms that perfume the country-side from mid-June till mid-July.

Look closely at the flowers and you find that they are eccentric trumpets with bi-petaled lips. One petal is little more than a narrow strap; but the other is broad and four-lobed. In fact, the larger petal might serve as pattern for a small white glove for one of Disney's four-fingered gnomes. And the long, slender stamens are like a tuft of white gnomish hair.

It's the flower's fragrance, however, not its individual beauty, that one remembers. There's nothing quite like it on a summer's evening when the cool of night creeps through the valleys and a new moon hangs in the western sky.

Yawn Yawnson, this town's leading tired man, says that every time he plans to get up with the sun he awakes to find it raining.

It is now revealed that Adolf Hitler suffered from stomach and throat trouble, insomnia, a tremor in one arm and a drag in one leg. What a model for the superman!

Zadok Dumkopf finally broke down and bought one of the higher-priced haircuts. It was a matter of shear necessity.

AT SENATE PROBE

FORMER Chief of Ordnance Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell is pictured as he testified in Washington before the Senate War Investigating Committee which is probing munitions profits. He said he "got hot under the collar" because Rep. Andrew J. May (D.-Ky.) was using his position in an "insistent" way in regard to contracts with a group of Illinois companies.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 10—Admiral Nimitz is trying to hush it up, but a hot row has broken out in the Navy's chaplain division over alleged discrimination against chaplains with combat records, some of whom have been denied admission into the regular Navy and others transferred to minor posts.

Four well-known chaplains already have resigned as a result of the dispute. They are:

Captain William A. McGuire, Catholic chaplain of the 11th naval district at San Diego—a 29-year naval veteran who served as fleet chaplain at Pearl Harbor at the outbreak of the war.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, a Presbyterian, former All-America football star at Washington-Jefferson College and one of the most popular chaplains in the navy.

Capt. William W. Edel, a Methodist, who also chalked up a fine record as a combat chaplain.

Capt. Raymond Drinan, a Catholic, former chaplain of the battle-scarred airplane carrier Enterprise.

In addition to the claim of combat chaplains that they are being relegated to minor roles while their non-combat colleagues get the top commands, many are also sore over the Navy's failure to crack down on prostitution in Japan. A number of Protestant and Catholic chaplains who served in the Pacific contend that the Navy is abetting the growth of prostitution in Tokyo by an indifferent policy in regard to the Yoshiwaras.

These chaplains further charge that those who have fought prostitution in Tokyo have been disciplined for their efforts — among them, Comdr. O. B. Cook, who was transferred from Tokyo to Guam after speaking out about the Geisha houses.

Commander Cook soon will resign and his resignation probably will be followed by that of another well-known combat chaplain, Capt. Maurice Sheehy of Washington, D. C., a naval reservist with five Battle stars, who served on the Saratoga.

Inside reason why Speaker Sam Rayburn took the unusual step of warning members against inserting articles offensive to colleagues in the Congressional Record was Jim Farley. The former Democratic chairman, who doesn't want Senator Jim Mead to be governor of New York, has his friends working overtime for him.

Farley has been sending newspaper articles to congressional friends for insertion in the Congressional Record, some in praise of himself. Once in the Record they could be reprinted and mailed in franked envelopes to New York voters.

Last month, Farley's material for the Record became stronger. Insertions critical of and even insulting to Senator Mead were made by Representatives Doughton and Weaver of North Carolina, and Frank Boykin of Alabama. Boykin, now seeking the nomination for Governor Foxx of that state, would doubtless resent outside interference in Alabama politics, but he didn't seem to mind interfering in New York.

The Boykin piece, written by reactionary George Sokolsky of the New York Sun, declares that "Jim Mead is just a pliant politician who wants more — that and nothing more."

It's a nasty campaign Farley is carrying on—and, although they don't know it, the nation's taxpayers are helping to pay for it.

Note—There will be no mailing of the article put in the Record by lame-duck Representative Zebulon Weaver of North Carolina. Weaver has told friends he did not want to make the insertion, and did so only after two letters from Farley. He said also that he would have refused even then had he read the article carefully. He says he definitely will not permit the making of reprints.

Alex Efthim, 29-year-old St. Louis war veteran, a representative of the fight inflation committee of St. Louis, recently called on Representative Ploeser of Missouri. Ploeser couldn't very well duck the meeting, because Efthim, still on terminal leave, showed up in his air corps captain's attire, replete with battle stars for the Luzon and Leyte campaigns.

"Since you are my congressman representing the St. Louis district where I live, I feel I have a right to talk to you," said the Army captain.

"Well, those reporters can't come in," responded Ploeser, pointing to some newsmen who had followed Efthim. "They'll smear me."

The war vet presented petitions signed by 40,000 St. Louisans, supporting OPA continuance.

"You're a dupe for a bunch of Reds and Fascistic elements in the CIO," bowled Ploeser, as he looked at the petitions.

"Mr. Ploeser," said the war vet, "you have talked a great deal about guaranteeing the business man a fair profit. Just what have you done to guarantee the consumer a fair price?"

Ploeser began pacing the floor, sputtering at great length about government controls, "free enterprise" and "the Communistic New Deal." Finally, the man who voted down the line for the crippling OPA amendments declared:

"Son, you don't know what's going on in the country."

"On the contrary, congressman," replied Efthim, "you're the one who doesn't know what's going on—you and others who have been carrying the battle against the American consumer. You can get away with it for a while, but in the end the voters will catch up with you."

It hasn't been announced, but President Truman has decided to place the following American forces at the disposal of the new world police force:

One thousand latest-type American bombers and pursuit planes; two infantry divisions; one airborne division; one service of supply division; two battleships; two aircraft carriers; six cruisers; 18 destroyers; and six submarines.

These ship, airplanes and men will be available to go anywhere at any time at the direction of the United Nations, to put down war wherever it rears its head.

Here are some of the details of how Senator O'Daniel's son, Mike, tried to oust Wesley Brient, just returned from the Pacific, from his apartment.

Learning that Mike O'Daniel had raised the rent of another apartment in the building by $5 a month, Brient went to O'Daniel and in a friendly way told him that the $5 increase was "quite reasonable."

"Oh, that doesn't apply to you," O'Daniel replied coldly. "Your rent will be $100 instead of $67.50."

An argument ensued, during which the war vet told the son of the Texas senator:

"I hope the people wake up and chase your father out of Washington, and out of the state of Texas. I will personally contribute to the next campaign against him."

"There isn't much you can do," shot back young O'Daniel. "We're in the driver's seat now. Don't you think we know what we were doing when we bought this place?"

"I'm sure you did," retorted Brient. "In fact, you probably had some advance information."

The next day, Brient received his eviction order by registered mail.

Note—Brient's family was the oldest tenant in O'Daniel's building. Brient himself was back from the Pacific just 12 days when he received his "get out" notice.

Hiders

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I wonder if we are not all of us given to hiding—hiding our emotions, our love, our impulses, and our inward joys?

I have thousands of books, and a very interesting collection of works of art that I have been gathering for over half my lifetime. Too many of each have been hidden away where they could not spread their beauty and their worth. Recently I have overhauled my library. Books have been brought to the light that have known darkness for years. Now they all look out at me from their shelves, with invisible smiles that are an inspiring sight.

Hundreds of these books I have presented to great educational institutions where they will become an asset to scholars and to those who have loved the things that I have loved. And I feel happier, healthier, and better in every way.

Everyone of us owes someone else something. And the sooner we pay up this obligation, to the best of our ability, the better for us, others, and even the world at large! We must not hide our lights under a bushel. We are blessed that we, in turn, may bless.

You have read what Emerson has said, that if we neglect to utter a truth, or enact a deed, we are sure to note someone else carrying off the honors—or words to the same effect. But there is immortal truth packed into this thought.

Every time we repress a noble thought, or fail to put it to work, we shrink. Not only that—we rob ourselves of inward joy. Why should we fear to exhibit our finest sentiments through frank and honest expression? We were born into this world to unfold, to radiate influence, and to be felt by all with whom we come in contact.

That woman, in the Bible story, who hid her only talent, was later rebuked, losing even the talent that she was given, simply because she did nothing with it—hiding it from activity and growth. We may perhaps be commended for hiding our sorrows, our disappointments, and our human hurts, but let us not allow our joys to know anything about the fact!

RED RIDING HOOD ISN'T EXACTLY HELPLESS

British Loan Of Direct Concern To American Factories And Plants

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Several weeks ago when the Senate passed the bill whereby the United States is to grant a credit of $3,750,000,000 to Great Britain, there was a comfortable majority in the House of Representatives for adoption of the measure.

Today the situation is doubtful. Delaying tactics which always tend to weaken a majority, have been used. But there is every reason to believe that Foreign Minister Bevin's ill-advised remarks in a recent speech at the British Labor Party gathering have been utilized effectively to drum up opposition.

There is always an antipathy in some quarters in Congress toward anything that favors Great Britain. The members with constituencies of Irish origin have not eliminated their anti-British feeling and when, in such heavily populated areas as New York City, this is combined with the Palestine issue, the congressmen who would like to vote against the loan anyway find plenty of excuse.

Mistaken Theory

Another source of opposition comes from the conservative groups who, mistaken though the theory is, are convinced that by passing the British loan they are aiding a socialistic government to kill off private enterprise in the major industries of England.

Then there is the appeal on "economy" grounds, which always gathers some strength—the argument being that America with her large public debt cannot afford to grant huge credits.

The small margin between success or failure of the British loan bill in the House has made the administration nervous about the outcome. This accounts for the letter from President Truman and the message from Secretary of State Byrnes at Paris urging the House to pass the bill.

Unfortunately, the administration suffers by the absence of Mr. Byrnes, who no doubt could persuade many House members in person how important it is to American policy abroad to have the British loan ratified.

For the truth is that the British loan is not a matter that can be disposed of by prejudice or bias. Nor should the larger policies of world cooperation and economic stability be permanently injured by the thoughtless remark of a British foreign minister or the wabbling of the present British cabinet on its pledges in connection with the Anglo-American committee report on Palestine.

Of Direct Concern To Americans

Actually the British loan is of direct concern to American factories and plants which soon will face widespread unemployment unless the markets of the world can absorb the surplus production of American industry. Inevitably the present shortages will be eliminated and supply will catch up with demand. American producers will not be able to continue to pay high wages, or rather to continue high employment levels, unless a substantial amount of production can move into world trade.

If the British loan fails, an entirely different and doubtless anti-U. S. system of distribution of the world's goods will develop instead of that which is contemplated under the British-American agreement. At present a vast area of the earth's surface is inaccessible to American goods because the British in that area—known as the "sterling area"—control foreign exchange. Under the new agreement, if passed by congress, a large number of countries will be opened to dollar exchange.

Has Reciprocal Advantages

In a sense, therefore, the loan agreement has advantages of a reciprocal nature. Great Britain has agreed to remove exchange restrictions in the areas she controls, and the United States has agreed to advance $3,750,000,000, largely as a dollar credit to enable Britain to carry out her part of the agreement.

The theory that America is lending money to Britain merely to finance socialistic enterprises inside Britain is fallacious. The loan has nothing to do with Britain's internal economy and is concerned wholly with external operations in currency exchange. The agreement really should have been labelled as "a plan to promote world trade, to maintain high employment levels in the United States and to help ward off a depression when supply balances demand in the domestic market."

"IT SAYS HERE" By Bob Hope

I've got my trusty candid camera with me and I'm making a photographic history of my tour . . . it gives me great satisfaction to be able to take a few shots in retaliation. I'm having no trouble at all getting the local girls to pose for me. You'd be surprised at the wonderful action shots you can get when you yell, "Nylons here!" The citizens are really cooperative. When I tell them to look at me and smile . . . they burst out laughing. I'm having my troubles, though. I had to do my developing in the broom closet of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, and when I got excited over a particularly good picture and yelled, "What a development!" . . . the house detective broke down the door and ruined my negative. But I did manage to get a wonderful shot of the San Francisco police force in action. It turned out very well considering I was running at the time. My album will be worth plenty some day and already people are bidding for it. Yessir, I've got the only camera lens in the country that can fit in a keyhole. Years from now I'll be able to look back and recall with fond memory all the towns I visited . . . right now, I haven't time to look back.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Washington, July 9. (CP)—Diplomatic observers are following closely the United States battle to get around, over or through the so-called "iron curtain" Russia is accused of drawing around her border countries. The first successful step was taken recently in regard to Hungary when it was agreed that $32,000,000 in Hungarian gold, looted by the Germans and recaptured by General Patton, be made available to the Hungarian government.

Whether United States aid to Hungary will help to persuade Romania, Bulgaria and Poland to incline more to the western democracies remains to be seen.

Top government officials knew several days before the scheduled strike deadline that the recently-threatened maritime walkout of more than 200,000 CIO workers would not come off.

One of them held a secret powwow with Joseph Curran, burley, red-faced boss of the powerful CIO National Maritime Union, and received assurances that if the "economic" demands of the NMU members were taken care of there would be "no political strike."

That made it easy. The government, owner of most of the nation's merchant ships, promptly put forward its own wage and hour offer which Curran accepted and the ship owners had to go along with.

Curran, government negotiators and CIO President Philip Murray then went to work putting the pressure on Harry Bridges, whose longshoremen were itching for a strike.

Bridges was bitter at the end of the maritime negotiations. His longshoremen were forced to take the recommendations of a federal fact-finding board made several weeks ago and got nothing out of the maritime negotiations in Washington.

The much-heralded settlement of the dispute which led to the strike threat may be short lived.

One fact overlooked by the agreement is that Bridges' longshoremen have a contract which continues until Sept. 30, when their pact expires.

Another fact is that Bridges may touch off the fuse for another tie-up. Much depends, however, on how much power he can command in the CIO.

—o—

Meanwhile, Allied merchant marine authorities are showing an unwillingness to abandon all global shipping controls despite the fact the shipping bottleneck admittedly is a thing of the past.

The international governing body which maintained a tight grip over the worldwide shipping pool during the war, assigning ships and cargo space to some 18 member nations, was scrapped several months ago.

But a so-called "consultative council," including bigwigs of the United States Maritime commission, stepped into its shoes as an ad interim agency because leaders feared that a sudden end to all regulations would bring chaos.

Britishers Air Plight Under Present Regime

By SAMUEL PETTENGILL

With do or die courage, two groups of Britishers still fight the onrush of Socialism. Would that more Americans would emulate them! We should, for we have a "better 'ole" to lose.

Here are some bits of their salty humor:

When we're sitting around fireless grates, let us remember that we own the mines!

When we're parked with relatives and the kids are hungry, it helps a bit to know that we own the Bank of England!

And we're going to own transport, and cables, and wireless, and iron and steel. We've got so much to be thankful for!

The cotton market at Liverpool—hub of the world's trade—closed by official orders. But it was private enterprise. It simply had to go.

The Socialist Lord Mayor of Liverpool reports that her unemployed have increased 100— since closing the market. But "soaking the rich" is such tremendous fun!

"Wot—no coal?" There are over a million more civil servants than coal miners. How about their changing jobs?

Did any of our Labour Statesmen ever run a business?

Short shirts and long queues. The Government has been so busy with nationalization that it forgot about the shirts. Excuse, please!

Yes, I know the Kingsley organ. It has 60 stops. But before buying, tell me, will the "controls" limit the number I use?

We are going to make democracy safe for bureaucracy!

Within a year of complete victory we elect a government whose policy is identical with that of its defeated enemies. Shades of our great forefathers!

Every Socialist proposal can be stated in three words—Print More Money!

State Doctor. "Now just sit up in bed and sign here and here and here. And fill out this form. And get three neighbors to vouch for it. And remember the pains and penalties of perjury! Then I'll look at your tongue."

By skillful use of the British Broadcasting Company (a government monopoly) the amendment of Poland to the proposal from the Ukraine that Indonesia be made a mandate of Manckukuo keeps us from brooding upon our tiny ration of powdered egg.

Each of us proud Britons is the legal owner of 30,000 tons of unmined coal. Think of that! No private interests stand between us and our own. Parliament is in command of every nut of it. I repeat, sir, every nut!

Every brick of the house we haven't got has been zoned, rationed, allocated, prioritied, Laskied, Attleed, and planned. So perfect is the official scheme that every hod of mortar is certified under seal to be free from private profit and wholly devoted to the national interest. How happy this makes us as we double up with our cheerful relatives!

In this nightmare land of planned security none are ever employed. All are busy filling out forms!

Our quids go down the drain. Another deficit added to the debt, an our government obligations (bonds) by less and less of more and more of what we haven't got.

7,000 Persons Attend "At Home" In London

LONDON, July 9. (AP)—Seven thousand guests in mixed war-rationed clothing and formal top-hatted attire mingled today at the royal family's biggest "at home" since 1939, but a woman member of Parliament boycotted the Buckingham Palace garden party because she was required to wear a hat.

Miss Grace Colman, a Laborite, attended the House of Commons session instead.

She told newspapermen it was "preposterous" that hats were mandatory for the king and queen's "do."

"Why should we nowadays be ruled by out-of-date etiquette like that?" she asked. "What possible objection is there to a woman going anywhere without a hat?"

7,000 Persons Attend "At Home" In London

LONDON, July 9. (AP)—Seven thousand guests in mixed war-rationed clothing and formal top-hatted attire mingled today at the royal family's biggest "at home" since 1939, but a woman member of Parliament boycotted the Buckingham Palace garden party because she was required to wear a hat.

Miss Grace Colman, a Laborite, attended the House of Commons session instead.

She told newspapermen it was "preposterous" that hats were mandatory for the king and queen's "do."

"Why should we nowadays be ruled by out-of-date etiquette like that?" she asked. "What possible objection is there to a woman going anywhere without a hat?"

Granddaughter Of Local Women Is Betrothed

Ceremony To Be Performed In Late Summer In Winchester

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Norris, 406 Gray avenue, Winchester, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Norris, to Paul Plumly, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Plumly, North Kent street, Winchester.

The bride-elect is a frequent visitor here, as Mrs. Martha E. Barnhart, 127 Gleason street, is her maternal grandmother and Mrs. Harriet E. Norris, Laing avenue, her paternal grandmother. J. Walter Barnhart, Robert Norris and George Norris are uncles and Mrs. J. E. DeVore is an aunt.

Miss Norris is a graduate of Handley high school, class of 1945 and has been employed in the business office of the P. W. Plumly Lumber Company for the past three years.

Mr. Plumly, who received his education in Ohio, is associated in the lumber business with his father. He recently received his discharge from service after serving three and one half years in the navy.

The wedding will be solemnized in the late summer.

Hot pickled beets, sliced and topped with slices of hard-cooked eggs, give a decorative touch to browned corned beef hash or any other kind of hash.

Sprigs of parsley, lemon slices cut in fancy shapes, or watercress garnish a steak platter attractively. A border of French fries or lattice potatoes is also effective.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, July 7—King Vidor was signed over the weekend by Ben Bogeaus to direct the Charles Laughton sequence in "A Miracle Can Happen" and when you stop and figure the top names Bogeaus and his co-producer, Burgess Meredith are getting for this picture you're convinced a miracle can happen. It should be made clear that Vidor is not directing the entire film—the story is episodic and each sequence has its own star and director. Three other top directors are yet to be set to handle the sections in which Jimmy Stewart, Henry Fonda and a woman star will be featured.

This will be King's first directorial venture since "Duel In The Sun" and his name went on the dotted line simultaneously with Charles Laughton's. There's a lot of secrecy about the story by John O'Hara and Norman Reilly Raine, but the hint is that it is a series of regenerstion themes.

—o—

Never let it be said that Warners aren't out to burn up the screen co-starring Joan Crawford and Errol Flynn in "Need For Each Other"—one of the hottest team and title combinations in years. I asked "What's it about?"—meaning the story. A Warnerite replied, "What would you guess from that title?" So I let it go at that after checking that the original story is by our King Features Syndicate friend, Kirsch a shairman of the banquet and Tobias Lazarus, reservations.

La Vale Teen Agers Plan Final Party Of Season

Program, Sponsored By Firemen's Auxiliary, To Be Resumed In Fall

A rainbow color scheme will be carried out in the decorations with pastel colored streamers forming a false ceiling. The usual games will be played in the basement rooms.

The program for teen agers was inaugurated with a dance and later included the games as the demand for them grew. Activities will be resumed the first part of October, Miss Ort said last evening. Members of her committee assisting in the program are Mrs. Edna German, Mrs. Helen Slite and Mrs. Edith Cessna.

Apple rings, panfried or baked with a bit of bright-colored jelly in the center, make an appropriate garnish for pork chops or a pork roast.

Miss Travis To Become Bride Of F. E. Fannon

Ceremony To Be Performed In St. Mary's Today By Bridegroom's Brother

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Catherine Travis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Travis, 1121 Virginia avenue, to Francis Edward Fannon, son of Mrs. Mary Fannon, Mt. Savage and the late William Fannon, will be solemnized at 11:15 this morning, with the Rev. Thomas Fannon, Pikesville, brother of the bridegroom, officiating and reading the nuptial mass, in St. Mary's Catholic church.

Miss Marlene Travis, sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor and Raymond Fannon will serve as his brother's best man.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will be attired in a bridal gown of white taffeta, made on old fashioned lines with a high neckline, long sleeves, peplum, and full skirt with a bow forming a bustle and sweeping short train. Her fingertip length veil of net will be held by an arrangement of natural flowers matching her bouquet of assorted white flowers with bridal roses predominating.

Her maid of honor will wear a light blue, full length dress with white accessories and will carry a bouquet of mixed summer flowers with a similar arrangement in her headdress.

Mrs. Travis has chosen a light blue costume for her daughter's wedding, with it she will wear white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Fannon will wear a navy blue dress with matching accessories and will also wear a pink rosebud corsage.

The bride-elect is a graduate of St. Mary's high school and until her recent resignation was employed by the Potomac Edison Company.

Mr. Fannon is a graduate of LaSalle and a veteran of two and one half years service with the army in the Hawaiian Islands. He is now employed at the Celanese.

Mr. and Mrs. Travis will entertain with a wedding breakfast, honoring their daughter and her bridal party at their home, following the ceremony. The bridal motif will be carried out in the decorations of the table, which will be centered with a tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Maurice Taylor and Mrs. Marshall McElfish, aunts of the bride, will assist in serving.

The bride has chosen a black and white dress with white accessories, for traveling. Upon their return from a wedding trip Mr. Fannon and his bride will reside at 319 Pulaski street.

Woolen garments should be dry cleaned or laundered before being stored for the summer. Moths thrive on soiled spots.

Granddaughter Of Local Women Is Betrothed

Ceremony To Be Performed In Late Summer In Winchester

Mr. and Mrs. Ellmore Norris, 406 Gray avenue, Winchester, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Norris, to Paul Plumly, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Plumly, North Kent street, Winchester.

The bride-elect is a frequent visitor here, as Mrs. Martha E. Barnhart, 127 Gleason street, is her maternal grandmother and Mrs. Harriet E. Norris, Laing avenue, her paternal grandmother. J. Walter Barnhart, Robert Norris and George Norris are uncles and Mrs. J. E. DeVore is an aunt.

Miss Norris is a graduate of Handley high school, class of 1945 and has been employed in the business office of the P. W. Plumly Lumber Company for the past three years.

Mr. Plumly, who received his education in Ohio, is associated in the lumber business with his father. He recently received his discharge from service after serving three and one half years in the navy.

The wedding will be solemnized in the late summer.

Hot pickled beets, sliced and topped with slices of hard-cooked eggs, give a decorative touch to browned corned beef hash or any other kind of hash.

Sprigs of parsley, lemon slices cut in fancy shapes, or watercress garnish a steak platter attractively. A border of French fries or lattice potatoes is also effective.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, July 7—King Vidor was signed over the weekend by Ben Bogeaus to direct the Charles Laughton sequence in "A Miracle Can Happen" and when you stop and figure the top names Bogeaus and his co-producer, Burgess Meredith are getting for this picture you're convinced a miracle can happen. It should be made clear that Vidor is not directing the entire film—the story is episodic and each sequence has its own star and director. Three other top directors are yet to be set to handle the sections in which Jimmy Stewart, Henry Fonda and a woman star will be featured.

This will be King's first directorial venture since "Duel In The Sun" and his name went on the dotted line simultaneously with Charles Laughton's. There's a lot of secrecy about the story by John O'Hara and Norman Reilly Raine, but the hint is that it is a series of regenerstion themes.

—o—

Never let it be said that Warners aren't out to burn up the screen co-starring Joan Crawford and Errol Flynn in "Need For Each Other"—one of the hottest team and title combinations in years. I asked "What's it about?"—meaning the story. A Warnerite replied, "What would you guess from that title?" So I let it go at that after checking that the original story is by our King Features Syndicate friend.

Married In Historic Church

Mrs. Frank R. McFarland, Jr.

The former Miss Sara Murphy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Murphy, Pasadena, Calif., became the bride of Frank R. McFarland, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. McFarland, Sunset Orchard, Baltimore Pike, June 27. The ceremony was performed in St. Ann's Episcopal church, Annapolis, reputed to be the oldest church in America, having been built in 1692. The Rev. Edward Berger officiated and Mr. and Mrs. David H. Wallace, Annapolis, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom, were the attendants. Having returned from a western wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McFarland are residing with the former's parents on Baltimore Pike.

Ceremony To Be Performed In St. Mary's Today By Bridegroom's Brother

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Catherine Travis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Travis, 1121 Virginia avenue, to Francis Edward Fannon, son of Mrs. Mary Fannon, Mt. Savage and the late William Fannon, will be solemnized at 11:15 this morning, with the Rev. Thomas Fannon, Pikesville, brother of the bridegroom, officiating and reading the nuptial mass, in St. Mary's Catholic church.

Miss Marlene Travis, sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor and Raymond Fannon will serve as his brother's best man.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will be attired in a bridal gown of white taffeta, made on old fashioned lines with a high neckline, long sleeves, peplum, and full skirt with a bow forming a bustle and sweeping short train. Her fingertip length veil of net will be held by an arrangement of natural flowers matching her bouquet of assorted white flowers with bridal roses predominating.

Her maid of honor will wear a light blue, full length dress with white accessories and will carry a bouquet of mixed summer flowers with a similar arrangement in her headdress.

Mrs. Travis has chosen a light blue costume for her daughter's wedding, with it she will wear white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Fannon will wear a navy blue dress with matching accessories and will also wear a pink rosebud corsage.

The bride-elect is a graduate of St. Mary's high school and until her recent resignation was employed by the Potomac Edison Company.

Mr. Fannon is a graduate of LaSalle and a veteran of two and one half years service with the army in the Hawaiian islands. He is now employed at the Celanese.

Mr. and Mrs. Travis will entertain with a wedding breakfast, honoring their daughter and her bridal party at their home, following the ceremony. The bridal motif will be carried out in the decorations of the table, which will be centered with a tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Maurice Taylor and Mrs. Marshall McElfish, aunts of the bride, will assist in serving.

The bride has chosen a black and white dress with white accessories, for traveling. Upon their return from a wedding trip Mr. Fannon and his bride will reside at 319 Pulaski street.

Woolen garments should be dry cleaned or laundered before being stored for the summer. Moths thrive on soiled spots.

La Vale Teen Agers Plan Final Party Of Season

Program, Sponsored By Firemen's Auxiliary, To Be Resumed In Fall

The LaVale Teen Age Club will close for the summer months, as so many of the group go to camp, Miss Virginia Ort, chairman, announces. The final party for the season will be held Friday night, with Arty Brill's orchestra playing from 8:30 until 11:30 for dancing.

A rainbow color scheme will be carried out in the decorations with pastel colored streamers forming a false ceiling. The usual games will be played in the basement rooms.

The program for teen agers was inaugurated with a dance and later included the games as the demand for them grew. Activities will be resumed the first part of October, Miss Ort said last evening. Members of her committee assisting in the program are Mrs. Edna German, Mrs. Helen Slite and Mrs. Edith Cessna.

Apple rings, panfried or baked with a bit of bright-colored jelly in the center, make an appropriate garnish for pork chops or a pork roast.

Granite City, Ill., Police received a report that a man—probably the victim of the heat or foul play—was living on the lawn of a hospital. When the perspiring patrolmen arrived, the supine citizen explained. He was a prospective father who was sweating out the anxious hours in the coolest spot he could find.

A chemical preparation first used as a refrigerant and then as a bug killer has been proved highly effective in fighting gasoline blazes, its manufacturer reports.

Instruments Help Doctors Diagnose Stomach Disorders

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

In stomach disorders, it is not always easy to find out exactly what is causing the trouble, but though patience is needed, there is, thanks to modern instruments and techniques, no necessity for guesswork.

To make a proper diagnosis, the doctor will, first of all, give careful study to the kind of symptoms troubling the patient. He will make various laboratory tests, such as determining the amount of acid in the stomach, and take x-ray pictures.

If all this does not show just what is the matter, he has still another resource—examination with the gastroscope.

Tubes And Mirrors

The gastroscope is a series of tubes and mirrors with a light at the end. It can be passed through the mouth into the stomach to give the doctor a meal's-eye view of the interior of this hidden organ. Thus, he can scrutinize the lining membrane or mucosa for evidences of injury or disease. In this way things which would not show up in x-ray photographs are revealed.

According to Dr. Martin M. Kirschen, Chicago, in patients who have had some disturbance within the abdomen for some time for which no explanation has been found, often small injuries to the lining membrane of the stomach may be detected through the gastroscope. Sometimes, early cancer may be discovered in patients who have such symptoms as loss of appetite, loss of weight and nausea or sickness to the stomach.

When Cause Unknown

If a patient brings up blood from the stomach, or has blood in his stool, and the cause cannot be found, examination with the gastroscope would appear advisable. The bleeding may be caused by a small ulcer or loss of tissue in the lining membrane of the stomach, by inflammation of the stomach lining, or by cancer.

Another way in which the gastroscope is helpful is in aiding the doctor in telling whether a tumor is of the benign or mild kind or is cancerous and deadly. It also may help in telling when ulcer of the stomach has recurred.

In using the gastroscope, the sensations in the throat are first deadened by using a local anesthetic. When this is done the discomfort produced is very slight. There would appear to be no danger of perforation, that is, pushing the instrument through the wall of the esophagus or stomach.

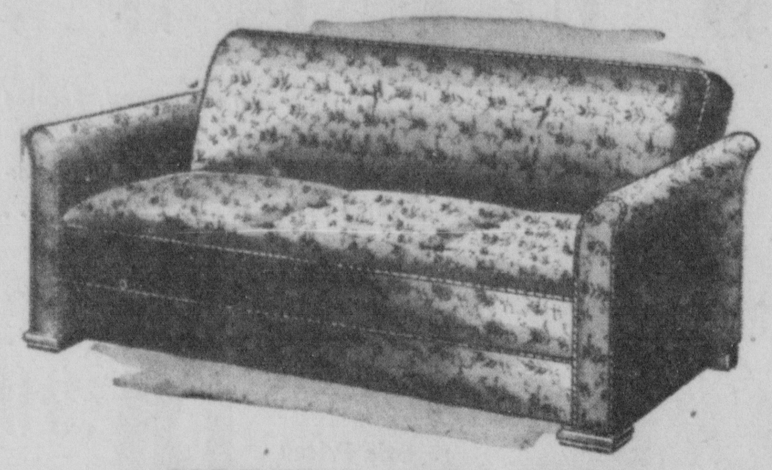

The use of the gastroscope is not advisable in patients who are seriously ill, have fever, bronchitis, lung disorders or blocking of the esophagus, or the heart condition known as angina pectoris. Of course the physician who employs the gastroscope must be skilled in its use in order that he may be able to recognize the abnormal conditions which he sees through the instrument.

Salaries of school teachers in New York average $2,700 a year, highest in the nation.

Take a tip from the chefs of our great restaurants and hotels, from the dietitians who make up the meals for our hospitals—if you want the most nutritious meals, packed full of vitamins, stick to Gas Cooking.

With Gas cooking controls, as you find them on your modern Gas Range, it is possible to secure that accurate, closely modulated, low temperature cooking that preserves the inborn goodness of food, its tastiness and flavor, while preventing scorching and wasteful shrinkage.

There's sound logic in the reasons why more American housewives cook with Gas than with any other fuel. Gas is dependable, the most accurately controllable, the most economical and best on all counts.

Granite City, Ill., Police received a report that a man—probably the victim of the heat or foul play—was living on the lawn of a hospital. When the perspiring patrolmen arrived, the supine citizen explained. He was a prospective father who was sweating out the anxious hours in the coolest spot he could find.

A chemical preparation first used as a refrigerant and then as a bug killer has been proved highly effective in fighting gasoline blazes, its manufacturer reports.

Instruments Help Doctors Diagnose Stomach Disorders

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

In stomach disorders, it is not always easy to find out exactly what is causing the trouble, but though patience is needed, there is, thanks to modern instruments and techniques, no necessity for guesswork.

To make a proper diagnosis, the doctor will, first of all, give careful study to the kind of symptoms troubling the patient. He will make various laboratory tests, such as determining the amount of acid in the stomach, and take x-ray pictures.

If all this does not show just what is the matter, he has still another resource—examination with the gastroscope.

Tubes And Mirrors

The gastroscope is a series of tubes and mirrors with a light at the end. It can be passed through the mouth into the stomach to give the doctor a meal's-eye view of the interior of this hidden organ. Thus, he can scrutinize the lining membrane or mucosa for evidences of injury or disease. In this way things which would not show up in x-ray photographs are revealed.

According to Dr. Martin M. Kirschen, Chicago, in patients who have had some disturbance within the abdomen for some time for which no explanation has been found, often small injuries to the lining membrane of the stomach may be detected through the gastroscope. Sometimes, early cancer may be discovered in patients who have such symptoms as loss of appetite, loss of weight and nausea or sickness to the stomach.

When Cause Unknown

If a patient brings up blood from the stomach, or has blood in his stool, and the cause cannot be found, examination with the gastroscope would appear advisable. The bleeding may be caused by a small ulcer or loss of tissue in the lining membrane of the stomach, by inflammation of the stomach lining, or by cancer.

Another way in which the gastroscope is helpful is in aiding the doctor in telling whether a tumor is of the benign or mild kind or is cancerous and deadly. It also may help in telling when ulcer of the stomach has recurred.

In using the gastroscope, the sensations in the throat are first deadened by using a local anesthetic. When this is done the discomfort produced is very slight. There would appear to be no danger of perforation, that is, pushing the instrument through the wall of the esophagus or stomach.

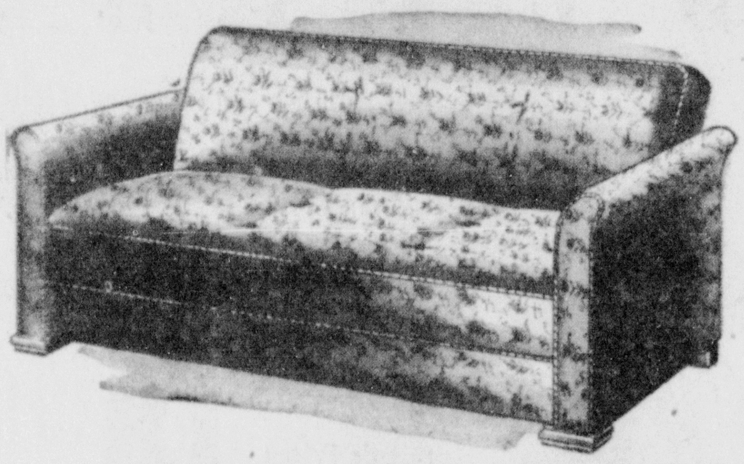

The use of the gastroscope is not advisable in patients who are seriously ill, have fever, bronchitis, lung disorders or blocking of the esophagus, or the heart condition known as angina pectoris. Of course the physician who employs the gastroscope must be skilled in its use in order that he may be able to recognize the abnormal conditions which he sees through the instrument.

Salaries of school teachers in New York average $2,700 a year, highest in the nation.

Grandfather's Vigil On Riverbank Ends After 8-Month-Watch

WEST ELIZABETH, Pa., July 9 (AP) — Old Morgan Lewis's eight-monthvigil by the riverbany for the body of his drowned grandson ended today.

The swirlingMonongahela, which had stubbornly resisted efforts to locate the boy dragging and blasting, finally yielded the body of Charles Lewis, Jr., 14, a short distance from here.

Seventy - eight - year - old Morgan Lewis had kept watch by the river since the boy and four companions drowned last November.

"When Chuckie's been laid to rest," he insisted, "then I can rest.'

Mothers Should Keep Hands Off Son's Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love And Marriage

There are certain things mothers never seem to learn. Even though they may have seen other mothers meet disaster in a given situation, they'll go right ahead and try the same thing themselves, kidding themselves along with the false assurance that they're different, and "it can't happen" to them.

One of these things a lot of them never learn is to keep their hands off their sons' love affairs. And in this, it's more often the mother of an only son who makes this mistake than the woman who has several sons.

It' perfectly understandable, of course. For the "Mother knows best" complex is practically born in women, and they feel they know better than the son himself what sort of woman will make him happy. More than that, there's apt to be a little subconscious jealousy in a mother that makes her instinctively want to keep her son to herself as long as she can, before giving him up to another woman. She honestly believes that her objections to her son's choice of a wife are for his own good. And sometimes they are. But because it so often happens the other way, the wise mother will stop and analyze herself a little when she finds herself violently objecting to her son's romance, to make certain that something of this natural maternal reluctance to lose her son isn't masquerading in the guise of legitimate concern for his welfare.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a mother of three children whom I love dearly.

"My only son has been recently discharged from the army, and since that time has been going with a local girl who is a few years older than he and who has been married. From all reports, she is a nice girl, and a perfect young lady, but I strongly object to this friendship on the grounds that she is older than he is, and also because of her marriage to a serviceman which was annulled.

"We are a religious family, and I am doing everything in my power to break this up, as he is my only son and I want him to find a sweet young girl his own age, instead of a girl who married and then decided it was a mistake. Some think I am unjust in my feelings toward this girl, but I believe I feel as any mother would about her only son.

"What do you advise me to do in this matter, continue to attempt to break it up by telling him how strongly I dislike his seeing this girl, or let things take their course?"

"ANXIOUS MOTHER."

Whatever your reasons for your disapproval of this situation, Anxious Mother, trying to break it up is the most dangerous thing you can do. For the more you argue against this girl, the more your son will defend her, and before you know it, you may build up in him a resentment against you that will destroy whatever influence you may have with him and drive him into the very thing you wish to avoid.

You'd be much wiser to keep still about the whole thing, hard as it no doubt will be for you, and it may blow over of itself. Certainly it will be more likely to than if you keep stirring up an emotional storm over it. And if it doesn't—if these two come to love each other sincerely—it may work out much better than you think. Such objections as you raise have been met by many couples, and successfully worked out in a happy marriage.

peared before the 75-year-old jurist in a two-minute ceremony, presented the results of their blood tests and a copy of Red's divorce papers from a previous marriage. In return they received the waiver signed by Judge Trimble.

Red's previous wife, a Pittsburgh girl, whom he married only a few months before the army sent him overseas, divorced him last April and left him free to marry Norah.

Norah and Red's romance began at Heanor, England, where Norah lived and near Red's overseas station. When the quads were born, Thompson admitted to their paternity and promised Norah he would "stick." One of the quads died shortly after birth but the two remaining girls and their brother developed into strong, ruddy-faced children. They are now 2 years old.

Wedemeyer, who is now in this country, is expected, however, to get an important new military assignment.

Butler Nominated

Simultaneously with the nomination of Stuart, Mr. Truman sent to the Senate the nomination of Robert Butler, St. Paul shipbuilder and banker, to be ambassador to Australia. Earlier the White House had announced completion of arrangements between Acting Secretary of State Acheson and Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt for raising the ranks of the legations at Washington and Canberra to embassies.

Shipstead Loses

Senator Langer (R-ND) told a reporter he believed local rather than national issues were the deciding factor in Shipstead's defeat. He conceded, however, that Stassen had demonstrated popularity in Minnesota.

Langer, who joined Shipstead in casting the only two Senate votes against the United Nations charter, was renominated in North Dakota recently. At a news conference in St. Paul, Stassen said the issues did not reach the people in North Dakota as "thoroughly as they did in Minnesota."

Thye's margin over Shipstead in Tuesday's Republican senatorial primary continued to grow as the count progressed last night.

Stassen, an aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, backed Thye. Both are strong advocates of the United Nations. Stassen supported another primary winner in his home state, Luther Youngdahl, who easily defeated Hjalmar Petersen, for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

East Late Getting Results

Dr. Theodore Jorgenson, a St. Olaf College Professor, won the Democratic-Farmer-Labor senatorial nomination. The same party picked Harold Barker, weekly newspaper publisher, to oppose Youngdahl. All incumbent congressmen appeared renominated.

Defeat of the 65-year-old Shipstead, a former dentist, brought to four the pre-election losses among incumbent senators who stood for renomination.

The East was late in getting returns from Washington and Utah because of differences in time and the late closing of polls.

In Washington, Senator Hugh D. Mitchell, serving by appointment, was conceded the edge over two opponents for the Democratic senatorial candidacy. His challengers were State Treasurer Russell C. Fluent and Sam C. Herren.

Former Mayor Harry Cain, Tacoma, was favored to win the Republican senatorial nomination over an orchardist, Douglass Parkhurst.

Not Arguing Batavia Case

"May never spoke to me about the eight-inch shell contract," said Patterson. "That's idle gossip and utterly untrue."

"I am not arguing any case here for Batavia, no thank you," he told the Senate War Investigating committee which is digging into the profits and complicated wartime operations of Batavia Metal Products Company and 18 associated concerns.

Patterson testified that his attention first was called to Batavia's affairs by a "complaint" from Rep. May (D-Ky), chairman of the House Military committee, over the action of the War Department Production Board in halting work on a contract there.

May has denied that he profited personally through his activities on behalf of the closely-linked Illinois concerns, saying that he was motivated only by a desire to get munitions to the troops.

The amount of money taken has not been determined, but unofficial reports place it at between $35,000 and $60,000. Police estimates ranged from $5,000 to $6,000.

Forrest's report said Fisher admitted he lost $1,170 but added "he does not remember who the other men in the club at the time were, nor how much, if anything, any of them lost in the hold-up."

Fisher's account said he and 12 others were in the club, listening to a broadcast of a Washington baseball game. Earlier, unconfirmed reports had said there were 23 present.

The report said "four men, three with pistol-type guns drawn, the fourth brandishing what appeared to be a machine gun, entered, stating: 'This is a stick-up, get them up.'

"The pockets of all present were searched and everything of value taken therefrom," the report continued. "Everyone was made to remove their trousers x x x

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, Sallie M. Maley by her mother, next Friend, Myrtle Davis vs. James G. Maley, No. 19365 Equity.

The Object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the plaintiff and the defendant were married on the 24th day of March, 1943 at Cumberland, Maryland, and thereafter, the parties resided together until on or about June 1, 1943; that ever since the marriage of the plaintiff to the defendant she has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife, and her conduct has always been above reproach; that on or about June 1, 1945, the defendant without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff; that said abandonment and desertion has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months before the filing of the Bill of Complaint in this case, and that said abandonment and desertion was deliberate and final on the defendant's part, and that the separation of the parties hereto is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of a reconciliation; that no children were born of the marriage of the parties; that the plaintiff has been a resident of Allegany County, Maryland for more than one year, and that the defendant was a non-resident of the State of Maryland and his exact address is unknown although believed to be in the State of Ohio.

It is thereupon Ordered this 18th day of June, 1946, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 20th day of July, 1946, giving notice of the object and substance of the Bill of Complaint to the said absent non-resident defendant warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 5th day of August, 1946, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

paganda against Congress.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted that the OPA has been using government funds to "propagandize" Congress into continuing its existence.

"And if the department of Justice was on the job it would indict Mr. Paul Porter and Mr. Chester Bowles for this violation of the law," he shouted.

Barkley and Taft Clash

Porter remains as administrator of an OPA whose powers lapsed June 30 but Bowles resigned as stabilization director, effective tomorrow.

Taft said the law prohibits any agency from spending government funds to prolong its existence, a course he charged has been taken by OPA.

Taft's charge brought Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky), sponsor of a pending price control revival bill, bouncing to his feet to cry out:

"Every time the names of Mr. Porter or Mr. Bowles are mentioned the senator from Ohio reacts as though somebody had put an atomic bomb under his chair."

Barkley complained that in reading to the Senate a long list of pamphlets and broadsides, Taft had left the impression that only communist and fellow-traveler organizations indorse the unfettered continuation of price controls.

He hadn't said that, Taft retorted. But he added that the communist organizations were well represented, although he said that he does not charge the OPA with taking the communist party line.

Another amendment to drop controls from all grain and grain products was proposed by Senator Reed (R-Kas).

Plan To Pay GI

unused leave accumulated after July 1, 1947, either by offiers or men. The plan stipulates that the armed services "are to provide for the taking of leave in the future annually as it accrues to the extent consistent with military requirements and other exigencies."

The leave to be paid for under the plan is all that has accrued since Sept. 8, 1939, the date when the first naval reservists were called up.

Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan appeared before the senate committee to explain the scheme. He said the president opposed immediate cash payments because of the "serious inflationary effect."

The senate committee gave speedy and unanimous approval at an executive session after Sullivan's testimony.

In addition to equalizing terminal leave benefits between officers and enlisted personnel during the war, the bill also continues this same treatment into the future. However, after September 1 of this year future leave could not be accumulated above 90 days, compared with a top limit of 120 days before that date.

Bond Will Be Face Value

Sullivan explained that if a veteran had $237 in terminal pay due, he would receive $37 cash and a bond for $200 payable within five years. The bond would be face value of the payment due and the interest would be additional.

political detachment of the Rhineland, the Ruhr and the Saar basin from Germany. France wants the Saar incorported within French economy, and the Ruhr placed under international economic control.

The question of federalization was taken up recently by Tass, the Russian News Agency, in a Paris dispatch, in which it expressed the fear that secret negotiations in Paris to which the Russians were not invited might have touched on eventual consolidation of the French British and American zones into a federalized system. American sources deny there were any secret talks.

Keeping Up With

Louis Sobol, and Ernest Lehmann. No screen writers are set so it probably won't go before the cameras until Errol finishes a picture he's contracted for at MGM in December.

—o—

The Kathryn Grayson-Johnny Johnston romance continues ablaze off the screen, but the girl he'll make movie love to next is Esther Williams in "This Time for Keeps." Johnny plays the male lead and this break came after the MGM bosses saw a sneak of "Til the Clouds Roll By" and were so impressed by his work they decided he deserved a bigger role. Esther Williams, incidentally, sings a couple of numbers with Johnston—maybe getting in tune for those lullabies she'll start singing next January.

—o—

Michel Bernheim, who directed Danielle Darrieux' first starring picture in France "Panurge", comes here as technical advisor for "Arch of Triumph" to work with Lewis Milestone. A French naval officer during the early stages of the war, Bernheim was among the last of the allied personnel to leave Dunkerque, was taken prisoner at Cherbourg and later escaped from the fortress of Koenigstein. He arrived in the United States in 1942 to accept a post with OWI. Enterprise feels it has snagged an important expert on conditions in France during the war in signing Bernheim.

—o—

Gable's back—and nobody's got him. You can forget all those rumors linking his name with that of a society girl named Hamilton in Southampton, too. Before Clark left New York one of our spies called to get an advance tip on what happened when he returned to Hollywood. Gable wasn't in, but one of his closest friends said, "Clark has no plans. He has neither seen nor discussed any scripts while he was here. When he lands back in Hollywood he'll probably stay put awhile."

—o—

Well, now we know what Capt. Jeffrey Lynn is going to do. He's going to get married and the charmer who has won his heart is Robin Chandler, fashion editor for New York's Journal-American. The happy couple have not yet set a definite marriage date but it will be in a couple of months. All of it hinges on whether Warners has a picture lined up for him right away, or not—and they probably haven't since Jeffrey has been overseas for the past three years. His war record was terrific, you know. The bride-to-be is a very pretty, smart looking blonde and while she and Jeff have been friends for years, the romance didn't bloom until he came home.

—o—

Hollywood in shorts: If anybody has seen Jennifer Jones playing summer stock (as advertised) anywhere around the country, please hold up his or her hand. Jennifer seems to have done a disappearing act; Sonja Henie took the current boy friend, Stewart Barthelmess, to a movie the other night and the picture they saw was "Easy to Wed" with Van Johnson, her former heart; This is a throwback to last week's strike, but it's too good to keep: As Hal Roach Jr. walked through the picket line at the Roach Studio, one of the strikers called, "Hey, there. What department do you work in?" Hal Jr. tossed back, "None. I'm a relative;" Gene Raymond's houseguests, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Halford of Honolulu, tossed a party for their host, Norma Shearer and Marty Arrouge, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyons and Helen Ferguson at the "New" Ciro's. It's too bad the management can't arrange for Norma to remain as a permanent attraction. She was a vision in a lipstick red dress against the new lipstick red back curtain. The Halfords, who were Gene's and Jeanette's hosts on their honeymoon, are here for the medical convention; sorry if I left the impression in a story on George Sidney that he was still a test director. He used to be a test director—but has been turning out some of MGM's biggest directorial hits for several years; winners and losers spotted around the Hollywood Park Turf Club included Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall with the Mark Hellingers, Betty Grable, Minna Wallis (the best dressed gal in a Carnegie suit), Mervin LeRoy and Kitty with Kitty's daughter, just arrived from Chicago, and Francho: Tone. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Cypress, Once Saved From Deep Water, Is Drowned In River

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 9 (AP)—David Cypress, 24, carnival employe from Norfolk, Va., drowned in the Monongahela river at Granville today.

Coroner J. B. Riffle said Cypress had been rescued once previously when he stepped off a ledge into deep water, but ignored that experience and again stepped into deep water.

State and county police officers recovered the body. Cypress was Monongalia county's second drowning victim in as many days.

peared before the 75-year-old jurist in a two-minute ceremony, presented the results of their blood tests and a copy of Red's divorce papers from a previous marriage. In return they received the waiver signed by Judge Trimble.

Red's previous wife, a Pittsburgh girl, whom he married only a few months before the army sent him overseas, divorced him last April and left him free to marry Norah.

Norah and Red's romance began at Heanor, England, where Norah lived and near Red's overseas station. When the quads were born, Thompson admitted to their paternity and promised Norah he would "stick." One of the quads died shortly after birth but the two remaining girls and their brother developed into strong, ruddy-faced children. They are now 2 years old.

Butler Nominated

Simultaneously with the nomination of Stuart, Mr. Truman sent to the Senate the nomination of Robert Butler, St. Paul shipbuilder and banker, to be ambassador to Australia. Earlier the White House had announced completion of arrangements between Acting Secretary of State Acheson and Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Shipstead Loses

Senator Langer (R-ND) told a reporter he believed local rather than national issues were the deciding factor in Shipstead's defeat. He conceded, however, that Stassen had demonstrated popularity in Minnesota.

Langer, who joined Shipstead in casting the only two Senate votes against the United Nations charter, was renominated in North Dakota recently. At a news conference in St. Paul, Stassen said the issues did not reach the people in North Dakota as "thoroughly as they did in Minnesota."

Thye's margin over Shipstead in Tuesday's Republican senatorial primary continued to grow as the count progressed last night.

Stassen, an aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, backed Thye. Both are strong advocates of the United Nations. Stassen supported another primary winner in his home state, Luther Youngdahl, who easily defeated Hjalmar Petersen, for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

East Late Getting Results

Dr. Theodore Jorgenson, a St. Olaf College Professor, won the Democratic-Farmer-Labor senatorial nomination. The same party picked Harold Barker, weekly newspaper publisher, to oppose Youngdahl. All incumbent congressmen appeared renominated.

Defeat of the 65-year-old Shipstead, a former dentist, brought to four the pre-election losses among incumbent senators who stood for renomination.

The East was late in getting returns from Washington and Utah because of differences in time and the late closing of polls.

In Washington, Senator Hugh D. Mitchell, serving by appointment, was conceded the edge over two opponents for the Democratic senatorial candidacy. His challengers were State Treasurer Russell C. Fluent and Sam C. Herren.

Former Mayor Harry Cain, Tacoma, was favored to win the Republican senatorial nomination over an orchardist, Douglass Parkhurst.

Not Arguing Batavia Case

"May never spoke to me about the eight-inch shell contract," said Patterson. "That's idle gossip and utterly untrue."

"I am not arguing any case here for Batavia, no thank you," he told the Senate War Investigating committee which is digging into the profits and complicated wartime operations of Batavia Metal Products Company and 18 associated concerns.

Patterson testified that his attention first was called to Batavia's affairs by a "complaint" from Rep. May (D-Ky), chairman of the House Military committee, over the action of the War Department Production Board in halting work on a contract there.

May has denied that he profited personally through his activities on behalf of the closely-linked Illinois concerns, saying that he was motivated only by a desire to get munitions to the troops.

The amount of money taken has not been determined, but unofficial reports place it at between $35,000 and $60,000. Police estimates ranged from $5,000 to $6,000.

Forrest's report said Fisher admitted he lost $1,170 but added "he does not remember who the other men in the club at the time were, nor how much, if anything, any of them lost in the hold-up."

Fisher's account said he and 12 others were in the club, listening to a broadcast of a Washington baseball game. Earlier, unconfirmed reports had said there were 23 present.

The report said "four men, three with pistol-type guns drawn, the fourth brandishing what appeared to be a machine gun, entered, stating: 'This is a stick-up, get them up.'

"The pockets of all present were searched and everything of value taken therefrom," the report continued. "Everyone was made to remove their trousers x x x

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland. Sallie M. Maley by her mother, next Friend, Myrtle Davis vs James G. Maley, No. 19345 Equity.

The Object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the plaintiff and the defendant were married on the 24th day of March, 1943 at Cumberland, Maryland, and thereafter, the parties resided together until on or about June 1, 1943; that ever since the marriage of the plaintiff to the defendant she has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife, and her conduct has always been above reproach; that on or about June 1, 1943, the defendant without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff; that said abandonment and desertion has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months before the filing of the Bill of Complaint in this case, and that said abandonment and desertion was deliberate and final on the defendant's part, and that the separation of the parties hereto is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of a reconciliation; that no children were born of the marriage of the parties; that the plaintiff has been a resident of Allegany County, Maryland for more than one year, and that the defendant was a non-resident of the State of Maryland and his exact address is unknown although believed to be in the State of Ohio.

It is thereupon Ordered this 18th day of June, 1946, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 26th day of July, 1946, giving notice of the object and substance of the Bill of Complaint to the said absent non-resident defendant warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 5th day of August, 1946, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

paganda against Congress.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted that the OPA has been using government funds to "propagandize" Congress into continuing its existence.

"And if the department of Justice was on the job it would indict Mr. Paul Porter and Mr. Chester Bowles for this violation of the law," he shouted.

Barkley and Taft Clash

Porter remains as administrator of an OPA whose powers lapsed June 30 but Bowles resigned as stabilization director, effective tomorrow.

Taft said the law prohibits any agency from spending government funds to prolong its existence, a course he charged has been taken by OPA.

Taft's charge brought Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky), sponsor of a pending price control revival bill, bouncing to his feet to cry out:

"Every time the names of Mr. Porter or Mr. Bowles are mentioned the senator from Ohio reacts as though somebody had put an atomic bomb under his chair."

Barkley complained that in reading to the Senate a long list of pamphlets and broadsides, Taft had left the impression that only communist and fellow-traveler organizations indorse the unfettered continuation of price controls.

He hadn't said that, Taft retorted. But he added that the communist organizations were well represented, although he said that he does not charge the OPA with taking the communist party line.

Another amendment to drop controls from all grain and grain products was proposed by Senator Reed (R-Kas).

Plan To Pay GI

unused leave accumulated after July 1, 1947, either by officers or men. The plan stipulates that the armed services "are to provide for the taking of leave in the future annually as it accrues to the extent consistent with military requirements and other exigencies."

The leave to be paid for under the plan is all that has accrued since Sept. 8, 1939, the date when the first naval reservists were called up.

Undersecretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan appeared before the senate committee to explain the scheme. He said the president opposed immediate cash payments because of the "serious inflationary effect."

The senate committee gave speedy and unanimous approval at an executive session after Sullivan's testimony.

In addition to equalizing terminal leave benefits between officers and enlisted personnel during the war, the bill also continues this same treatment into the future. However, after September 1 of this year future leave could not be accumulated above 90 days, compared with a top limit of 120 days before that date.

Bond Will Be Face Value

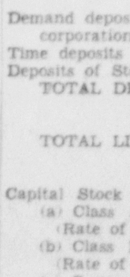

Sullivan explained that if a veteran had $237 in terminal pay due, he would receive $37 cash and a bond for $200 payable within five years. The bond would be face value of the payment due and the interest would be additional.

political detachment of the Rhineland, the Ruhr and the Saar basin from Germany. France wants the Saar incorported within French economy, and the Ruhr placed under international economic control.

The question of federalization was taken up recently by Tass, the Russian News Agency, in a Paris dispatch, in which it expressed the fear that secret negotiations in Paris to which the Russians were not invited might have touched on eventual consolidation of the French British and American zones into a federalized system. American sources deny there were any secret talks.

Cypress, Once Saved From Deep Water, Is Drowned In River

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 9 (AP)—David Cypress, 24, carnival employe from Norfolk, Va., drowned in the Monongahela river at Granville today.

Coroner J. B. Riffle said Cypress had been rescued once previously when he stepped off a ledge into deep water, but ignored that experience and again stepped into deep water.

State and county police officers recovered the body. Cypress was Monongalia county's second drowning victim in as many days.

Keeping Up With

Louis Sobol, and Ernest Lehmann. No screen writers are set so it probably won't go before the cameras until Errol finishes a picture he's contracted for at MGM in December.

—o—

The Kathryn Grayson-Johnny Johnston romance continues ablaze off the screen, but the girl he'll make movie love to next is Esther Williams in "This Time for Keeps." Johnny plays the male lead and this break came after the MGM bosses saw a sneak of "Til the Clouds Roll By" and were so impressed by his work they decided he deserved a bigger role. Esther Williams, incidentally, sings a couple of numbers with Johnston—maybe getting in tune for those lullabies she'll start singing next January.

—o—

Michel Bernheim, who directed Danielle Darrieux' first starring picture in France "Panurge", comes here as technical advisor for "Arch of Triumph" to work with Lewis Milestone. A French naval officer during the early stages of the war, Bernheim was among the last of the allied personnel to leave Dunkerque, was taken prisoner at Cherbourg and later escaped from the fortress of Koenigstein. He arrived in the United States in 1942 to accept a post with OWI. Enterprise feels it has snagged an important expert on conditions in France during the war in signing Bernheim.

—o—

Gable's back—and nobody's got him. You can forget all those rumors linking his name with that of a society girl named Hamilton in Southampton, too. Before Clark left New York one of our spies called to get an advance tip on what happened when he returned to Hollywood. Gable wasn't in, but one of his closest friends said, "Clark has no plans. He has neither seen nor discussed any scripts while he was here. When he lands back in Hollywood he'll probably stay put awhile."

—o—

Well, now we know what Capt. Jeffrey Lynn is going to do. He's going to get married and the charmer who has won his heart is Robin Chandler, fashion editor for New York's Journal-American. The happy couple have not yet set a definite marriage date but it will be in a couple of months. All of it hinges on whether Warners has a picture lined up for him right away, or not—and they probably haven't since Jeffrey has been overseas for the past three years. His war record was terrific, you know. The bride-to-be is a very pretty, smart looking blonde and while she and Jeff have been friends for years, the romance didn't bloom until he came home.

—o—

Hollywood in shorts: If anybody has seen Jennifer Jones playing summer stock (as advertised) anywhere around the country, please hold up his or her hand. Jennifer seems to have done a disappearing act; Sonja Henie took the current boy friend, Stewart Barthelmess, to a movie the other night and the picture they saw was "Easy to Wed" with Van Johnson, her former heart; This is a throwback to last week's strike, but it's too good to keep; As Hal Roach Jr. walked through the picket line at the Roach Studio, one of the strikers called, "Hey, there. What department do you work in?" Hal Jr. tossed back, "None. I'm a relative;" Gene Raymond's houseguests, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Halford of Honolulu, tossed a party for their host, Norma Shearer and Marty Arrouge, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyons and Helen Ferguson at the "New" Ciro's. It's too bad the management can't arrange for Norma to remain as a permanent attraction. She was a vision in a lipstick red dress against the new lipstick red back curtain. The Halfords, who were Gene's and Jeanette's hosts on their honeymoon, are here for the medical convention; sorry if I left the impression in a story on George Sidney that he was still a test director. He used to be a test director—but has been turning out some of MGM's biggest directorial hits for several years; winners and losers spotted around the Hollywood Park Turf Club included Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall with the Mark Hellingers, Betty Grable, Minna Wallis (the best dressed gal in a Carnegie suit), Mervin LeRoy and Kitty with Kitty's daughter, just arrived from Chicago, and Francho: Tone. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

LEWIS FAMILY HOLDS REUNION AT MORGAN FARM, NEAR CARLOS

THE FOURTEENTH ANNUAL REUNION of the Lewis family of Allegany county, was held all day Sunday at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. James Morgan, near Carlos, this county. The reunion was arranged by Mrs. Morgan who is the former Miss Margaret Lewis. The reunion was attended by 115 members of the family, representing residents of Frostburg, Cresaptown, Eckhart, Cumberland and smaller communities of Allegany county and Akron, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Detroit, Mich. Approximately 50 members of the family were unable to be present. The Lewis family are descendents of John and Margaret Lewis, natives of Wales, who came to this country at the close of the Civil war and settled at "Boston mine" near Eckhart. They later moved to Frostburg with their two sons, John and Edward, the former residing in Consolidation Village and the latter, first in Frostburg and later in Cresaptown. The living descendents are children, grand-children and great-grandchildren of John and Margaret Lewis of Consolidation Village and Edward and Mary Lewis, Cresaptown. All of their children married into Welsh and English families, Wales being represented by the family names of Morgan, Horton, Griffith, Thomas, Jones, Powell and Jenkins. Noel and Harris are the English families in the relationship of the families of the children of the second generation in this country. The reunion Sunday, according to Mrs. Morgan, was just a get-acquainted family visit and a program of old fashioned games for old and young, terminating with a basket picnic. Many of the men attending the reunion are not in the picture. Being charged with the responsibility of transportation, the men were engaged temporarily in the taxi business bringing in the guests from various sections of the county and the refreshments for the annual reunion supper.

Furniture Workers' Union Captured By Communists, Abe Klein Charges

Statement Is Made During Jurisdictional Dispute In Moorefield

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 9—At an open meeting at the P.O.S. of A. hall in Moorefield, the United Furniture Workers of America, CIO, heard Abe Klein, former international representative of the union, charge that "the whole U.F.W. of A. union has been captured by the Communist party."

Klein, who was instrumental in organizing the local union, stated that he, along with many other international representatives and officials, had resigned from his position in protest against the union being "taken over" by the Communists.

The U.F.W. of A. was split as a result of the convention at Detroit in June, Klein said, stating that Communist party members "took over 22 of the 28 offices in the union and that members of the union did not know that the Communists had stolen the union."

Bernard Mintner, the new representative of the U.F.W. of A., refused to answer Klein's charges in the open meeting and requested that the public and representatives of the management leave before discussing union business. He refused to reply to Klein's charges, stating that Klein was "clouding the issue with base charges."

The meeting was a culmination of negotiations between the union and the Thompson Mahogany Company for the renewal of the contract which expires this month. Klein is asking the local union to withdraw from the U.F.W. of A., and join the International Woodworkers of America, CIO. The two woodworkers's unions represent the right wing of I.W. of A. and the left wing of the U.F.W. of A.

At the public meeting Klein charged that "Local 296 of Thompson Mahogany Company workers voted 100 per cent with the Communist party at the Detroit convention through the delegate who voted their proxy." He further charged that "Louis Gilbert, who helped organize the local union, is a Communist official in Boston, and that Max Purlow, international secretary and treasurer of the union, was a Communist." He also stated that of the 40,000 members of the U.F.W. of A., 23,400 had withdrawn and had joined the I.W. of A.

It was indicated that the Thompson Mahogany Company will probably request the National Labor Relations Board to mediate in the jurisdictional dispute.

Addresses Legion Meeting

Harter said that 250,000 veterans had returned from the armed services and that it was up to the Veterans Administration to find jobs for those men. He explained the vocational training program, emphasizing that this is "Veterans' Opportunity" week and that the VA is making a special effort to place veterans in industry this week.

At the business meeting John M. Golladay Post of the American Legion authorized the trustees of the club to sell ten feet of their lot for a driveway to P. W. Clarke, who owns the property adjoining the Legion building. Clarke is commander of the local post.

Chickens Are Stolen

The first large-scale theft of chickens in Hardy county occurred last Monday or Tuesday night when between 300 and 400 special breeder chickens were stolen from the White Oak farms near Baker.

R. E. Ludwig, owner and operator of the farms, estimates his loss at $650. In addition to the chickens, about 25 coops were stolen at the same time. The thieves apparently drove into the farm at night with a truck to remove the fowls. The chickens were removed from three different chicken houses.

The chickens that were stolen were sold for August 1 delivery at $3 each.

The state police are working on the case and Ludwig has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of the culprits.

Other chicken raisers are warned to be on the lookout for further raids on flocks and to report the appearance of these chickens on any of the markets.

Business Places In Westernport To Be Licensed

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, July 9 — An ordinance to license all local business occupations which are not required to be licensed under state law was adopted by Mayor J. Milton McIntyre and the city commissioners at a meeting yesterday evening.

The ordinance, which appeals Ordinance No. 43, passed December 21, 1936, was drawn up by Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., city attorney. Some of the businesses which will be affected by the new ordinance are stores and taxi stands, it was stated.

A traffic light will be placed at the corner of Washington and Main streets. It will be purchased from the Tri-State Electrical Supply Company.

The steel bridge over Georges creek near Reese's station, which is 108 feet long and 16 feet wide, is safe for a gross vehicle loading of 10,000 pounds and should be posted accordingly, it was reported in a letter from John H. Carscaden, Cumberland, county engineer. He made two suggestions for improvements when any repairs are made to the bridge which would make it safe for 20,000 pounds.

The street employes paid on an hourly basis were ordered an increase of five cents an hour, retroactive to July 1. This action followed a request made at the previous meeting.

Fined On Assault Charge

A fine of $15 and $2.75 costs was imposed on Francis McGreevy, Piedmont, W. Va., by A. W. Determan, chief of police, on a charge of assaulting Arthur Blackburn, Beryl, W. Va., according to Burza Hanlin, chief of police.

Frank Halterman, McCoole, who was arrested by Chief Hanlin on a drunk and disorderly charge, forfeited a $12 bond, the chief stated.

THE FOURTEENTH ANNUAL REUNION of the Lewis family of Allegany county, was held all day Sunday at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. James Morgan, near Carlos, this county. The reunion was arranged by Mrs. Morgan who is the former Miss Margaret Lewis. The reunion was attended by 115 members of the family, representing residents of Frostburg, Cresaptown, Eckhart, Cumberland and smaller communities of Allegany county and Akron, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Detroit, Mich. Approximately 50 members of the family were unable to be present. The Lewis family are descendents of John and Margaret Lewis, natives of Wales, who came to this country at the close of the Civil war and settled at "Boston mine" near Eckhart. They later moved to Frostburg with their two sons, John and Edward, the former residing in Consolidation Village and the latter, first in Frostburg and later in Cresaptown. The living descendents are children, grand-children and great-grandchildren of John and Margaret Lewis of Consolidation Village and Edward and Mary Lewis, Cresaptown. All of their children married into Welsh and English families, Wales being represented by the family names of Morgan, Horton, Griffith, Thomas, Jones, Powell and Jenkins. Noel and Harris are the English families in the relationship of the families of the children of the second generation in this country. The reunion Sunday, according to Mrs. Morgan, was just a get-acquainted family visit and a program of old fashioned games for old and young, terminating with a basket picnic. Many of the men attending the reunion are not in the picture. Being charged with the responsibility of transportation, the men were engaged temporarily in the taxi business bringing in the guests from various sections of the county and the refreshments for the annual reunion supper.

Furniture Workers' Union Captured By Communists, Abe Klein Charges

Statement Is Made During Jurisdictional Dispute In Moorefield

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 9—At an open meeting at the P.O.S. of A. hall in Moorefield, the United Furniture Workers of America, CIO, heard Abe Klein, former international representative of the union, charge that "the whole U.F.W. of A. union has been captured by the Communist party."

Klein, who was instrumental in organizing the local union, stated that he, along with many other international representatives and officials, had resigned from his position in protest against the union being "taken over" by the Communists.

The U.F.W. of A. was split as a result of the convention at Detroit in June, Klein said, stating that Communist party members "took over 22 of the 28 offices in the union and that members of the union did not know that the Communists had stolen the union."

Bernard Mintner, the new representative of the U.F.W. of A., refused to answer Klein's charges in the open meeting and requested that the public and representatives of the management leave before discussing union business. He refused to reply to Klein's charges, stating that Klein was "clouding the issue with base charges."

The meeting was a culmination of negotiations between the union and the Thompson Mahogany Company for the renewal of the contract which expires this month. Klein is asking the local union to withdraw from the U.F.W. of A. and join the International Woodworkers of America, CIO. The two woodworkers's unions represent the right wing of I.W. of A. and the left wing of the U.F.W. of A.

At the public meeting Klein charged that "Local 296 of Thompson Mahogany Company workers voted 100 per cent with the Communist party at the Detroit convention through the delegate who voted their proxy." He further charged that "Louis Gilbert, who helped organize the local union, is a Communist official in Boston, and that Max Furlow, international secretary and treasurer of the union, was a Communist." He also stated that of the 40,000 members of the U.F.W. of A., 23,400 had withdrawn and had joined the I.W. of A.

It was indicated that the Thompson Mahogany Company will probably request the National Labor Relations Board to mediate in the jurisdictional dispute.

Addresses Legion Meeting

Harter said that 250,000 veterans had returned from the armed services and that it was up to the Veterans Administration to find jobs for those men. He explained the vocational training program, emphasizing that this is "Veterans' Opportunity" week and that the VA is making a special effort to place veterans in industry this week.

At the business meeting John M. Golladay Post of the American Legion authorized the trustees of the club to sell ten feet of their lot for a driveway to P. W. Clarke, who owns the property adjoining the Legion building. Clarke is commander of the local post.

Chickens Are Stolen

The first large-scale theft of chickens in Hardy county occurred last Monday or Tuesday night when between 300 and 400 special breeder chickens were stolen from the White Oak farms near Baker.

R. E. Ludwig, owner and operator of the farms, estimates his loss at $650. In addition to the chickens, about 25 coops were stolen at the same time. The thieves apparently drove into the farm at night with a truck to remove the fowls. The chickens were removed from three different chicken houses.

The chickens that were stolen were sold for August 1 delivery at $3 each.

The state police are working on the case and Ludwig has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of the culprits.

Other chicken raisers are warned to be on the lookout for further raids on flocks and to report the appearance of these chickens on any of the markets.

Business Places In Westernport To Be Licensed

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, July 9 — An ordinance to license all local business occupations which are not required to be licensed under state law was adopted by Mayor J. Milton McIntyre and the city commissioners at a meeting yesterday evening.

The ordinance, which appeals Ordinance No. 43, passed December 21, 1936, was drawn up by Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., city attorney. Some of the businesses which will be affected by the new ordinance are stores and taxi stands, it was stated.

A traffic light will be placed at the corner of Washington and Main streets. It will be purchased from the Tri-State Electrical Supply Company.

The steel bridge over Georges creek near Reese's station, which is 108 feet long and 16 feet wide, is safe for a gross vehicle loading of 10,000 pounds and should be posted accordingly, it was reported in a letter from John H. Steels And Motors Lead Market In Selective Comeback Of Stocks

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Steels and motors led the stock market on a selective comeback today although bidding was far from urgent and many pivotals were unable to shake off declines.

Brokers said that accounts were reinstated on a restricted basis because of the thought that liquidation had dried up to a minimum and that any really constructive news might bring a resumption. Some short covering in the steel and motor groups was apparently predicted on the idea these may have been oversold. Numerous customers continued to stand aside, however, pending outcome of the price control battle in Congress.

Transfers of 790,000 shares compared with 680,000 Monday and were the best in a week but still among the low aggregates for past months.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 79.2. It was off as much the day before. Of 926 issues registering, 421 rose and 293 fell.

In further reflection of the Canadian dollar revaluation, Distillers Corp., was up 1¼ at $26.25, a 1946 high; International Paper 1¼ at $48.75 and Hiram Walker 3 at $140. McGraw Electric, on a boosted dividend, added 2¾ at $44.25. Schenley was up 2½ at $30.25.

Norfolk and Western dropped 5 points at $257.50 on 150 shares. On the offside were Santa Fe, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, General Electric, Union Carbide and Johns-Manville.

Bonds were quiet and steady.

Among forward curb movers were Aluminum of America, Union Gas of Canada, Beaunit Mills, Cities Service, International Petroleum and Lake Shore. Turnover here was 270,000 shares versus 330,000 yesterday.

Late demand nudged the bond market ahead today after earlier aimless price movements.

The upward tendency at the finish, however, was hardly a decisive trend as a number of minus signs still spotted the list at the close.

Trades had to subsist on slim rations of business once again. Turnover amounted to only $3,740,000 compared with $3,280,000 Monday.

Rail obligations provided most of the activity, but commitments were held down tightly as bond men awaited ICC action on higher freight rates.

U. S. governments were trimmed a few 32ds of a point in the over-the-counter market with the victory loan Dec. 2½s priced at 104 3-32. Trade in the stock exchange was at a standstill.

Between now and early 1947 an Eastern manufacturer plans to turn out 500 helicopters.

Steels And Motors Lead Market In Selective Comeback Of Stocks

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Steels and motors led the stock market on a selective comeback today although bidding was far from urgent and many pivotals were unable to shake off declines.

Brokers said that accounts were reinstated on a restricted basis because of the thought that liquidation had dried up to a minimum and that any really constructive news might bring a resumption. Some short covering in the steel and motor groups was apparently predicted on the idea these may have been oversold. Numerous customers continued to stand aside, however, pending outcome of the price control battle in Congress.

Transfers of 790,000 shares compared with 680,000 Monday and were the best in a week but still among the low aggregates for past months.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 79.2. It was off as much the day before. Of 920 issues registering, 421 rose and 293 fell.

In further reflection of the Canadian dollar revaluation, Distillers Corp., was up 1¼ at $26.25, a 1946 high; International Paper 1¼ at $48.75 and Hiram Walker 3 at $140. McGraw Electric, on a boosted dividend, added 2¾ at $44.25. Schenley was up 2½ at $90.25.

Norfolk and Western dropped 5 points at $257.50 on 150 shares. On the offside were Santa Fe, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, General Electric, Union Carbide and Johns-Manville.

Bonds were quiet and steady.

Among forward curb movers were Aluminum of America, Union Gas of Canada, Beaunit Mills, Cities Service, International Petroleum and Lake Shore. Turnover here was 270,000 shares versus 330,000 yesterday.

Late demand nudged the bond market ahead today after earlier aimless price movements.

The upward tendency at the finish, however, was hardly a decisive trend as a number of minus signs still spotted the list at the close.

Trades had to subsist on slim rations of business once again. Turnover amounted to only $3,740,000 compared with $3,280,000 Monday.

Rail obligations provided most of the activity, but commitments were held down tightly as bond men awaited ICC action on higher freight rates.

U. S. governments were trimmed a few 32ds of a point in the over-the-counter market with the victory loan Dec. 2½s priced at 104 3-32. Trade in the stock exchange was at a standstill.

Between now and early 1947 an Eastern manufacturer plans to turn out 500 helicopters.

Canadian Money Orders To Be Issued At Par

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Post Office Inspector R. G. Parrott has announced the pursuant to an order from the Postmaster General, money orders drawn on Canada will be issued at par effective tomorrow.

He said the change was due to the recent action of the Canadian government in establishing its unit of currency on an equal basis with that of this country.

The Canadian dollar hertofore has been worth 90 cents in American money.

Assistant Postmaster James W. Webster said last night an official notice to this effect has been received here, by telegram and is effective immediately. Webster explained that the local post office has been selling money orders to Canada on a 90 cents per dollar basis for sometime. In other words a $10 money order for anyone in Canada, cost the sender here $9, but if a $10 money order was received from Canada it could be cashed for only $9 here. Going back to par, will make the transaction much simpler, Webster said.

Canadian Money Orders To Be Issued At Par

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Post Office Inspector R. G. Parrott has announced the pursuant to an order from the Postmaster General, money orders drawn on Canada will be issued at par effective tomorrow.

Parrott said the change was due to the recent action of the Canadian government in establishing its unit of currency on an equal basis with that of this country.

The Canadian dollar hertofore has been worth 90 cents in American money.

Assistant Postmaster James W. Webster said last night an official notice to this effect has been received here, by telegram and is effective immediately. Webster explained that the local post office has been selling money orders to Canada on a 90 cents per dollar basis for sometime. In other words a $10 money order for anyone in Canada, cost the sender here $9, but if a $10 money order was received from Canada it could be cashed for only $9 here. Going back to par, will make the transaction much simpler, Webster said.

Steels And Motors Lead Market In Selective Comeback Of Stocks

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—Steels and motors led the stock market on a selective comeback today although bidding was far from urgent and many pivotals were unable to shake off declines.

Brokers said that accounts were reinstated on a restricted basis because of the thought that liquidation had dried up to a minimum and that any really constructive news might bring a resumption. Some short covering in the steel and motor groups was apparently predicted on the idea these may have been oversold. Numerous customers continued to stand aside, however, pending outcome of the price control battle in Congress.

Transfers of 790,000 shares compared with 680,000 Monday and were the best in a week but still among the low aggregates for past months.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .2 of a point at 78.2. It was off as much the day before. Of 920 issues registering, 421 rose and 293 fell.

In further reflection of the Canadian dollar revaluation, Distillers Corp., was up 1¼ at $26.25, a 1946 high; International Paper 1¼ at $48.75 and Hiram Walker 3 at $140. McGraw Electric, on a boosted dividend, added 2¾ at $44.25. Schenley was up 2½ at $90.25.

Norfolk and Western dropped 5 points at $257.50 on 150 shares. On the offside were Santa Fe, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, General Electric, Union Carbide and Johns-Manville.

Bonds were quiet and steady.

Among forward curb movers were Aluminum of America, Union Gas of Canada, Beamit Mills, Cities Service, International Petroleum and Lake Shore. Turnover here was 270,000 shares versus 330,000 yesterday.

Late demand nudged the bond market ahead today after earlier aimless price movements.

The upward tendency at the finish, however, was hardly a decisive trend as a number of minus signs still spotted the list at the close.

Trades had to subsist on slim rations of business once again. Turnover amounted to only $3,740,000 compared with $3,280,000 Monday.

Rail obligations provided most of the activity, but commitments were held down tightly as bond men awaited ICC action on higher freight rates.

U. S. governments were trimmed a few 32ds of a point in the over-the-counter market with the victory loan Dec. 2½s priced at 104 3-32. Trade in the stock exchange was at a standstill.

Between now and early 1947 an Eastern manufacturer plans to turn out 500 helicopters.

Canadian Money Orders To Be Issued At Par

BALTIMORE, July 9 (AP)—Post Office Inspector R. G. Parrott has announced the pursuant to an order from the Postmaster General, money orders drawn on Canada will be issued at par effective tomorrow.

He said the change was due to the recent action of the Canadian government in establishing its unit of currency on an equal basis with that of this country.

The Canadian dollar hertofore has been worth 90 cents in American money.

Assistant Postmaster James W. Webster said last night an official notice to this effect has been received here, by telegram and is effective immediately. Webster explained that the local post office has been selling money orders to Canada on a 90 cents per dollar basis for sometime. In other words a $10 money order for anyone in Canada, cost the sender here $9, but if a $10 money order was received from Canada it could be cashed for only $9 here. Going back to par, will make the transaction much simpler, Webster said.

A total of 20,000,000 American men and women wear spectacles.

Steve O'Neill Dubs Williams "Greatest Hitter Of All Time"

Suggests Sox Lend Star To Every Other Club For A Week

By BILL KING

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — After watching Ted Williams hit two homers for his all-stars, Steve O'Neill, who master-minded the American leaguers to their most one-sided dream-game win, suggested that the Red Sox "lend their slugger to every other club for a week."

Steve O'Neill

"That Williams is the greatest hitter of all time," the jubilant O'Neill said after he had congratulated all of his mighty performers. "And Feller never has been much better. He had all his stuff clicking perfectly."

Boston's "splendid splinter" was still laughing about hitting Rip Sewell's "blooper" for the second of his two four-baggers as he headed for the showers.

"I wish I had a slow-motion film of that pitch," he declared. "But I have to thank Bill Dickey for that one. He told me to step into it."

"I should have done that just before you did it," broke in Vern Stephens, who poked a similar Sewell pitch for a single after backing up for it.

Sewell admitted he was surprised to have his "eephus" throw belted out of the park.

"I've been using it since 1941 and the longest previous hit was a triple by Stan Musial," Sewell declared. "That one was high and windblown too. Don't tell me the American League ball isn't much livelier than ours."

When Williams reached the clubhouse, he found a telegram from Alfred Lemoree, a Hudson, N. H. disabled war veteran, thanking him for "hitting a homer for me." And he also was informed that one of his admirers had wagered $100 to $50 that he would hit for the circuit in the 1946 classic. The slugger shook his head over that one.

Phils Get Donnelly From Cards; Braves Purchase Ken O'Dea

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — Blix Donnelly, 31-year-old right-handed pitcher, was obtained by the Philadelphia Phillies through waivers from the St. Louis Cardinals, President Ford Frick of the National League said today.

The transaction was the second completed by the Red Birds today. Earlier, officials of the Boston Braves announced they had purchased Catcher Ken O'Dea, also via the waiver route, from the St. Louis Club.

Brown Gets Purse But Is Suspended

Pittsburgh Boxer Barred For Life From Rings In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 9 (AP) — The Cleveland Boxing Commission today decreed that Mose Brown, 30-year-old Pittsburgh fighter, should be paid for last night's 10-rounder with Tommy Yarosz of Monaca, Pa., but suspended Brown for life from Cleveland rings.

Brown, winner of nis previous seven fights by knockouts, failed to menace Yarosz at any time, and the commission temporarily held up his end of the purse, a $600 fee, for what it termed an "unsatisfactory performance."

Until the commission released his money, Brown had only a big lump on his forehead to show for his 10-rounder. The lump sprouted after a head-bumping episode in the second round. Yarosz won an unanimous, one-sided decision.

Boggs, Roby Post 69 In Tournament

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase amateur, set a Kenwood course record of 66, five under par, yesterday when he teamed with Johnny Bass, Baltimore pro, to set the pace in the prao-amateur event in the three-in-one tournament at Kenwood.

Bogart, though he smacked two tee shots out of bounds, was out in 31 and back in 35. The old course mark was 67, set last year. Bass had 33-35—68, which took the pro sweepstakes.

Bogart and Bass tied with three other couples in the best ball pro-amateur match, at 63s.

Angott Collects $6,987 For Losing Battle With Jack

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Sammy Angott got $6,987.39 and a clean bill of health from the district boxing commission today.

The commission ordered his purse held up last night after he failed to come out for the seventh round of a wild brawl with Beau Jack, who was awarded a technical knockout, and held an inquiry.

Angott, showing the effects of a mauling, testified:

"I didn't go on because I couldn't. Low punches had hurt me so that all I could do was cover up."

Angott, 31 years old and never knocked out, said that his hip and leg felt paralyzed. However, he wanted to continue but his handlers would not let him.

The commission sustained the action of the referee in ending the bout. A commission doctor testified that X-ray pictures revealed some injuries to Angott but none that would not have left him "in full charge of his faculties."

Jack received $10,869.28 for his part with no questions asked.

Ennis Will Wed

PHILADELPHIA, July 9 (AP)—The engagement of Del Ennis, Philadelphia Phils' freshman outfielder star, and Lenore Claar, Philadelphia, both 21, was announced today by Miss Claar's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Viney.

They said the couple had gone together since their early school days here. Del and his fiancee were classmates at Olney high where both graduated in January, 1943.

American League Wins Nine In Row In Its Own Park

Four All-Star Defeats Were Suffered In National Parks

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — The American League All-Stars' 12-0 victory over the National League's best not only was the most lopsided contest in all-star competition, but marked the first shutout win for the junior circuit. Previously the only other shutout was turned in by the National leaguers, 4-0 in 1940.

The victory kept the American League slate of never having lost in its own park clean as its four defeats in 13 classics all came in National League parks.

Ted Williams' five runs batted in on two home runs and as many singles gave the Red Sox star the leadership in that department in all-star games with nine, bettering Joe Medwick's former highwater mark of six. Ted previously had knocked in four mates in the '41 classic.

When a well-wisher told Williams during batting practice he hoped the slugger would smash a home run during the game, the Red Sox star snapped, "I'll exchange two here for a little single in the Yankee stadium. They don't count," he moaned, "unless they're hit in New York."

Claude Passeau worked his way to a three and two count on Williams in the first inning. Then, probably realizing that the last time they met,—back in 41—Williams sent him down to defeat with a long homer. He figured discretion was the better part of valor and walked the angular outfielder.

Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, watched the game with his neck encased in a heavy leather brace which made it impossible for him to turn his head without moving his entire body. He suffered a chipped vertebra in his neck in the Braves-Dodgers double-header Sunday.

Al Schacht, as usual, gave a hilarious performance, with his imitations of Bob Feller and Ted Williams as good as the originas. Al incidentally, donated his fee for his services to the bereaved families of the Spokane ball players.

The national leaguers had a manager coaching on third base, a manger coaching on first base, and a manager in the dugout. Which maybe shows how little managers have to do with winning ball games.

Keller's home run, landing in the National league bullpen, acted as an automatic starter for the bullpen inmates. As soon as the ball landed there was furious activity, with a pitcher and catcher leaping up and throwing the ball back and forth as if the hit had touched a secret button.

Even before the game began, President Ford Frick of the National league yelled "we wuz robbed." The genial prexy referred to the stealing of his billfold containing $85 from his hotel room during the night.

Bobby Doerr, brilliant Red Sox second sacker, was the busiest guy on the field during batting practice. A keen camera fan, Doerr was buttonholing every player in sight to pose for his camera, which he obtained while in the army.

Major League Teams Resume Action Tomorrow

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The 16 major league baseball clubs will be idle for the third successive day tomorrow.

On Thursday, the eastern clubs of the National League begin their third invasion of the west with the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers invading the lair of the third place Chicago Cubs while the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals play host to the New York Giants under the arcs at Sportsman's Park.

The western teams of the American circuit journey east with the Detroit Tigers clashing with the pace-setting Red Sox in Boston and the Cleveland Indians meeting the second place Yankees under the lights in New York.

Selective Service Asked To Probe Campbell Case

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — The American Veterans Committee disclosed today that it has asked Selective Service to look into the case of Bruce Campbell, war veteran and ball player released by the Washington Senators last spring after a brief trial.

The A. V. C. took the position in a statement that Campbell, as a war veteran, is entitled to a full year's salary from the Washington club under the Selective Service Act.

Steve O'Neill Dubs Williams "Greatest Hitter Of All Time"

Suggests Sox Lend Star To Every Other Club For A Week

By BILL KING

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — After watching Ted Williams hit two homers for his all-stars, Steve O'Neill, who master-minded the American leaguers to their most one-sided dream-game win, suggested that the Red Sox "lend their slugger to every other club for a week."

Steve O'Neill

"That Williams is the greatest hitter of all time," the jubilant O'Neill said after he had congratulated all of his mighty performers. "And Feller never has been much better. He had all his stuff clicking perfectly."

Boston's "splendid splinter" was still laughing about hitting Rip Sewell's "blooper" for the second of his two four-baggers as he headed for the showers.

"I wish I had a slow-motion film of that pitch," he declared. "But I have to thank Bill Dickey for that one. He told me to step into it."

"I should have done that just before you did it," broke in Vern Stephens, who poked a similar Sewell pitch for a single after backing up for it.

Sewell admitted he was surprised to have his "eephus" throw belted out of the park.

"I've been using it since 1941 and the longest previous hit was a triple by Stan Musial," Sewell declared. "That one was high and windblown too. Don't tell me the American League ball isn't much livelier than ours."

When Williams reached the clubhouse, he found a telegram from Alfred Lemoree, a Hudson, N. H. disabled war veteran, thanking him for "hitting a homer for me." And he also was informed that one of his admirers had wagered $100 to $50 that he would hit for the circuit in the 1946 classic. The slugger shook his head over that one.

Phils Get Donnelly From Cards; Braves Purchase Ken O'Dea

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — Blix Donnelly, 31-year-old right-handed pitcher, was obtained by the Philadelphia Phillies through waivers from the St. Louis Cardinals, President Ford Frick of the National League said today.

The transaction was the second completed by the Red Birds today. Earlier, officials of the Boston Braves announced they had purchased Catcher Ken O'Dea, also via the waiver route, from the St. Louis Club.

Brown Gets Purse But Is Suspended

Pittsburgh Boxer Barred For Life From Rings In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 9 (AP) — The Cleveland Boxing Commission today decreed that Mose Brown, 30-year-old Pittsburgh fighter, should be paid for last night's 10-rounder with Tommy Yarosz of Monaca, Pa., but suspended Brown for life from Cleveland rings.

Brown, winner of nis previous seven fights by knockouts, failed to menace Yarosz at any time, and the commission temporarily heid up his end of the purse, a $600 fee, for what it termed an "unsatisfactory performance."

Until the commission released his money, Brown had only a big lump on his forehead to show for his 10-rounder. The lump sprouted after a head-bumping episode in the second round. Yarosz won an unanimous, one-sided decision.

Boggs, Roby Post 69 In Tournament

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase amateur, set a Kenwood course record of 66, five under par, yesterday when he teamed with Johnny Bass, Baltimore pro, to set the pace in the prao-amateur event in the three-in-one tournament at Kenwood.

Bogart, though he smacked two tee shots out of bounds, was out in 31 and back in 35. The old course mark was 67, set last year. Bass had 33-35—68, which took the pro sweepstakes.

Bogart and Bass tied with three other couples in the best ball pro-amateur match, at 63s.

Angott Collects $6,987 For Losing Battle With Jack

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — Sammy Angott got $6,987.39 and a clean bill of health from the district boxing commission today.

The commission ordered his purse held up last night after he failed to come out for the seventh round of a wild brawl with Beau Jack, who was awarded a technical knockout, and held an inquiry.

Angott, showing the effects of a mauling, testified:

"I didn't go on because I couldn't. Low punches had hurt me so that all I could do was cover up."

Angott, 31 years old and never knocked out, said that his hip and leg felt paralyzed. However, he wanted to continue but his handlers would not let him.

The commission sustained the action of the referee in ending the bout. A commission doctor testified that X-ray pictures revealed some injuries to Angott but none that would not have left him "in full charge of his faculties."

Jack received $10,869.28 for his part with no questions asked.

Ennis Will Wed

PHILADELPHIA, July 9 (AP)—The engagement of Del Ennis, Philadelphia Phils' freshman outfielder star, and Lenore Claar, Philadelphia, both 21, was announced today by Miss Claar's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Viney.

They said the couple had gone together since their early school days here. Del and his fiancee were classmates at Olney high where both graduated in January, 1943.

American League Wins Nine In Row In Its Own Park

Four All-Star Defeats Were Suffered In National Parks

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — The American League All-Stars' 12-0 victory over the National League's best not only was the most lopsided contest in all-star competition, but marked the first shutout win for the junior circuit. Previously the only other shutout was turned in by the National leaguers, 4-0 in 1940.

The victory kept the American League slate of never having lost in its own park clean as its four defeats in 13 classics all came in National League parks.

Ted Williams' five runs batted in on two home runs and as many singles gave the Red Sox star the leadership in that department in all-star games with nine, bettering Joe Medwick's former highwater mark of six. Ted previously had knocked in four mates in the '41 classic.

When a well-wisher told Williams during batting practice he hoped the slugger would smash a home run during the game, the Red Sox star snapped, "I'll exchange two here for a little single in the Yankee stadium. They don't count," he moaned, "unless they're hit in New York."

Claude Passeau worked his way to a three and two count on Williams in the first inning. Then, probably realizing that the last time they met,—back in 41—Williams sent him down to defeat with a long homer. He figured discretion was the better part of valor and walked the angular outfielder.

Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, watched the game with his neck encased in a heavy leather brace which made it impossible for him to turn his head without moving his entire body. He suffered a chipped vertebra in his neck in the Braves-Dodgers double-header Sunday.

Al Schacht, as usual, gave a hilarious performance, with his imitations of Bob Feller and Ted Williams as good as the originas. Al incidentally, donated his fee for his services to the bereaved families of the Spokane ball players.

The national leaguers had a manager coaching on third base, a manager coaching on first base, and a manager in the dugout. Which maybe shows how little managers have to do with winning ball games.

Keller's home run, landing in the National league bullpen, acted as an automatic starter for the bullpen inmates. As soon as the ball landed there was furious activity, with a pitcher and catcher leaping up and throwing the ball back and forth as if the hit had touched a secret button.

Even before the game began, President Ford Frick of the National league yelled "we wuz robbed." The genial prexy referred to the stealing of his billfold containing $85 from his hotel room during the night.

Bobby Doerr, brilliant Red Sox second sacker, was the busiest guy on the field during batting practice. A keen camera fan, Doerr was buttonholing every player in sight to pose for his camera, which he obtained while in the army.

Major League Teams Resume Action Tomorrow

NEW YORK, July 9 (AP)—The 16 major league baseball clubs will be idle for the third successive day tomorrow.

On Thursday, the eastern clubs of the National League begin their third invasion of the west with the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers invading the lair of the third place Chicago Cubs while the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals play host to the New York Giants under the arcs at Sportsman's Park.

The western teams of the American circuit journey east with the Detroit Tigers clashing with the pace-setting Red Sox in Boston and the Cleveland Indians meeting the second place Yankees under the lights in New York.

Selective Service Asked To Probe Campbell Case

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP) — The American Veterans Committee disclosed today that it has asked Selective Service to look into the case of Bruce Campbell, war veteran and ball player released by the Washington Senators last spring after a brief trial.

The A. V. C. took the position in a statement that Campbell, as a war veteran, is entitled to a full year's salary from the Washington club under the Selective Service Act.

American Loop Wins All-Star Game, 12-0

Williams Hits Two Homers Against National Pitchers

Keller Also Belts Four Bagger In One-Sided Tilt At Boston; 42 Players Participate

By GAYLE TALBOT

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — Ted Williams and the other young men of the American League administered a humiliating defeat to the National League at Fenway Park today, following the script right out the window as they hammered their hapless opponents into abject submission by 12 to 0, the most one-sided licking in the history of the all-star baseball tussle.

Just as they figured to do, the Americans dazzled their inter-league rivals with such pitching as they had not seen in a coon's age, and they rattled their teeth with a tremendous 14-hit attack that included three home runs, two of them by Williams and one by Charley Keller.

From the moment that Bob Feller fired the first ball across it was never a ball game, in the strictest sense. Yet 34,908 paying customers — most of them apparently Red Sox rooters — rocked the place with their yells all through the long slaughter and gave every indication of loving it.

Ted Tags "Blooper"

But the shout that must have been heard out around Bunker Hill was saved for the eighth inning, when Rip Sewell, the fourth National league chucker, made the mistake of tossing one of his "Blooper" balls to Williams with two on base. The last time anybody saw the sphere it was bouncing around in the National league bullpen in right field.

With Feller, Hal Newhouser and finally Jack Kramer cracking the ball past them in three-inning stints, the Nationals never had a chance of getting an attack started. Two of their three hits were infield scratches off Feller. Their only solid blow was delivered by Peanuts Lowry of the Chicago Cubs in the sixth inning, when he slapped a clean single to center off Newhouser with two out. After the first inning they never got a man past first. They were hog-tied and shackled both.

Keller Belts Homer

The Americans, on the other hand, thrived on their opponents' chucking right from the start. It was no later than the first inning when Keller laid into one of Claude Passeau's pitches with Williams on base and sailed it into the right-field bullpen. In the light of what happened later, they could have called the game right there.

In addition to his two mighty round-trippers — the first one in fourth inning landed high up in the center-field bleachers—Williams weighed in with a brace of singles and walked in his five trips to the plate. It was a great day for the limber Red Sox star. The only other player on either side to hit more than once was Vern Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, who rapped a single and a double and drove across two runs after joining the contest in the fifth frame.

42 Players Participate

Although he was charged with the defeat, Passeau was about the best of the four National League throwers. The winners really went to town against Kirby Higbe, slugging the Dodger righthander from the hill in the fifth, when they scored three times. They jarred Ewell Blackwell, the young Cincinnati righty, for two more in the seventh and wound up with four off Sewell in the eighth. Even Newhouser and Kramer joined in the fun, each getting a solid knock.

A total of 42 players participated in the one-sided affair, 21 on each side. Shortstop Marty Marion of the Cardinals was the only National Leaguer to go the full route, and only Williams and Keller played out the string for the Americans.

In walloping the Nationals by the greatest score in the history of the classic, the Americans gained a measure of revenge for the 7-1 pasting they absorbed in 1944, the last previous game. Up to today, that was the worst beating either side had administered. It is extremely doubtful there ever will be one greater than that of today. As it is, the Nationals probably will have to be talked into playing the thing next summer.

Jim Wilkinson's four-hit pitching coupled with a 12-hit assault on two opposing pitchers enabled the B.P.O. Elks to snap the twelve-game winning streak of the pace-setting Knights of Columbus in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at East Side field. The score was 10-5.

Not only did the Elks halt the twelve-game string of the Caseys but they also shattered the six-game victory skein of Anthony "Bud" Scaletta who retired in favor of Joe Neubiser with the score 7 to 5 against him in fifth, two runners on the paths and none out. Neubiser retired the next three batsmen in order but he yielded three hits and three runs in the sixth frame.

"Bud" Issues Seven Passes

Scaletta was as wild as the proverbial March hare, issuing a total of seven passes, and these free tickets helped lead to his downfall.

The Caseys nicked Wilkinson for three of their hits and four runs in the third but thereafter the Elks' ace was invincible. Jim yielded one hit and faced only 14 batsmen in the last four frames. It was his seventh win of the season against three losses.

"Sparky" Wins Another

Robert "Sparky" Chisholm scored his second mound triumph in as many days when he elbowed Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, to a 9-4 triumph over Potomac Edison at Campobello. It was the Legion's third successive win and placed the team within one game of the .500 mark.

"Red" Boyer rapped a triple and two singles and Bill Spangler and John R. Kelly, Jr., each hit safely twice to account for seven of the winners' 12 hits. Harrison homered for P. E.

The Loyal Order of Moose made it four in a row by taking the Texcel Club into camp, 9-6, at Taylor field. Twenty-six hits were made in this game, fourteen being credited to Texcel.

Jimmie Angellatta had a perfect day at bat for the victors by garnering three hits while Stewart and Warnick also had three blows each for Texcel.

Weltman Sews Up Game

Mike Weltman's two-bagger with two aboard in the last of the seventh scored Hollen and Benchie Often and enabled the Woodmen of the World to nose out the Cumberland Outdoor Club by the score of 8-7 on the Rolling Mill diamond.

Trailing 6-1, the Outdoor Club coupled three hits with two bases on balls and two errors to score six runs and take a 7-6 lead in the sixth inning. The Woodmen piled up a 6-0 lead in the first two frames, getting five tallies in the second on five hits, a pass and an error. J. Often, B. Often and Holshey shared six of the Woodmen's twelve hits.

THE SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — It was muggy in Fenway Park and a sticky heat haze hung low over the field where ball players in an odd assortment of uniforms were batting or fielding or playing catch or just standing around gabbing.

Charlie Grimm

The American League bench was surrounded by thick layers of photographers and writers while the bench of the National leaguers was practically ignored and you got the idea Charley Grimm and his National League All-Stars were baseball orphans and just props for an American League show. Grimm got the idea himself.

"Everybody thinks we came all this way just to take a licking," he said. "Gosh, we brought some bats with us, too."

Ford Frick poked his head around a corner of the dugout, then emerged beaming. "I just wanted to see that happy look on your face," he said to Grimm.

Charley accommodated with a rather sickly grin, then spotted Bill McKechnie.

"Hi, Deac," he called, "Can Posedel hit to the infield?" McKechnie picked up a bat. "I'll hit to the infield," he said. "Don't worry, I won't hurt any of your players."

The band, looking like British redcoats with flaming jackets and high, fuzzy hats, struck up "Till The End Of Time" and some one remarked it was just a hint to the National leaguers as to how long they were going to take lickings from the junior circuit stars.

Ted, Hal Exchange Banter

Hal Newhouser and Ted Williams were exchanging banter behind the batting cage.

"Why, you big stiff," Williams chided, "You only hit one home run in your life, and it had to be off us."

A group of National leaguers strolled by and Williams eyed the men curiously, particularly Ewell Blackwell, the lanky, towering Cincinnati pitcher.

"Who's that big skinny guy?" he asked.

"That's Peanuts Lowrey," Joe Gordon said without batting an eye. Williams believed it. "That right?" he said. "He looks like Williams back in '37."

A photographer was trying to get Dixie Walker and Mickey Vernon to pose holding bats, with fingers crossed for luck. Dixie good-naturedly but stubbornly refused. "I don't want to put the hex on anybody," he said. "I'm from Alabama and I know what a hex means."

The National leaguers started taking batting practice and as Del Ennis, the star Phillie rookie, came up, Williams stood up at the corner of the dugout and watched closely. He never misses a chance to study batting form.

"I want to see this new guy from Philadelphia hit," he explained.

Bobby Doerr was winding up a little movie camera in the dugout.

"Here's something I never seem to get around to," he said. "I haven't got pictures of Feller yet, or of Greenberg." He wouldn't get Greenberg today.

Bob Feller was a late arrival, climbing from the tunnel into the dugout with his white Cleveland uniform looking like he'd just hauled it out from a corner of a closet. It was wrinkled amazingly. Hal Newhouser surveyed him critically.

"Hey, what did you do?" he asked. "Sleep in that?" Feller just grinned.

Frick Tells of Robbery

Over in the National League dugout Frick was describing in great detail the great robbery. Somebody raided his room while he was asleep last night.

"Whenever I draw some money for a trip I invariably am given a $50 bill, and I always return it," he said. "I told them this morning, 'You don't have to worry about that $50 bill any more; it isn't coming back.'"

The National Leaguers seem to have all the bad luck.

MEXICO CITY, July 9. — (AP) — Danny Gardella, the former New York Giant, hit two home runs to help the "South" to an 11-8 triumph over the "North" in the annual Mexican League All-Star game today.

Fort Cumberland Post and Fulton Myers Post battled to a 4-4 deadlock in a City League contest yesterday at Community Park, the game being halted after eight complete innings by darkness.

The Legion used its junior team a greater part of the game but called its first stringers into action to catch the Negro aggregation just before darkness halted hostilities.

Manager Art Garbark's outfit knotted the count in the seventh when Jim Fahey, pinch-hitting for Collins doubled down the left foul line, raced to third when Eddie Diehl, hitting for Jim Close, hit safely, and scored on Elmer Freeland's infield out. Tommy Powers then singled to score Diehl with the tying marker.

Fulton Myers got three runs in the second on hits by Bill Smith and Bernard Smith, Cleggett's walk and "Bub" Frye's wild throw on Edmonson's bunt. Another run was added in the fourth on hits by R. Yates, Bill Smith, Cleggett and Bernard Smith but the rally died when Edmonson hit into a double play.

Collins's walk, Close's sacrifice and Powers's single gave the Legion its first run in the opening frame. Powers walked, pilfered second and third and scored on Jim Mangus's outfield fly in the fourth inning.

Pat Creegan pitched the first seven innings, yielding ten hits. George Geatz hurled the scoreless eighth. Bernard Smith went the route for Fulton Myers.

Fulton Myers executed three double plays and Banks turned in a sensational one-handed catch of Powers's fly in right in the fifth. Milford Dean led the hitters with three blows while Powers obtained two hits, batted in two runs and stole three bases.

At Stitcher field, the Fraternal Order of Eagles defeated the Loyal Order of Moose, 4 to 2. It was the eighth straight defeat for the Moose. The box:

American Loop Wins All-Star Game, 12-0

Williams Hits Two Homers Against National Pitchers

Keller Also Belts Four Bagger In One-Sided Tilt At Boston; 42 Players Participate

By GAYLE TALBOT

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — Ted Williams and the other young men of the American League administered a humiliating defeat to the National League at Fenway Park today, following the script right out the window as they hammered their hapless opponents into abject submission by 12 to 0, the most one-sided licking in the history of the all-star baseball tussle.

Just as they figured to do, the Americans dazzled their inter-league rivals with such pitching as they had not seen in a coon's age, and they rattled their teeth with a tremendous 14-hit attack that included three home runs, two of them by Williams and one by Charley Keller.

From the moment that Bob Feller fired the first ball across it was never a ball game, in the strictest sense. Yet 34,908 paying customers — most of them apparently Red Sox rooters — rocked the place with their yells all through the long slaughter and gave every indication of loving it.

Ted Tags "Blooper"

But the shout that must have been heard out around Bunker Hill was saved for the eighth inning, when Rip Sewell, the fourth National league chucker, made the mistake of tossing one of his "Blooper" balls to Williams with two on base. The last time anybody saw the sphere it was bouncing around in the National league bullpen in right field.

With Feller, Hal Newhouser and finally Jack Kramer cracking the ball past them in three-inning stints, the Nationals never had a chance of getting an attack started. Two of their three hits were infield scratches off Feller. Their only solid blow was delivered by Peanuts Lowry of the Chicago Cubs in the sixth inning, when he slapped a clean single to center off Newhouser with two out. After the first inning they never got a man past first. They were hog-tied and shackled both.

Keller Belts Homer

The Americans, on the other hand, thrived on their opponents' chucking right from the start. It was no later than the first inning when Keller laid into one of Claude Passeau's pitches with Williams on base and sailed it into the right-field bullpen. In the light of what happened later, they could have called the game right there.

In addition to his two mighty round-trippers — the first one in fourth inning landed high up in the center-field bleachers—Williams weighed in with a brace of singles and walked in his five trips to the plate. It was a great day for the limber Red Sox star. The only other player on either side to hit more than once was Vern Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, who rapped a single and a double and drove across two runs after joining the contest in the fifth frame.

42 Players Participate

Although he was charged with the defeat, Passeau was about the best of the four National League throwers. The winners really went to town against Kirby Higbe, slugging the Dodger righthander from the hill in the fifth, when they scored three times. They jarred Ewell Blackwell, the young Cincinnati righty, for two more in the seventh and wound up with four off Sewell in the eighth. Even Newhouser and Kramer joined in the fun, each getting a solid knock.

A total of 42 players participated in the one-sided affair, 21 on each side. Shortstop Marty Marion of the Cardinals was the only National Leaguer to go the full route, and only Williams and Keller played out the string for the Americans.

In walloping the Nationals by the greatest score in the history of the classic, the Americans gained a measure of revenge for the 7-1 pasting they absorbed in 1944, the last previous game. Up to today, that was the worst beating either side had administered. It is extremely doubtful there ever will be one greater than that of today. As it is, the Nationals probably will have to be talked into playing the thing next summer.

Jim Wilkinson's four-hit pitching coupled with a 12-hit assault on two opposing pitchers enabled the B.P.O. Elks to snap the twelve-game winning streak of the pace-setting Knights of Columbus in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at East Side field. The score was 10-5.

Not only did the Elks halt the twelve-game string of the Caseys but they also shattered the six-game victory skein of Anthony "Bud" Scaletta who retired in favor of Joe Neubiser with the score 7 to 5 against him in fifth, two runners on the paths and none out. Neubiser retired the next three batsmen in order but he yielded three hits and three runs in the sixth frame.

"Bud" Issues Seven Passes

Scaletta was as wild as the proverbial March hare, issuing a total of seven passes, and these free tickets helped lead to his downfall.

The Caseys nicked Wilkinson for three of their hits and four runs in the third but thereafter the Elks' ace was invincible. Jim yielded one hit and faced only 14 batsmen in the last four frames. It was his seventh win of the season against three losses.

"Sparky" Wins Another

Robert "Sparky" Chisholm scored his second mound triumph in as many days when he elbowed Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, to a 9-4 triumph over Potomac Edison at Campobello. It was the Legion's third successive win and placed the team within one game of the .500 mark.

"Red" Boyer rapped a triple and two singles and Bill Spangler and John R. Kelly, Jr., each hit safely twice to account for seven of the winners' 12 hits. Harrison homered for P. E.

The Loyal Order of Moose made it four in a row by taking the Texcel Club into camp, 9-6, at Taylor field. Twenty-six hits were made in this game, fourteen being credited to Texcel.

Jimmie Angellatta had a perfect day at bat for the victors by garnering three hits while Stewart and Warnick also had three blows each for Texcel.

Weltman Sews Up Game

Mike Weltman's two-bagger with two aboard in the last of the seventh scored Hollen and Benchie Often and enabled the Woodmen of the World to nose out the Cumberland Outdoor Club by the score of 8-7 on the Rolling Mill diamond.

Trailing 6-1, the Outdoor Club coupled three hits with two bases on balls and two errors to score six runs and take a 7-6 lead in the sixth inning. The Woodmen piled up a 6-0 lead in the first two frames, getting five tallies in the second on five hits, a pass and an error. J. Often, B. Often and Holshey shared six of the Woodmen's twelve hits.

THE SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

BOSTON, July 9 (AP) — It was muggy in Fenway Park and a sticky heat haze hung low over the field where ball players in an odd assortment of uniforms were batting or fielding or playing catch or just standing around gabbing.

Charlie Grimm

The American League bench was surrounded by thick layers of photographers and writers while the bench of the National leaguers was practically ignored and you got the idea Charley Grimm and his National League All-Stars were baseball orphans and just props for an American League show. Grimm got the idea himself.

"Everybody thinks we came all this way just to take a licking," he said. "Gosh, we brought some bats with us, too."

Ford Frick poked his head around a corner of the dugout, then emerged beaming. "I just wanted to see that happy look on your face," he said to Grimm.

Charley accommodated with a rather sickly grin, then spotted Bill McKechnie.

"Hi, Deac," he called, "Can Posedel hit to the infield?" McKechnie picked up a bat, "I'll hit to the infield," he said. "Don't worry, I won't hurt any of your players."

The band, looking like British redcoats with flaming jackets and high, fuzzy hats, struck up "Till The End Of Time" and some one remarked it was just a hint to the National leaguers as to how long they were going to take lickings from the junior circuit stars.

Ted, Hal Exchange Banter

Hal Newhouser and Ted Williams were exchanging banter behind the batting cage.

"Why, you big stiff," Williams chided, "You only hit one home run in your life, and it had to be off us."

A group of National leaguers strolled by and Williams eyed the men curiously, particularly Ewell Blackwell, the lanky, towering Cincinnati pitcher.

"Who's that big skinny guy?" he asked.

"That's Peanuts Lowrey." Joe Gordon said without batting an eye. Williams believed it. "That right?" he said. "He looks like Williams back in '37."

A photographer was trying to get Dixie Walker and Mickey Vernon to pose holding bats, with fingers crossed for luck. Dixie good-naturedly but stubbornly refused. "I don't want to put the hex on anybody," he said. "I'm from Alabama and I know what a hex means."

The National leaguers started taking batting practice and as Del Ennis, the star Phillie rookie, came up, Williams stood up at the corner of the dugout and watched closely. He never misses a chance to study batting form.

"I want to see this new guy from Philadelphia hit," he explained.

Bobby Doerr was winding up a little movie camera in the dugout.

"Here's something I never seem to get around to," he said. "I haven't got pictures of Feller yet, or of Greenberg." He wouldn't get Greenberg today.

Bob Feller was a late arrival, climbing from the tunnel into the dugout with his white Cleveland uniform looking like he'd just hauled it out from a corner of a closet. It was wrinkled amazingly. Hal Newhouser surveyed him critically.

"Hey, what did you do?" he asked. "Sleep in that?" Feller just grinned.

Frick Tells of Robbery

Over in the National League dugout Frick was describing in great detail the great robbery. Somebody raided his room while he was asleep last night.

"Whenever I draw some money for a trip I invariably am given a $50 bill, and I always return it," he said. "I told them this morning, 'You don't have to worry about that $50 bill any more; it isn't coming back.'"

The National Leaguers seem to have all the bad luck.

MEXICO CITY, July 9. — (AP) — Danny Gardella, the former New York Giant, hit two home runs to help the "South" to an 11-8 triumph over the "North" in the annual Mexican League All-Star game today.

Fort Cumberland Post and Fulton Myers Post battled to a 4-4 deadlock in a City League contest yesterday at Community Park, the game being halted after eight complete innings by darkness.

The Legion used its junior team a greater part of the game but called its first stringers into action to catch the Negro aggregation just before darkness halted hostilities.

Manager Art Garbark's outfit knotted the count in the seventh when Jim Fahey, pinch-hitting for Collins doubled down the left foul line, raced to third when Eddie Diehl, hitting for Jim Close, hit safely, and scored on Elmer Freeland's infield out. Tommy Powers then singled to score Diehl with the tying marker.

Fulton Myers got three runs in the second on hits by Bill Smith and Bernard Smith, Cleggett's walk and "Bub" Frye's wild throw on Edmonson's bunt. Another run was added in the fourth on hits by R. Yates, Bill Smith, Cleggett and Bernard Smith but the rally died when Edmonson hit into a double play.

Collins's walk, Close's sacrifice and Powers's single gave the Legion its first run in the opening frame. Powers walked, pilfered second and third and scored on Jim Mangus's outfield fly in the fourth inning.

Pat Creegan pitched the first seven innings, yielding ten hits. George Geatz hurled the scoreless eighth. Bernard Smith went the route for Fulton Myers.

Fulton Myers executed three double plays and Banks turned in a sensational one-handed catch of Powers's fly in right in the fifth. Milford Dean led the hitters with three blows while Powers obtained two hits, batted in two runs and stole three bases.

At Stitcher field, the Fraternal Order of Eagles defeated the Loyal Order of Moose, 4 to 2. It was the eighth straight defeat for the Moose. The box:

LaGuardia Radio Talks Continue Indefinitely

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 9. (AP)—The F. H. LaGuardia comment of ABC is now a Wednesday night feature. The time is 7:15.

Shift to the new spot resulted after a realignment of the Sunday night schedule was caused by a sponsor change. LaGuardia, having completed his first 26 weeks, is to continue indefinitely.

The Academy Award theater of CBS at 9 is presenting Henry Fonda as guest, he to play "Young Mr. Lincoln."

Like most other nights in the week, there is a plentitude of detective dramatization on the Wednesday night air. For one thing there's the District Attorney on NBC at 8:30, doing "The Case of Murder on Cosmo Mountain." For another is the new CBS series the Whistler, at 7, in which the detective whistles as he sleuths. For still another there is Ellery Queen of CBS at 6:30, playing this time "The Adventure of the Confidential Agent."

The Frankie Carle band is to fill in an open spot on the ABC network at 8:30, playing from Hollywood.

According to the NBC schedule Snooky Larson who sings has a late night show at 11:05, helped out by Owen Bradley and his orchestra as well as the Dixie Dons. The program originates from the studios of WSM, Nashville.

According to a contract arrangement, Al Pearce and his Gang of ABC at 2 p. m. will continue into the winter. They will get a sponsor, after running for some time under network auspices.

Tom P. Mulvihill flew naval fighting planes in the Pacific for almost four years without a scratch but wound up with a broken rib and multiple bruises and cuts recently when the engine of his small plane quit while he was "stalking" a grizzly bear and dumped him onto a Montana prairie.

A quick lunch can be achieved by combining a can of condensed cream of mushroom soup and one can of tuna fish. Season with curry powder.

Sunny Day Beauty

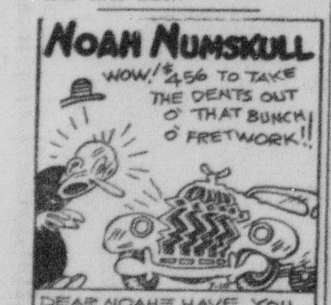

Mother, she loves to wear this saucy sundress . . . it's so comfy and cool. Pattern 9004 sews without complications and with few pattern parts. Bonnet and panties, too.

Pattern 9004 comes in sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8. Size 6 sunfrock, 1½ yards 35 inches; bonnet, five-eighths yard.

Send twenty-five cents in coins for this pattern to The Cumberland News, 39 Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York 11, N. Y. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

Fifteen cents more brings you the Marian Martin summer 1946 pattern book. Many brand-new, cool easy-to-make fashions for everyone. . . . And, printed right in the book is a free pattern for ballet slippers for home and beach wear.

SALESMAN

One of the oldest and largest national organizations is opening a division in Cumberland and has opening for three topnotch men. Good character, intelligence, the energy and ambition to be successful are the requisites. We train you thoroughly, supply definite leads and give every needed cooperation. We want men who are looking for a successful lifetime position in a dignified and most worthy field. If you have real executive ability you can find your level with us. We have your opportunity. During 1945 a former N. C. County Superintendent of Schools earned over $8,500 in N. C. This was his first year with us. A former $35-per-week shoe clerk earned over $10,000 in N. C. A former school teacher earned $248 with us last week, which was his fourth week with us. Two recently discharged servicemen are earning an average of $140 per week in their initial training period with us. These records are open to anyone. We have numerous similar cases in various states. Our clientele is the finest. We require good representatives. I will be in Cumberland within two weeks to interview applicants. If you are appointed, I will personally demonstrate before you how simple it is to earn upwards from $150 per week with us. Please write, giving qualifications, address and telephone to:

No. 19409 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a Vinculo Matrimonii of the Plaintiff from the Defendant.

Two recently discharged servicemen are earning an average of $140 per week in their initial training period with us. These records are open to anyone. We have numerous similar cases in various states. Our clientele is the finest. We require good representatives. I will be in Cumberland within two weeks to interview applicants. Antonio Joefra Jumps Off Bridge Here And Drowns

Volunteers Drag Stream For Five Hours Before Recovering Body

After dragging the Potomac river here yesterday afternoon for five hours, Fred "Buck" Dreyer and his rescue corps recovered the body of Antonio Joefra, 66, of rear 221 Humbird street, who allegedly jumped from Knobley tunnel bridge of the Western Maryland railway, yesterday about 11:30 a. m.

The man was seen walking across the trestle by Charles Neil, of 705 Virginia avenue, who was also crossing the bridge some distance behind Joefra. He was also seen on the bridge by Danford Hoople, 13, of 304 Virginia avenue, who was sitting in the mouth of the tunnel, "where it was cool."

Threw Rocks Into River

According to the boy, he watched Joefra throw a couple of rocks into the river, and then turned his eyes away for a minute. When he looked back, Joefra had disappeared.

Neil, a railroader, said he did not see the man jump or fall, but had noticed him walking some distance ahead and saw him stop and look down at the water. Neil said he looked up and the man had disappeared.

The Hoople boy and Neil both ran to the spot where they last saw Joefra on the bridge, and found the man's hat, in which was a slip of paper, printed in a school boyish-like scrawl. The paper bore the date, July 9, 1946, and the man's name and address, Antonio Joefra, 221 Humbird street, and then the man's name in what appeared to be his signature.

Police said the hat also contained two of the ballast stones he had been throwing into the river and a half-filled pint bottle of liquor.

Neil notified authorities, and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, City Police Sgt. Raymond Johnson and City Detective Edwin Lilya went to the scene and conducted an investigation. They were convinced the man jumped into the river, and notified "Buck" Dreyer who took his rescue equipment to the river.

Native Of Italy

The body was hooked by one of the volunteers, Robert Lanam, 15, of 1210 Lafayette avenue. It was placed in the boat and floated to Wiley Ford, W. Va., where Dreyer could meet the boats with his rescue truck. The body was then removed to Stein's funeral home.

Police reported they were told Joefra, a native of Italy, came here about 1903. He has no known relatives, except for a cousin who is believed to live in Connellsville, Pa. He was married about 16 years ago but was divorced within six or seven months, police said.

Joefra has not worked of late, police said, adding that in former years he operated a greenhouse on Humbird street.

Authorities learned late last night that Joefra was born in Nasal, Italy, October 1, 1879, and came to the United States in 1903. He spelled his name Antonio Joefra on his identification card and note he left on the bridge. When he became a citizen, he spelled it Geofra, and when his divorce was granted, it was spelled Joffre.

RESCUERS RECOVER BODY—Two volunteers are shown here lifting the body of Antonio Joefra, 66, of Humbird street, into a rescue boat, after they spent more than five hours dragging the Potomac River. Joefra is reported by police to have jumped into the river from the Western Maryland railway bridge at Knobley tunnel yesterday before noon. (See story)

Light Lists Five Street Projects, Asks Cost Figures

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, has been requested by Commissioner Myers G. Light to prepare cost estimates for either paving or repairing five Cumberland streets which have had little or no work done on them since before the war. Light said he plans to submit the estimate to the mayor and council as soon as it is prepared.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said the work would probably entail a bond issue unless funds are provided by the state. Last year the state provided $31,000 for city work, but a recent request for an appropriation to the state roads commission has not been heard from as yet, the mayor added.

1— Virginia avenue—This would include 2,500 feet of resurfacing and blacktopping plus the raising of castings for manholes.

2— Decatur street—To be paved with a drainage system provided. Rizer said the drainage system, including catch basins and storm sewers, are now being installed and that this will be followed by a revision of the curbs, with emphasis on corners, to enable trucks to negotiate them more readily.

3— Victoria avenue—General improvement program. This street already has some curbs and concrete gutters and more curb improvements are to be installed under present plans.

4— Warwick avenue—This would represent an entire new job—paving, gutters, curbing and blacktopping. Rizer said that with exception of 25 feet, there are no gutters on the street.

5— Braddock road — Little or nothing has been done on this road since it was built and consequently repair work and resurfacing are needed. Rizer said that "Braddock road takes a licking from heavy trucks, as is the case with all streets on grades."

Pig Iron Shortage Delays Pipe Order

Arrangements are being made by the Civilian Production Administration to give preference to all housing needs for pressure pipe after August 1, according to a letter received yesterday by Commissioner William J. Edwards from J. A. Claussen of the CPA steel branch, metals and minerals division.

Edwards said he wired J. D. Small, CPA chairman, July 1 regarding the possibility of obtaining a priority for pig iron necessary in manufacturing cast iron pipe. An order for 2,500 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe was paced with McKaig's foundry June 17 for the purpose of extending the city water system to sections where GI homes are being built.

McKaig's was notified by the United States Pipe and Foundry Company in Pittsburgh that the current pig iron shortage is delaying manufacture of the pipe. The company suggested contacting the Civilian Production Administration for a priority, certifying that the material to be purchased would be used in connection with veterans' housing.

Claussen said in his letter that the pig iron shortage is due to lengthy steel and coal strikes this year, adding that it is hoped production will reach a more normal state within 30 days.

City Tax Collections Total $238,108.04

With $36,400 in city taxes collected yesterday, the second largest single day's total since collections began June 28, tax collections have reached a total of $238,108.04, according to Charles F. Burke, Jr., city tax collector.

On July 2 a total of $37,900 was collected during the day at the collector's office in city hall.

July 16 is the deadline for payment of city taxes. After that time interest will be charged.

TWUA Will Demand Immediate Raises

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 9 (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) will make immediate demands for wage increases for its members, R. R. Lawrence, southern regional director for TWUA, announced here tonight.

Wage provisions of union contracts now in force will be observed, Lawrence said. However, he added, "most southern contracts can and will be opened immediately."

LaVale Civic Association Plans To Investigate Water Problem

Goodfellow Says Company Has Improvements Underway; Asks Co-operation

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Many residents of LaVale are complaining of a shortage of water and lack of water pressure, and the situation has reached a point where some homes are without water entirely for long periods every day. Directors of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association are studying the problem and a committee has been named to make an investigation.

In the Woodlawn section, some residents say when water faucets are opened nothing comes out, "not even air." On the upper side of the highway through LaVale, some residents say they find it necessary to go to the basement to draw water, as pressure is too low to carry water through the pipes in the upper floors.

Klosterman's Addition has also been hard hit, and complaints from this area have likewise been numerous.

Creates Fire Hazard

Members of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company claim the situation creates a definite fire hazard as well as a hazard to health and sanitation. Residents are complaining that their lawns and gardens are dying, and one man last night said he has been bathing and shaving at his office in Cumberland for several days.

On the other side of the ledger, D. Clifford Goodfellow, president of the LaVale Water Company, a private stock corporation, said yesterday he is fully aware of the situation, and has also heard countless complaints. He said, "When people call in, sometimes I'm afraid the telephone will jump out of my hand."

During the war, he said, it was impossible to buy material or get labor to improve facilities or enlarge the water system. So for nearly five years, expansion has been impossible. Just recently, however, work was started on a new eight-inch pipe line from the Red hill section to be tied in with the present four-inch line at Crystal park. As material and labor are available, he declared, plans are complete to extend the eight-inch line all the way down the highway.

Reservoirs Filled

Ironically enough, the reservoirs, checked yesterday, were filled with water, and it was necessary to operate only one pump on the system, Goodfellow declared.

This indicates, he explained, that there is plenty of water, but existing lines are too small to carry enough water to supply all consumers.

Numerous persons have been using lawn sprinklers and garden hose, despite appeals of the company to refrain from this practice until facilities can be expanded, Goodfellow said. This creates a hardship on other persons farther along the line. When a few sprinklers and hose are going and other people are drawing water, the supply is exhausted and pressure drops before distant sections can be served.

A program of intelligent conservation all along the line will help some, but there will be no real service, Goodfellow acknowledged, until the new line can be completed.

The present section of eight-inch line will not materially remedy the situation without continued conservation, he explained, as the larger line will feed into the smaller line. Pressure will increase a little, but the supply coming through will still be limited by the four-inch carrier, he added.

Goodfellow said he ordered the pipe now being installed nearly a year ago, and has placed orders for additional pipe. It will be installed as it becomes available, and when an eight-inch line extends from Red Hill down to the Narrows, the entire area will have sufficient water and adequate pressure for normal requirements.

575 Homes Served

There are about 575 homes serviced by the LaVale Water Company, Goodfellow said. These are supplied by three springs and three deep wells, with reservoirs for storage placed on high points. These reservoirs are constantly kept filled, he declared.

Some of the complaining citizens say the company raised the water rental fees from $18 a year to $20 a year April 1, this year.

Goodfellow said yesterday this report is correct and that the company will not benefit by the increase until October 1, but is still planning to spend many times the increase in improvements.

He also indicated that steps will be taken immediately to gain the co-operation of all consumers on the company's lines to conserve water as much a spossible during the hot months.

In winter months, when no lawns or gardens are being watered, no cars are being washed, and the normal demand for water is less, there are seldom any complaints, Goodfellow and several of the residents agreed.

Board Defers Action On Voting Machines

Action was deferred by the county commissioners yesterday on a request of the board of election supervisors that 118 voting machines be purchased for installation in the 75 polling places in the county prior to the November election.

Commissioner Simeon W. Green did not attend the session, and action was deferred by Commissioners Charles N. Wilkinson and James Holmes.

The request that the machines be purchased was made by Patrick F. King, clerk to the election board, and Frank Stone, of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, Jamestown, N. Y. It was explained that the machines will cost about $1,053 each and that they may be paid for in 10 years with an approximate annual payment of $13,000.

George M. Leib presented a request that the property of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, Greene street, be exempt from 1947 taxes. Under state law, such organizations are not required to pay property taxes.

Andrew Wolford asked that a road in Homewood Addition be repaired, and the request was referred to County Engineer John H. Carscaden for investigation.

E. O. Paxton and Henry M. Knieriem also asked that another road in the same section be repaired, and the engineer was instructed to investigate.

Gas Company-Union Sign New Contract

The Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company and Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, have signed a new contract, effective until June 1, 1947, for about 25 workers of the company, C. E. Stutzman, business agent of the union, reported last evening. Pay increases, retroactive to May 1, 1946, were included in the pact signed yesterday, the union official said.

Contract negotiations between the union and the City Ice and Fuel Company and the Co-operative Ice Company, are under way, Stutzman added.

Rep. Randolph Calls For Full Production

Congressman Tells Rotarians Americans Are Challenged To Stay On Job

Full production is the major answer to the economic unrest in America, Rep. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) told members of the Cumberland Rotary Club in an address yesterday at Central YMCA.

Discussing conditions in the United States today, Rep. Randolph declared that "complete controls rather than artificial controls will be necessary for real prosperity. Full production is the major answer to the economic unrest in America. We are challenged now, more than ever before, to stay on the job in field, factory, mine or office."

Rep. Randolph advocated the creation of a Department of Peace, and now has a bill pending in Congress to do this.

"The people of the earth," he said, "must learn to live together. Our nation has a responsibility for leadership to the end that wars cease. To say war is controlled by some power we cannot conquer is to admit defeat. War is man-made—and therefore man can unmake war."

Army Planes Due Here For Show

A flight of army planes and helicopters has been promised to the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce for its air show at Municipal Airport, Wiley Ford, W. Va., August 4, according to Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

David Kauffman, president of the Jaycees said Rep. Beall and Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, were contacted by members of the Jaycee aviation committee, asking their help in getting army planes for the affair.

The two congressmen contacted officials of the War department, and were assured, weather permitting, that planes would be here to participate in the show, Rep. Beall said in a telephone call last night.

The air show, being conducted by the Jaycees as a part of its program to further interest in aviation locally, will be educational and entertaining, members of the committee said yesterday. A number of nationally known stunt fliers and parachute jumpers have been booked for the performance, and three hours of thrilling entertainment are promised.

The Jaycees, in co-operation with the management of the airport, are making plans to accomodate and entertain a crowd of at least 5,000 persons. The show is tentatively scheduled to begin Sunday, August 4, at 2 p. m.

Post Office Workers Give Party In Honor Of Retiring Officials

Frank Storm, a former postal clerk and civil service secretary, now a civil commissioner in North Carolina, who is vacationing here, was toastmaster.

Speakers at the dinner included the guests of honor, Clyde Hammond, Baltimore, president of the Maryland Federation of Postal Clerks, and Morris Eisenberg, superintendent of the Essex branch post office, Baltimore, and formerly state representative of the Postal Clerks Association.

Farewell mementos were presented to the three retiring post office officials.

The committee which made arrangements included Mr. and Mrs. George Stotler and Joseph Grabenstein. There were 43 guests at the party.

Approval Of Dam And Flood Control Measure Is Seen

Beall, Randolph Expect Differences In Omnibus Bill To Be Resolved

Cumberland flood control and Savage river dam measures now in Congress are progressing properly and there is no reason to feel that approval of either will not be secured, on the basis of reports submitted by Rep. J. Glenn Beall and Jennings Randolph yesterday afternoon at a conference of the two congressmen with the Ridgeley, W. Va., flood control committee and Harold W. Smith, of the municipal planning and zoning commission.

The entire subject was discussed at the meeting, according to Smith, who pointed out that the Cumberland and Savage river projects are not involved in differences in the omnibus bill now being resolved by a conference committee set up by the Senate and the House.

Rep. Beall and Rep. Randolph told the group that they believe the differences will be ironed out and the committee's proposals will be passed in both houses. Then the bill will be sent to the president for his approval, and there is no indication that he will not act favorably on it.

The congressmen told the group that they believe both projects—Cumberland flood control and Savage river dam—will be approved by Congress and the president within a couple of weeks.

They pointed out, however, that the possibility of appropriations for the work at this session of Congress are remote, and said that the question of appropriations will come up at the next session of Congress early in the year.

Rep. Beall pointed out that the Cumberland flood control measure is the only one in the omnibus bill that is not to be paid for on a 50-50 basis, but instead is an almost 8 to 1 basis with the federal government to pay considerably more than $7,000,000 and Cumberland to pay $1,000,000 of the cost.

Judges Sustain Store's Demurrer In Damage Suit

A demurrer to a $50,000 damage action against a Cumberland store, resulting from a child being burned while wearing cowboy "chaps" more than a year ago, was sustained in an opinion handed down in circuit court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

The boy, James Edmond Detrick, son of Israel Edmond Detrick, of Ridgeley, was burned December 26, 1944, when a spark flew from a bon-fire and ignited the woolly pants.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., attorneys for the child, sued Louis P. Lutz and Ida K. Lutz, trading as Lou's Auto Stores, alleging the suit sold on December 23, 1944, was purchased with the understanding that it was safe to wear.

Attorney Files Demurrer

Clarence Lippel, counsel for the defendants, filed a demurrer, contending the bill of complaint was insufficient in law.

The judges, sustaining the demurrer, cited that the bill did not contain sufficient allegations and did not sufficiently allege breach of warranty.

It was also pointed out that the bill did not show the proximity of the boy to the fire, and did not contain sufficient allegations to show the defendants liable under an implied warranty.

It was indicated that an amended bill of complaint will be filed by attorneys for the boy and his father.

Wife Gets Decree

Mrs. Mary W. Lacy, of 206 Avirett avenue, has been granted a divorce from Robert J. Lacy, Harrison street, in a decree signed by Chief Judge William A. Huster. Married 23 years, Joseph Carnell, of this city, has filed suit for a divorce from Mrs. Dorothy E. Carnell, His counsel, Naughton, said they were married December 23, 1923, in this city and lived together until June 28, 1944.

George I. Click, represented by Edwin M. Horchler, filed suit for a divorce from Mrs. Viola J. (Hyre) Click, of Cumberland. They were married May 23, 1938, in this city, and lived together until February 15, 1943.

New Laboratory Will Be Provided

Work began yesterday morning on converting a storage room on the third floor of the Public Safety building into a laboratory for the use of the federal nutrition unit which has established headquarters here, according to Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

The room was formerly used for storage purposes by the Cumberland branch laboratory of the state department of health, which occupies the entire third floor of the building.

Funds for the remodeling work were provided through appropriations made by the state department of health.

The nutrition unit, which has office space in the basement of city hall, includes a staff chemist, Dr. Nicholas Barbella, who will use the new laboratory when it is completed, Dr. Franklin said.

After the nutrition unit completes its survey of conditions in the Cumberland area, the new laboratory will be used by personnel of the Cumberland branch laboratory of the state department of health. The nutrition survey, started in June, is expected to take from two to three years.

June Jobless Pay Claims Are Lowest Since May 1945

Claimants For Unemployment Compensation Hit Peak In May 1946

For the first time since May 1945 there was a decrease in June in the monthly number of claims for unemployment compensation, according to Francis Kenney, claims deputy at the local office of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board.

Kenney pointed out that there was a steady advance from about 90 claimants filing in May 1945 until the high mark of 4,649 claimants was reached in May of this year. In June, however, the number decreased to 3,813.

The decrease applies, Kenney stated, not only to claims for unemployment compensation but also to claims filed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance act.

Number Is Negligible

While some of the decrease may be due to the fact that some claimants have drawn the maximum in benefits allowed under the law, Kenney said it is his opinion that that number is negligible.

Although he could not be positive about it, the deputy said the decline in the number of claimants probable reflects a leveling-off of the unemployment condition in the county.

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office of the United States Employment Service, said that although unemployment has more or less leveled off the employment situation at the present time is at very low ebb.

The number of calls for employes from employers is at the lowest point now than at any time since 1940, Carroll said.

Expects Slight Increase

He said that between 3,900 and 4,000 unemployed persons, about 1,000 of them women, are currently registered for work at the local USES office, and that there may be a slight increase as more servicemen return. The USES does not have jobs to offer applicants, Carroll said.

Carroll expressed the opinion that unemployment in the county almost has reached its peak, but he indicated that he believes the peak has not yet been hit.

Macaroni Union Accepts 10 Cent Hourly Increase

Members of Local 1132, Macaroni Workers Union, CIO, voted unanimously last evening to accept a company offer of a 10 cent hourly wage increase and to return to work at the Cumberland Macaroni Company which has been closed since June 6 when workers struck to enforce wage demands.

A union committeeman, who announced the return-to-work decision, said the vote to accept the offer was 100 per cent and added that the company was notified at once of the decision.

Union officials added that the increase will become effective at once and that the new contract will contain a six-month reopening clause.

A company official said limited production will begin today and added that full production will begin as soon as possible. He added that supplies of flour for the manufacture of macaroni and noodle products are available in greater quantity now.

The Thomas street plant employs some 40 workers and uses about 125 barrels of flour a day in normal production.

A tentative agreement of the dispute was reached Monday afternoon at a meeting between company and union officials and James A. Holden federal conciliator, who has been assisting in the negotiations. At the Monday meeting, union committeemen agreed to recommend that members accept the offer.

The union struck June 6 for a 30 cents hourly wage increase. At a recent meeting, the men turned down a seven cents an hour offer since union officials said they insisted on a 30-day reopening clause in case of inflationary price increases.

Navy Recruiter Makes Informal Inspection Here

Lt. Ira J. Joyner Outlines New Enlistment Plan And V-6 Policy

Lt. Ira J. Joyner, officer in charge of United States Navy recruiting, Baltimore, visited the local recruiting station yesterday on a tour of inspection, and complimented local recruiters on the number and calibre of recruits being enrolled here.

Lt. Joyner called attention to two recent rulings of interest to navy veterans and men who plan to enroll in the navy.

He explained that the navy has changed its enlistment policy and first enlistments are now open in the navy for those 17 years of age for minority term only, that is until they are 21. For men 18 through 30 years of age, the term is for either four or six years.

For re-enlistment, he explained, men with at least one year of previous naval service, terms of enlistment are for two, three, four or six years. For men entering a first enlistment and qualifying for the electronic technician training, the term is either two, three, four or six years. Men qualifying for this technical training will be given the equivalent of a $5,000 education.

It is now possible, Lt. Joyner said, for navy veterans interested in enlisting in V-6, the navy inactive reserve, to be sworn in at the local recruiting office, without going to Baltimore. Lt. Joyner said a number of men here are interested in V-6, but do not care to lose a day of work to go to Baltimore.

When the naval reserve division is formed in Cumberland within the next few months, only men already on a V-6 status, can be assigned to the division, Lt. Joyner explained.

Further information regarding the naval reserve unit here will be available soon, the recruiter indicated.

Mrs. Muncaster was a member of Emmanuel Episcopal church.

She is survived by one daughter, Miss Margery I. Muncaster, at home; and one brother, Guy J. Spear, Cumberland.

Consumers Must Pay Higher Price For Coal

Consumers who have purchased coal since May 13 must pay coal dealers the difference between the price paid and new rates that are retroactive to May 13, as a result of increases in fuel prices allowed by the federal government. The increases average about 40 cents a ton.

After miners were granted a wage increase following a two-month strike, an increase in fuel prices was authorized by the Solid Fuels Administration and the OPA. The amount varied in different areas, depending on the work-week and other factors.

Stoker coal is now $6.15 for nut size and $6.25 a ton for pea size. Run of mine coal has been boosted from $5.75 to $6.30 a ton. Prices are about the same for all dealers here, it was said.

Phil Fleming Is Elected Head Of Legion Post

John R. Kelly, Jr., And John W. Sloan Are Elected Vice Commanders

Phil Fleming, 700 Baker street, veteran of World War II, was elected commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, in the annual election held Monday at the post home, according to results announced at the regular meeting last night.

Fleming, who enlisted in the army air corps early in the war and served at Scott field, Ill., as an instructor, defeated his lone opponent, Thomas R. Farrell, veteran of World War I, by a vote of almost two to one.

John R. Kelly, Jr., was elected first vice commander, defeating Arthur R. Flurshutz and Ralph E. Wilkinson in a close contest.

John W. Sloan was named second vice commander by default, as he was unopposed. He is a veteran of World War II, and a son of the late David Sloan, well known for his activity in Legion circles.

Paupe Is Reelected

Other officers elected without opposition include Russell C. Paupe, adjutant; Leo C. Reichart, finance officer, and William H. Treiber, historian.

John R. Neff, another World War II veteran defeated Robert S. Byer in a close contest for sergeant at arms.

Robert C. Bowers and William "Boots" Miller were elected to the executive committee. Oscar F. "Jim" Shober was the unsuccessful candidate.

Paul W. Weisenmiller won the contest for chaplain by a wide margin, defeating Claude L. Deal and Joseph L. Wolf.

The new officers will be installed, according to Commander Samuel A. Graham, at the next regular meeting, Tuesday, July 23. Frank Powers, vice commander of Mountain district, will be the installing officer.

On Junior Legion Team

Fleming has been interested in the Legion since he was a boy, he told a reporter last night. In 1934, he was a pitcher on the Junior American Legion ball team, which won the national championship and brought nationwide publicity to Cumberland. He pitched for the team for four seasons, and was also active in the formation and management of the Sons of the Legion drum corps, although actually not eligible for membership.

As soon as he was discharged from the army, Fleming joined the Legion post here. He served a term as sergeant-at-arms, being elected almost immediately after joining, and is the present second vice commander.

His interest in the Legion is probably best demonstrated in one fact of which he is very proud.

At 1:50 p. m., February 2, 1946, a daughter, Jane Francis Fleming was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fleming. At 2:15 p. m., the same day, before the child was a half-hour old, he enrolled her as an active member of the Ladies Auxiliary to Fort Cumberland Post, and she is one of the auxiliary's youngest members.

Fleming is a native of Ridgeley, W. Va. Prior to entering the service he was employed at the Celanese plant, but since his return, has been employed at Rosenbaum's store.

Playgrounds Closing Earlier In Evening

The eight city playgrounds are now closing at 8 p. m. instead of at 9 p. m., effective this week, because the days are growing shorter and it is too dark for the children to play after that time, according to Mrs. Ralph Stein, playground supervisor. The regular opening time of 9 a. m. is unchanged.

Reporting that attendance is maintaining the high average set at the beginning of the season, Mrs. Stein said that between 1,200 and 1,500 children use the playgrounds each week.

Approximately 125 children and their parents attended an informal entertainment at the Columbia street playground yesterday evening. The musical program included saxophone and accordion duets by Jimmie and Billy Hiser, and group singing, led by Mrs. Dorothy Darber.

Arrangements for the entertainment were made by Mrs. Stein and the two Columbia street playleaders, Mrs. Lulu Arnold and Mrs. Herman Hale.

A similar program will be presented today at 7 p. m. at the Gephart playground, and children and their parents are invited to attend. Mrs. Rodger Koegel and Miss Noel Barnard are the Gephart playleaders.

A recital, including singing and recitations, was presented by children attending the East Side playground yesterday morning, under the direction of Mrs. Frances Frey and Mrs. Betty Frey, playleaders.

Lucas intends to re-enter Allegany high school in September for his senior year. His brother, Cpl. Philip R. Lucas, Jr., an Allegany graduate, was discharged several months ago after 31 months in the South Pacific.

Antonio Joefra Jumps Off Bridge Here And Drowns

Volunteers Drag Stream For Five Hours Before Recovering Body

After dragging the Potomac river here yesterday afternoon for five hours, Fred "Buck" Dreyer and his rescue corps recovered the body of Antonio Joefra, 66, of rear 221 Humbird street, who allegedly jumped from Knobley tunnel bridge of the Western Maryland railway, yesterday about 11:30 a. m.

The man was seen walking across the trestle by Charles Neil, of 705 Virginia avenue, who was also crossing the bridge some distance behind Joefra. He was also seen on the bridge by Danford Hoople, 13, of 304 Virginia avenue, who was sitting in the mouth of the tunnel, "where it was cool."

Threw Rocks Into River

According to the boy, he watched Joefra throw a couple of rocks into the river, and then turned his eyes away for a minute. When he looked back, Joefra had disappeared.

Neil, a railroader, said he did not see the man jump or fall, but had noticed him walking some distance ahead and saw him stop and look down at the water. Neil said he looked up and the man had disappeared.

The Hoople boy and Neil both ran to the spot where they last saw Joefra on the bridge, and found the man's hat, in which was a slip of paper, printed in a school boyish-like scrawl. The paper bore the date, July 9, 1946, and the man's name and address, Antonio Joefra, 221 Humbird street, and then the man's name in what appeared to be his signature.

Police said the hat also contained two of the ballast stones he had been throwing into the river and a half-filled pint bottle of liquor.

Neil notified authorities, and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle, City Police Sgt. Raymond Johnson and City Detective Edwin Lilys went to the scene and conducted an investigation. They were convinced the man jumped into the river, and notified "Buck" Dreyer who took his rescue equipment to the river.

Native Of Italy

Dreyer said last evening "it was one of the worst places I ever tried to get the boats into."

The body was hooked by one of the volunteers, Robert Lanam, 15, of 1210 Lafayette avenue. It was placed in the boat and floated to Wiley Ford, W. Va., where Dreyer could meet the boats with his rescue truck. The body was then removed to Stein's funeral home.

Police reported they were told Joefra, a native of Italy, came here about 1903. He has no known relatives, except for a cousin who is believed to live in Connellsville, Pa. He was married about 16 years ago but was divorced within six or seven months, police said.

Joefra has not worked of late, police said, adding that in former years he operated a greenhouse on Humbird street.

Authorities learned late last night that Joefra was born in Nasal, Italy, October 1, 1879, and came to the United States in 1903. He spelled his name Antonio Joefra on his identification card and note he left on the bridge. When he became a citizen, he spelled it Geofra, and when his divorce was granted, it was spelled Joffre.

Light Lists Five Street Projects, Asks Cost Figures

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, has been requested by Commissioner Myers G. Light to prepare cost estimates for either paving or repairing five Cumberland streets which have had little or no work done on them since before the war. Light said he plans to submit the estimate to the mayor and council as soon as it is prepared.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said the work would probably entail a bond issue unless funds are provided by the state. Last year the state provided $31,000 for city work, but a recent request for an appropriation to the state roads commission has not been heard from as yet, the mayor added.

The five projects suggested by Light are as follows:

1— Virginia avenue—This would include 2,500 feet of resurfacing and blacktopping plus the raising of castings for manholes.

2— Decatur street—To be paved with a drainage system provided. Rizer said the drainage system, including catch basins and storm sewers, are now being installed and that this will be followed by a revision of the curbs, with emphasis on corners, to enable trucks to negotiate them more readily.

3— Victoria avenue—General improvement program. This street already has some curbs and concrete gutters and more curb improvements are to be installed under present plans.

4— Warwick avenue—This would represent an entire new job—paving, gutters, curbing and blacktopping. Rizer said that with exception of 25 feet, there are no gutters on the street.

5— Braddock road — Little or nothing has been done on this road since it was built and consequently repair work and resurfacing are needed. Rizer said that "Braddock road takes a licking from heavy trucks, as is the case with all streets on grades."

Pig Iron Shortage Delays Pipe Order

Arrangements are being made by the Civilian Production Administration to give preference to all housing needs for pressure pipe after August 1, according to a letter received yesterday by Commissioner William J. Edwards from J. A. Claussen of the CPA steel branch, metals and minerals division.

Edwards said he wired J. D. Small, CPA chairman, July 1 regarding the possibility of obtaining a priority for pig iron necessary in manufacturing cast iron pipe. An order for 2,500 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe was placed with McKaig's foundry June 17 for the purpose of extending the city water system to sections where GI homes are being built.

McKaig's was notified by the United States Pipe and Foundry Company in Pittsburgh that the current pig iron shortage is delaying manufacture of the pipe. The company suggested contacting the Civilian Production Administration for a priority, certifying that the material to be purchased would be used in connection with veterans' housing.

Claussen said in his letter that the pig iron shortage is due to lengthy steel and coal strikes this year, adding that it is hoped production will reach a more normal state within 30 days.

City Tax Collections Total $238,108.04

With $36,400 in city taxes collected yesterday, the second largest single day's total since collections began June 28, tax collections have reached a total of $238,108.04, according to Charles F. Burke, Jr., city tax collector.

On July 2 a total of $37,900 was collected during the day at the collector's office in city hall.

July 16 is the deadline for payment of city taxes. After that time interest will be charged.

TWUA Will Demand Immediate Raises

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 9 (AP)—The Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) will make immediate demands for wage increases for its members, R. R. Lawrence, southern regional director for TWUA, announced here tonight.

The union will demand pay boosts of 12 cents per hour "across the board," Lawrence said, "plus adequate social insurance coverage."

Wage provisions of union contracts now in force will be observed, Lawrence said. However, he added, "most southern contracts can and will be opened immediately."

Board Defers Action On Voting Machines

Action was deferred by the county commissioners yesterday on a request of the board of election supervisors that 118 voting machines be purchased for installation in the 75 polling places in the county prior to the November election.

Commissioner Simeon W. Green did not attend the session, and action was deferred by Commissioners Charles N. Wilkinson and James Holmes.

The request that the machines be purchased was made by Patrick F. King, clerk to the election board, and Frank Stone, of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, Jamestown, N. Y. It was explained that the machines will cost about $1,053 each and that they may be paid for in 10 years with an approximate annual payment of $13,000.

George M. Leib presented a request that the property of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, Greene street, be exempt from 1947 taxes. Under state law, such organizations are not required to pay property taxes.

Andrew Wolford asked that a road in Homewood Addition be repaired, and the request was referred to County Engineer John H. Carscaden for investigation.

E. O. Paxton and Henry M Knieriem also asked that another road in the same section be repaired, and the engineer was instructed to investigate.

Gas Company-Union Sign New Contract

The Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company and Local 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union, have signed a new contract, effective until June 1, 1947, for about 25 workers of the company, C. E. Stutzman, business agent of the union, reported last evening. Pay increases, retroactive to May 1, 1946, were included in the pact signed yesterday, the union official said.

Contract negotiations between the union and the City Ice and Fuel Company and the Co-operative Ice Company, are under way, Stutzman added.

LaVale Civic Association Plans To Investigate Water Problem

Goodfellow Says Company Has Improvements Underway; Asks Co-operation

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

Many residents of LaVale are complaining of a shortage of water and lack of water pressure, and the situation has reached a point where some homes are without water entirely for long periods every day. Directors of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association are studying the problem and a committee has been named to make an investigation.

In the Woodlawn section, some residents say when water faucets are opened nothing comes out, "not even air." On the upper side of the highway through LaVale, some residents say they find it necessary to go to the basement to draw water, as pressure is too low to carry water through the pipes in the upper floors.

Klosterman's Addition has also been hard hit, and complaints from this area have likewise been numerous.

Creates Fire Hazard

Members of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company claim the situation creates a definite fire hazard as well as a hazard to health and sanitation. Residents are complaining that their lawns and gardens are dying, and one man last night said he has been bathing and shaving at his office in Cumberland for several days.

On the other side of the ledger, D. Clifford Goodfellow, president of the LaVale Water Company, a private stock corporation, said yesterday he is fully aware of the situation, and has also heard countless complaints. He said, "When people call in, sometimes I'm afraid the telephone will jump out of my hand."

Goodfellow was entirely sympathetic with the condition, and explained it from several angles.

During the war, he said, it was impossible to buy material or get labor to improve facilities or enlarge the water system. So for nearly five years, expansion has been impossible. Just recently, however, work was started on a new eight-inch pipe line from the Red hill section to be tied in with the present four-inch line at Crystal park. As material and labor are available, he declared, plans are complete to extend the eight-inch line all the way down the highway.

Reservoirs Filled

Ironically enough, the reservoirs, checked yesterday, were filled with water, and it was necessary to operate only one pump on the system, Goodfellow declared.

This indicates, he explained, that there is plenty of water, but existing lines are too small to carry enough water to supply all consumers.

Numerous persons have been using lawn sprinklers and garden hose, despite appeals of the company to refrain from this practice until facilities can be expanded, Goodfellow said. This creates a hardship on other persons farther along the line. When a few sprinklers and hose are going and other people are drawing water, the supply is exhausted and pressure drops before distant sections can be served.

A program of intelligent conservation all along the line will help some, but there will be no real service, Goodfellow acknowledged, until the new line can be completed.

The present section of eight-inch line will not materially remedy the situation without continued conservation, he explained, as the larger line will feed into the smaller line. Pressure will increase a little, but the supply coming through will still be limited by the four-inch carrier, he added.

Goodfellow said he ordered the pipe now being installed nearly a year ago, and has placed orders for additional pipe. It will be installed as it becomes available, and when an eight-inch line extends from Red Hill down to the Narrows, the entire area will have sufficient water and adequate pressure for normal requirements.

575 Homes Served

There are about 575 homes serviced by the LaVale Water Company, Goodfellow said. These are supplied by three springs and three deep wells, with reservoirs for storage placed on high points. These reservoirs are constantly kept filled, he declared.

Some of the complaining citizens say the company raised the water rental fees from $18 a year to $20 a year April 1, this year.

Goodfellow said yesterday this report is correct and that the company will not benefit by the increase until October 1, but is still planning to spend many times the increase in improvements.

He also indicated that steps will be taken immediately to gain the co-operation of all consumers on the company's lines to conserve water as much a spossible during the hot months.

In winter months, when no lawns or gardens are being watered, no cars are being washed, and the normal demand for water is less, there are seldom any complaints, Goodfellow and several of the residents agreed.

Rep. Randolph Calls For Full Production

Congressman Tells Rotarians Americans Are Challenged To Stay On Job

Full production is the major answer to the economic unrest in America, Rep. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.) told members of the Cumberland Rotary Club in an address yesterday at Central YMCA.

Discussing conditions in the United States today, Rep. Randolph declared that "complete controls rather than artificial controls will be necessary for real prosperity. Full production is the major answer to the economic unrest in America. We are challenged now, more than ever before, to stay on the job in field, factory, mine or office."

Rep. Randolph advocated the creation of a Department of Peace, and now has a bill pending in Congress to do this.

"The people of the earth," he said, "must learn to live together. Our nation has a responsibility for leadership to the end that wars cease. To say war is controlled by some power we cannot conquer is to admit defeat. War is man-made—and therefore man can unmake war."

Army Planes Due Here For Show

A flight of army planes and helicopters has been promised to the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce for its air show at Municipal Airport, Wiley Ford, W. Va., August 4, according to Rep. J. Glenn Beall.

David Kauffman, president of the Jaycees said Rep. Beall and Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, were contacted by members of the Jaycee aviation committee, asking their help in getting army planes for the affair.

The two congressmen contacted officials of the War department, and were assured, weather permitting, that planes would be here to participate in the show, Rep. Beall said in a telephone call last night.

The air show, being conducted by the Jaycees as a part of its program to further interest in aviation locally, will be educational and entertaining, members of the committee said yesterday. A number of nationally known stunt fliers and parachute jumpers have been booked for the performance, and three hours of thrilling entertainment are promised.

The Jaycees, in co-operation with the management of the airport, are making plans to accommodate and entertain a crowd of at least 5,000 persons. The show is tentatively scheduled to begin Sunday, August 4, at 2 p. m.

Frank Storm, a former postal clerk and civil service secretary, now a civil commissioner in North Carolina, who is vacationing here, was toastmaster.

Speakers at the dinner included the guests of honor, Clyde Hammond, Baltimore, president of the Maryland Federation of Postal Clerks, and Morris Eisenberg, superintendent of the Essex branch post office, Baltimore, and formerly state representative of the Postal Clerks Association.

Farewell mementos were presented to the three retiring post office officials.

The committee which made arrangements included Mr. and Mrs. George Stotler and Joseph Grabenstein. There were 43 guests at the party.

Approval Of Dam And Flood Control Measure Is Seen

Beall, Randolph Expect Differences In Omnibus Bill To Be Resolved

Cumberland flood control and Savage river dam measures now in Congress are progressing properly and there is no reason to feel that approval of either will not be secured, on the basis of reports submitted by Rep. J. Glenn Beall and Jennings Randolph yesterday afternoon at a conference of the two congressmen with the Ridgeley, W. Va., flood control committee and Harold W. Smith, of the municipal planning and zoning commission.

The entire subject was discussed at the meeting, according to Smith, who pointed out that the Cumberland and Savage river projects are not involved in differences in the omnibus bill now being resolved by a conference committee set up by the Senate and the House.

Rep. Beall and Rep. Randolph told the group that they believe the differences will be ironed out and the committee's proposals will be passed in both houses. Then the bill will be sent to the president for his approval, and there is no indication that he will not act favorably on it.

The congressmen told the group that they believe both projects—Cumberland flood control and Savage river dam—will be approved by Congress and the president within a couple of weeks.

They pointed out, however, that the possibility of appropriations for the work at this session of Congress are remote, and said that the question of appropriations will come up at the next session of Congress early in the year.

Rep. Beall pointed out that the Cumberland flood control measure is the only one in the omnibus bill that is not to be paid for on a 50-50 basis, but instead is an almost 8 to 1 basis with the federal government to pay considerably more than $7,000,000 and Cumberland to pay $1,000,000 of the cost.

Judges Sustain Store's Demurrer In Damage Suit

A demurrer to a $50,000 damage action against a Cumberland store, resulting from a child being burned while wearing cowboy "chaps" more than a year ago, was sustained in an opinion handed down in circuit court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

The boy, James Edmond Detrick, son of Israel Edmond Detrick, of Ridgeley, was burned December 26, 1944, when a spark flew from a bon-fire and ignited the woolly pants.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., attorneys for the child, sued Louis P. Lutz and Ida K. Lutz, trading as Lou's Auto Stores, alleging the suit sold on December 23, 1944, was purchased with the understanding that it was safe to wear.

Attorney Files Demurrer

Clarence Lippel, counsel for the defendants, filed a demurrer, contending the bill of complaint was insufficient in law.

The judges, sustaining the demurrer, cited that the bill did not contain sufficient allegations and did not sufficiently allege breach of warranty.

It was also pointed out that the bill did not show the proximity of the boy to the fire, and did not contain sufficient allegations to show the defendants liable under an implied warranty.

It was indicated that an amended bill of complaint will be filed by attorneys for the boy and his father.

Wife Gets Decree

Mrs. Mary W. Lacy, of 206 Avirett avenue, has been granted a divorce from Robert J. Lacy, Harrison street, in a decree signed by Chief Judge William A. Huster. She was also given the custody of their two children, and Lacy was ordered to pay $15 weekly for their support. Gorman E. Getty was her attorney and Harold E. Naughton represented Lacy.

Married 23 years, Joseph Carnell, of this city, has filed suit for a divorce from Mrs. Dorothy E. Carnell, His counsel, Naughton, said they were married December 23, 1923, in this city and lived together until June 28, 1944.

George I. Click, represented by Edwin M. Horchler, filed suit for a divorce from Mrs. Viola J. (Hyre) Click, of Cumberland. They were married May 23, 1938, in this city, and lived together until February 15, 1943.

New Laboratory Will Be Provided

Work began yesterday morning on converting a storage room on the third floor of the Public Safety building into a laboratory for the use of the federal nutrition unit which has established headquarters here, according to Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

The room was formerly used for storage purposes by the Cumberland branch laboratory of the state department of health, which occupies the entire third floor of the building.

Funds for the remodeling work were provided through appropriations made by the state department of health.

The nutrition unit, which has office space in the basement of city hall, includes a staff chemist, Dr. Nicholas Barbella, who will use the new laboratory when it is completed, Dr. Franklin said.

After the nutrition unit completes its survey of conditions in the Cumberland area, the new laboratory will be used by personnel of the Cumberland branch laboratory of the state department of health. The nutrition survey, started in June, is expected to take from two to three years.

June Jobless Pay Claims Are Lowest Since May 1945

Claimants For Unemployment Compensation Hit Peak In May 1946

For the first time since May 1945 there was a decrease in June in the monthly number of claims for unemployment compensation, according to Francis Kenney, claims deputy at the local office of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board.

Kenney pointed out that there was a steady advance from about 90 claimants filing in May 1945 until the high mark of 4,649 claimants was reached in May of this year. In June, however, the number decreased to 3,813.

The decrease applies, Kenney stated, not only to claims for unemployment compensation but also to claims filed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance act.

Number Is Negligible

While some of the decrease may be due to the fact that some claimants have drawn the maximum in benefits allowed untier the law, Kenney said it is his opinion that that number is negligible.

Although he could not be positive about it, the deputy said the decline in the number of claimants probable reflects a leveling-off of the unemployment condition in the county.

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office of the United States Employment Service, said that although unemployment has more or less leveled off the employment situation at the present time is at very low ebb.

The number of calls for employes from employers is at the lowest point now than at any time since 1940, Carroll said.

Expects Slight Increase

He said that between 3,900 and 4,000 unemployed persons, about 1,000 of them women, are currently registered for work at the local USES office, and that there may be a slight increase as more servicemen return. The USES does not have jobs to offer applicants, Carroll said.

Carroll expressed the opinion that unemployment in the county almost has reached its peak, but he indicated that he believes the peak has not yet been hit.

Macaroni Union Accepts 10 Cent Hourly Increase

Members of Local 1132, Macaroni Workers Union, CIO, voted unanimously last evening to accept a company offer of a 10 cent hourly wage increase and to return to work at the Cumberland Macaroni Company which has been closed since June 6 when workers struck to enforce wage demands.

A union committeeman, who announced the return-to-work decision, said the vote to accept the offer was 100 per cent and added that the company was notified at once of the decision.

Union officials added that the increase will become effective at once and that the new contract will contain a six-month reopening clause.

A company official said limited production will begin today and added that full production will begin as soon as possible. He added that supplies of flour for the manufacture of macaroni and noodle products are available in greater quantity now.

The Thomas street plant employs some 40 workers and uses about 125 barrels of flour a day in normal production.

A tentative agreement of the dispute was reached Monday afternoon at a meeting between company and union officials and James A. Holden, federal conciliator, who has been assisting in the negotiations. At the Monday meeting, union committeemen agreed to recommend that members accept the offer.

The union struck June 6 for a 30 cents hourly wage increase. At a recent meeting, the men turned down a seven cents an hour offer since union officials said they insisted on a 30-day reopening clause in case of inflationary price increases.

Navy Recruiter Makes Informal Inspection Here

Lt. Ira J. Joyner Outlines New Enlistment Plan And V-6 Policy

Lt. Ira J. Joyner, officer in charge of United States Navy recruiting, Baltimore, visited the local recruiting station yesterday on a tour of inspection, and complimented local recruiters on the number and calibre of recruits being enrolled here.

Lt. Joyner called attention to two recent rulings of interest to navy veterans and men who plan to enroll in the navy.

He explained that the navy has changed its enlistment policy and first enlistments are now open in the navy for those 17 years of age for minority term only, that is until they are 21. For men 18 through 30 years of age, the term is for either four or six years.

For re-enlistment, he explained, men with at least one year of previous naval service, terms of enlistment are for two, three, four or six years. For men entering a first enlistment and qualifying for the electronic technician training, the term is either two, three, four or six years. Men qualifying for this technical training will be given the equivalent of a $5,000 education.

It is now possible, Lt. Joyner said, for navy veterans interested in enlisting in V-6, the navy inactive reserve, to be sworn in at the local recruiting office, without going to Baltimore. Lt. Joyner said a number of men here are interested in V-6, but do not care to lose a day of work to go to Baltimore.

When the naval reserve division is formed in Cumberland within the next few months, only men already on a V-6 status, can be assigned to the division, Lt. Joyner explained.

Further information regarding the naval reserve unit here will be available soon, the recruiter indicated.

Consumers Must Pay Higher Price For Coal

Consumers who have purchased coal since May 13 must pay coal dealers the difference between the price paid and new rates that are retroactive to May 13, as a result of increases in fuel prices allowed by the federal government. The increases average about 40 cents a ton.

After miners were granted a wage increase following a two-month strike, an increase in fuel prices was authorized by the Solid Fuels Administration and the OPA. The amount varied in different areas, depending on the work-week and other factors.

Stoker coal is now $6.15 for nut size and $6.25 a ton for pea size. Run of mine coal has been boosted from $5.75 to $6.30 a ton. Prices are about the same for all dealers here, it was said.

Phil Fleming Is Elected Head Of Legion Post

John R. Kelly, Jr., And John W. Sloan Are Elected Vice Commanders

Phil Fleming, 700 Baker street, veteran of World War II, was elected commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, in the annual election held Monday at the post home, according to results announced at the regular meeting last night.

Fleming, who enlisted in the army air corps early in the war and served at Scott field, Ill., as an instructor, defeated his lone opponent, Thomas R. Farrell, veteran of World War I, by a vote of almost two to one.

John R. Kelly, Jr., was elected first vice commander, defeating Arthur R. Flurshutz and Ralph E. Wilkinson in a close contest.

John W. Sloan was named second vice commander by default, as he was unopposed. He is a veteran of World War II, and a son of the late David Sloan, well known for his activity in Legion circles.

Paupe Is Reelected

Other officers elected without opposition include Russell C. Paupe, adjutant; Leo C. Reichart, finance officer, and William H. Treiber, historian.

John R. Neff, another World War II veteran defeated Robert S. Byer in a close contest for sergeant at arms.

Robert C. Bowers and William "Boots" Miller were elected to the executive committee. Oscar F. "Jim" Shober was the unsuccessful candidate.

Paul W. Weisenmiller won the contest for chaplain by a wide margin, defeating Claude L. Deal and Joseph L. Wolf.

The new officers will be installed, according to Commander Samuel A. Graham, at the next regular meeting, Tuesday, July 23. Frank Powers, vice commander of Mountain district, will be the installing officer.

On Junior Legion Team

Fleming has been interested in the Legion since he was a boy, he told a reporter last night. In 1934, he was a pitcher on the Junior American Legion ball team, which won the national championship and brought nationwide publicity to Cumberland. He pitched for the team for four seasons, and was also active in the formation and management of the Sons of the Legion drum corps, although actually not eligible for membership.

As soon as he was discharged from the army, Fleming joined the Legion post here. He served a term as sergeant-at-arms, being elected almost immediately after joining, and is the present second vice commander.

His interest in the Legion is probably best demonstrated in one fact of which he is very proud.

At 1:50 p. m., February 2, 1946, a daughter, Jane Francis Fleming was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fleming. At 2:15 p. m., the same day, before the child was a half-hour old, he enrolled her as an active member of the Ladies Auxiliary to Fort Cumberland Post, and she is one of the auxiliary's youngest members.

Fleming is a native of Ridgeley, W. Va. Prior to entering the service he was employed at the Celanese plant, but since his return, has been employed at Rosenbaum's store.

Playgrounds Closing Earlier In Evening

The eight city playgrounds are now closing at 8 p. m. instead of at 9 p. m., effective this week, because the days are growing shorter and it is too dark for the children to play after that time, according to Mrs. Ralph Stein, playground supervisor. The regular opening time of 9 a. m. is unchanged.

Reporting that attendance is maintaining the high average set at the beginning of the season, Mrs. Stein said that between 1,200 and 1,500 children use the playgrounds each week.

Approximately 125 children and their parents attended an informal entertainment at the Columbia street playground yesterday evening. The musical program included saxophone and accordion duets by Jimmie and Billy Hiser, and group singing, led by Mrs. Dorothy Darber.

Arrangements for the entertainment were made by Mrs. Stein and the two Columbia street playleaders, Mrs. Lulu Arnold and Mrs. Herman Hale.

A similar program will be presented today at 7 p. m. at the Gephart playground, and children and their parents are invited to attend. Mrs. Rodger Koegel and Miss Noel Barnard are the Gephart playleaders.

A recital, including singing and recitations, was presented by children attending the East Side playground yesterday morning, under the direction of Mrs. Frances Frey and Mrs. Betty Frey, playleaders.

Local Marine Discharged

Following service with an aviation unit in the Pacific theater, Cpl. Robert P. Lucas, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Lucas, 817 Fayette street, recently received his honorable discharge from the marine corps at Cherry Point, N. C. He enlisted May 22, 1945.

Lucas intends to re-enter Allegany high school in September for his senior year. His brother, Cpl. Philip R. Lucas, Jr., an Allegany graduate, was discharged several months ago after 31 months in the South Pacific.
